Ag Leaders Share Views With Farm Press

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER — A number of agricultural leaders came here this week to share their views with members of the farm press that included print, radio, TV and public relations persons. The event was the spring conference of the Northeast Farm Communicators Association. The place was Willow Valley Inn and Family Restaurant. The speakers included:

--Steven Crawford, Executive Assistant to the State Agricultural Secretary, who spoke on the relationship between PDA, the press and the farm press readers. Crawford also announced that Governor Casey signed the bill to amend the Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act.

–Dr. Lamartine Hood, Pennsylvania State University dean, who urged regional cooperation for research projects and proposed an Extension Service that serves all the citizens of Pennsylvania.

–Thomas Berner, head of the journalism department at Pennsylvania State University, who served as the professional improvement leader for the reporters and editors.

–David Nolt, professional antique farm toy collector, who gave points to determine the value of farm toys

Hay Relief Empties Coffers As Forages Start Growth

1986 Summer Drought Hay Fund (Final Report)

Editor's Note: Last summer the drought caused hardship for many farmers. And the benevolent response of other farmers was heart-warming.

In the 1986 Summer Drought Hay Fund sponsored by Lancaster Farming and administered for the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, a total of $24,945 was contributed by an exceptionally high number of different contributors. Contributions ranged from a few dollars to hundreds of dollars.

The money was used to buy hay and and to get it transported to the need both in southern states and closer to home in Maryland and southern York County. The giver and the receiver both benefit in these kinds of situations. All we can say is thanks!

York County Correspondent

YORK – Once again, the rolling countryside of southern Pennsylvania has wrapped itself in a covering of deep, lush, velvety green.

Early barley waves infant heads and drops of dew glisten from stands of thick alfalfa. Tractors crisscross the fields, lugging tillage, planting, spraying equipment. Choppers gulp rows of twisted, wilting stems, to be blown into empty silo storage for livestock eager for the taste of fresh forage.

And, with some degree of regularity, blessed crop-giving moisture again falls from the heavens. With the rains and the regreening, farmers plant with the optimism that springs anew with each season.

Pseudorabies Eradication Is Realistic Goal, Says Illinois Vet

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — Eradicating pseudorabies in Pennsylvania is a realistic goal, according to Dr. Leroy Biehl. The Illinois Extension swine veterinarian came to Penn State's Capitol Campus in Harrisburg on Thursday to tell pork producers that there is light at the end of the tunnel in the battle against a virus that has resulted in 229 quarantines in Pennsylvania since 1980.

Penn State Extension veterinarian Larry Hutchinson called Thursday's meeting to bring the swine industry up to date on the status of the disease here and in Illinois, a major hog producing state. Among the experts taking the podium were Biehl and Illinois pork producer Willard Korsmeyer, who has been working with the disease for 12 years. Illinois currently has 332 herds under PRV quarantine.

The virus can cause a wide range

Gov. Signs H.B. 62

HARRISBURG — Gov. Robert P. Casey signed into law Wednesday a bill which restores authority to agriculture commodity boards to control marketing and promotional efforts.

House Bill 62 amends the Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act of 1968, which created a partnership between the Department of Agriculture and commodity producers in developing and administering commodity and promotion programs.

Under the Thornburgh administration, a 1985 ruling by the general counsel claimed the boards had only an advisory capacity. By signing House Bill 63, Casey effectively restored the commodity producers' authority over promotional and marketing programs.

The bill was supported by all major farm organizations in the state.

It's Time To Get Ready For Dairy Month

To be successful in business you need to promote your product. And to be successful in promotion you need to be creative. That kind of creativity shows through in this photo of Willowene Farm south of Willow Street along Route 272.

Warren Good had a little extra rye seed left in his drill last fall when he planted the cover crop in his fields. So to finish he formed the letters "drink milk" in front of his barn for all the people who drive past on the busy highway to see the message. Nature took its course and with the spring growth the message is clear.

And it's this kind of creativity that Lancaster Farming is already planning for the special June Dairy Month issue to be published June 6. We already have word of special dairy news releases, features, interviews and the annual dairy recipe feature.

So do like the Warren Good family advise. Drink milk! And get ready for Lancaster Farming's creative contribution to June Dairy Month promotion activities.

PENNFIELD ALL MILK

CALF MILK REPLACER

• 21% Protein • Added Amino Acids
• 17% Fat • Formulated for Maximum Growth

Recent trials completed at a large scale research facility have determined more closely than ever before, the specific requirements for protein and amino acids by the preruminant calf.

Feeding Trials

	20.5% Crude Protein NO Amino Acids	20.5% Crude Protein With Amino Acids	22% Crude Protein With Amino Acids	22% Crude Protein NO Amino Acids
Number of Calves	48	48	48	48
0-4 Weeks Gain (lbs.)	34.58	37.28	37.69	35.64
0-6 Weeks Gain (lbs.)	65.94	68.78	69.44	68.42

Experimental results confirm the expected increase in calf growth by increasing the protein level from 20.5% to 22% crude protein. By supplementing the necessary amino acids, calf growth rates at 20.5% were essentially the same as those found at 22% crude protein. Additional substitution of the same amino acids at 22% crude protein found no change in growth over the standard 22% formula.

The overall benefits of using amino acids to supplement standard milk replacer formulas can be clearly seen. Optimum performance at the best possible price is the goal of all quality dairymen and results in the most economical start for herd replacements.

PERFORMANCE

Pennfield's top performing, pH optimized, all dairy protein milk replacer provides maximum return on your dollar.

In a recent survey of large animal veterinarians, 93% responding reported they would recommend 21/17 as an approved substitue for whole milk.

GUARANTEED

Try Pennfield's new 21/17 ALL MILK/CALF MILK REPLACER. If you're not satisfied, return it for a full refund on the unused portion.

OPINION

Don't Substitute Pills For Milk or Meat

New studies of osteoporosis, a bone thinning disorder experienced by some older women and men, stress the importance of manganese in the diet and question the value of calcium supplements.

"A recently completed two-year study of postmenopausal women showed that those taking 2,000 milligrams of calcium supplement suffered as much bone loss as those taking placebos," says Dr. Sue Snider, University of Delaware extension nutritionist. "In contrast, women in the study who received estrogen but no supplemental calcium showed no bone loss."

Snider says this study, conducted at the University of Copenhagen, emphasizes estrogen as the treatment of first choice for postmenopausal women but does not consider the effectiveness of increasing calcium intake throughout life.

Adequate calcium intake is crucial at all periods of life, but especially when young. Studies of entire populations that drink milk versus those that don't back this up. The milk-drinking populations have more bone mass.

Osteoporosis causes 1.3 million bone fractures among American women annually. At greatest risk for this bone disease are older white or oriental women who are petite or thin and who experience an early menopause. Very elderly men can also be affected by the disorder. Other rish factors include excessive cigarette smoking or alcohol consumption, inadequate calcium intake and too little exercise.

Other recent research shows that some vegetarians and elderly women with osteoporosis have remarkably low levels of manganese, a trace element necessary for the maintenance and rapid regrowth of bones.

The study originated with a basketball star whose promising pro career was being jeopardized by broken bones, Snider says. His bones looked osteoporic and his blood, when examined, was found to have no manganese, half the levels of zinc and copper, but plenty of calcium. The athlete had been on a macrobiotic vegetarian diet for more than two years.

Dr. Snider says that although many vegetables are a rich source of manganese the tannins and phytic acid in vegetables apparently tie up the manganese and prevent its absorption.

On the other hand, the small amount of manganese in meat is absorbed very well by the body. In fact, meat enhances the absorption of manganese from vegetables.

Vegetarians, therefore, may be a risk for osteoporosis because insufficient manganese is available from their diet.

Other research on the role of manganese in bone maintenance led to the discovery that elderly women with osteoporosis have only one-fourth the manganese levels of healthy women of the same age.

The effect of calcium supplements on the absorption of trace elements is also under study. A University of Nebraska researcher has shown that magnesium and calcium supplements inhibit the absorption of manganese. Therefore, it's possible that the same calcium pills taken to prevent osteoporosis may actually promote the disease.

Therefore since manganese uptake by milk drinkers seems to be unaffected, we continue to question the value of substituting pills for food. Espeically for milk and meat.

To Use A Starter Solution

Gardening is a way of life for farmers and most suburban people. And if you want to give your garden a real boost this spring, use a fertilizer starter solution when you set out your plants. It's easy to make. Just dissolve about 3 tablespoons or so of regular 10-10-10 or similar analysis fertilizer in a gallon of water. And, as you set out your plants, such as cabbage, tomatoes or peppers, pour some of the starter solution on the hole, stir the soil, put in the plant, cover the roots with soil, and you've got that plant off to the best start ever.

A starter solution makes plant nutrients available to young roots immediately.

Or, even better, you might want to buy a special starter fertilizer. These are specially designed complete fertilizers which are high in available phosphorus. Be sure to follow label directions on the container.

To Control Flies

Flies are a continual problem to keep under control on most farms. Successful fly control begins early, before flies become a problem. Best control results from using a variety of preventive and control measures. Flies have developed resistance to many chemicals. Therefore, it is beneficial to use several different classes of insecticides (i.e. organo phosphates, pyrethrines, etc.)- not to be confused with methods of application (residual sprays, baits, feed additivies, etc.)

By using a variety of insecticides, flies that are resistant to one might be killed by another. Of equal importance is the prevention of fly breeding places. In other words, keep the premises clean. If feed is spilled, clean it up, scrape yards and alleys several times weekly, clean pens and box stalls weekly and incorporate manure soon after application.

To Beware of "Bargain" Electric Motors

If you attend sales or are given the opportunity to purchase electric motors at bargain prices, make sure you buy something you can use. Often a motor is purchased and the buyer finds it's not usable.

Before completing such a purchase it is wise to read the name plate. This will tell you if the motor is single or three phase, the horsepower, shaft speed, voltage and amperage. If it is a single phase motor, be sure the horsepower does not exceed that allowed at your farm. Your power supplier will be able to provide this information.

To Check Your Dog For Parasites

Most all farms have a dog or two around as pets and for security purposes. In either event, now is a good time to check for parasites.

Fleas become a special problem during the spring. The eggs they laid in the fall that were not killed by insecticides may have been dormant over the winter. Then in the warmth and moisture of the spring, these eggs hatch.

Numerous treatments exist for fleas such as flea and tick powders that contain carbaryl. One application won't eliminate the problem. You must also pay attention to your pet's environment. Aerosol sprays work well for treating living areas.

You may not be aware that your dog has fleas, especially with a long-haired dog. Just roll the dog on its back and look at the belly where the hair is thin. You can usually spot fleas in this area.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE COST AND POWER OF LOVE

May 10, 1987

Background Scripture: Hosea 2:2 through 3:5.
Devotional Reading: Jeremiah 31:31,34

We don't have all the details that we might like to know about the Book of Hosea. When God says to Hosea in 3:3,"Go again, love a woman who is beloved of a paramour and is an adultress...," is this the same woman, the harlot Gomer, whom God commanded Hosea to marry in chapter 1? If it is Gomer, is this the same story told twice or does it indicate that, sometime after the birth of their three children, Gomer ran away from Hosea and became a harlot once again?

We'd love to know the answers to those questions, but all we really need to know is found in what the Book of Hosea does tell us. This woman – we might as well call her Gomer and assume she is Hosea's wife – has not only sought to find love in adultery and prostitution, but in the process she has lost her freedom and has become a slave.

Once again, Gomer symbolizes the people of Israel. Like her, they have been unfaithful to the Lord. As she has gone from one lover to another, looking for something she never found with them, so the people of Israel have worshipped the gods of Canaanites, the Baals, who always promised a satisfaction they could not really give.

The analogy of infidelity and adultery is appropriate for our own times. On the personal level, we all see the evidence of this phenomenon in our society. It has become so common as to be regarded as "commonplace." The covenant of marriage has become considerably weakened in today's world. But his analogy is also a spiritual reality in our world as well. We may not think there are any Baals day's world as well. We may not think there are any Baals today, but there are: all of us are tempted to seek the fullness of life in things – money, success, power, technology, etc.– rather than in God. The story of Gomer and the people of Israel is our story, too: like Gomer and Israel we too "pursue... lovers, but (do not overtake them" (2:7)– trying to find what can only be found in God.

We too can be "bought back" by the power of God's redeeming love, but we must first realize that that kind of love, like the redemption of Gomer and Israel, has a price. What does that love cost? For one thing, it costs God a love that persists and endures even when the recipient of that love betrays and rejects it. This is not a "I'll-scratch- your- back- if-you-scratch- mine" kind of love that is the basis of so much human "loving." It is the kind of love with which God pursued the unfaithful people of Israel: "I will allure her... and speak tenderly to her" (2:14). In Jesus' life that kind of love cost a cross.

That kind of love also costs the beloved something, too, for although God "loves us while we are yet sinners," it is only when we realize how low we've fallen and turn to God again that this redeeming love of God can restore us. Hosea forsaw the day when Israel would say, "I will go and return to my first husband, for it was better with me then than now" (2:7).

There is another cost inherent in this kind of love: although God's love redeemed the people of Israel, there were consequences of their infidelity: "For the children of Israel will dwell many days without king or prince, without sacrifice or pillar, without ephod or teraphim" (3:4). When there is repentence and forgiveness in a broken marriage, the redeemed relationship must be strong enough to bear the consequences of the past.

God's love is strong enough to pay the cost. And ours can and must be too.

Price Voted Outstanding Senior In PSU's College Of Agriculture

UNIVERSITY PARK — Deborah Ann Price, a senior majoring in dairy production and minoring in extension education, has been voted the 1987 Outstanding Senior in the College of Agriculture at Penn State. Price will be honored at the College of Agriculture commencement ceremonies in Eisenhower Auditorium, May 16.

Selection for the award, which is sponsored by the College of Agriculture Alumni Society, was made by the honor students in the Coaly Society. The Society recognizes students with high academic standing who participate in college activities.

"We chose Deb for her excellent academic record and for all her contributions to club activities," says Julie Baker, president of the Coaly Society.

On the Dean's list since fall of 1984, Price will graduate from Penn State with distinction. She was initiated into Gamma Sigma Delta national honor society for agriculture this spring and is a member of the Golden Key national honor society.

Price is president of Ag Student Council and was recently named the 1987 Outstanding Senior in Dairy Production and Outstanding Senior by the Northeastern Dairy and Animal Science Societies. She was the 1985 Penn State Dairy Princess, and is a member of the Coaly Society, Collegiate FFA and 4-H and the Pre-Vet Club.

Last summer she was an intern with the Berks County Cooperative Extension Service and won an Ag Alumni Award for her report of internship activities. She also was an assistant for the Pennsylvania Governor's School for Agriculture, a five-week program for academically talented high school students interested in food, agriculture and natural resource management.

During her four years at Penn State, Price has received a number of scholarships through the College of Agriculture Scholarship and Awards program including the Craola Farms Scholarship, the Ag Alumni Scholarship, the Minna Baver Scholarship and a William G. Russell Memorial Scholarship.

After graduation, Price is planning to continue her studies in graduate school at Penn State's Department of Agriculture Economics and Rural Sociology. She hopes to become an agent for the Cooperative Extension Service.

U.S.-JAPAN TRADE WAR ON HOLD—Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone came here to try to persuade President Reagan to abate special tariffs designed to encourage Japan to open its trade doors wider to U.S. firms. He left with only Reagan's hope to be able to remove the tariffs soon. Nakasone in turn left promises to initiate reforms at home to help boost purchases from the United States and otherwise help relieve the huge trade disparity between the two trading partners.

Action by the House last week adopting omnibus trade legislation containing a protectionist measure authored by Rep. Richard Gephardt (D-Mo.) was not calculated to make the Japanese leader's visit more comforting, though many doubt the Gephardt amendment will survive a conference committee or the president's veto.

SENATE TO MOVE ON TRADE BILL—The Senate swings into action on its version of trade legislation this week and pressure remains in both House and Senate to deal with the financial needs of the Farm Credit System. Sen. David Boren has set a May 6 deadline for all bills to be submitted to his credit subcommittee. The government is also due to run out of borrowing power at mid-month unless action to raise the national debt ceiling is completed.

Slowness of Congress in adopting appropriation bills also is affecting the Department of Agriculture. Putting the pressure on for supplemental appropriations for the Commodity Credit Corporation, the USDA has announced suspension of all farm program payments to farmers until the CCC gets additional funding.

CCC RAISES INTEREST RATE—Commodity loans obtained from the Commodity Credit Corporation in May, after payments can be resumed, will bear an interest rate of 6 1/4 percent. The increase from the previous rate of 6 percent reflects the cost of money to the CCC from the U.S. Treasury.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM MOVES ACQUIRED PROPERTY—The financially troubled Farm Credit System has been attempting in several areas to move acquired properties back into private hands without disrupting local real estate markets, according to its publication the Farm Credit Letter published in Englewood, Colorado. Most successful area has been St. Paul where a sales program ended March 15 after accepting offers on 2,145 properties totaling 388,042 acres worth $168.5 million. Of those sales, 90 percent went to local farmers at prices averaging 104 percent of appraised market value. Louisville and Omaha districts also have arranged special programs to sell acquired farm properties and the Spokane district has sent out advance notices of an upcoming sales program featuring interest rates as low as 8 percent.

SECONDARY MORTGAGE MARKET STILL DISCUSSED—The Farm Credit System and commercial banks are still trying to reach an agreeable format for establishing a secondary market for farm mortgages. A secondary market that would work like that already in use for home mortgages is one of the steps recommended by the American Farm Bureau Federation to help restore the Farm Credit System to financial health and to improve the overall farm credit situation.

NEW U.S. FARM PROGRAM BEING FELT IN EUROPE—Dean Kleckner, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, just returned from trade discussions in Europe with Common Market leaders, government officials, farmers and General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade officials. Kleckner said the EEC is finding its agricultural subsidy programs financially burdensome, spending as much as two-thirds of its total budget to support the Common Agricultural Policy. Kleckner said U.S. determination to stay the course on the 1985 farm bill is putting pressure on Europeans to change their farm policy of heavy subsidization.

SOVIET WHEAT SUBSIDY ONLY WAY TO MAKE SALE—"This agreement means we are going to sell 4 million tons of wheat to the Russians," said American Farm Bureau president Dean Kleckner of the export bonus sale to the Soviet Union. Speaking from Europe via telephone Friday, Kleckner said the sale will be based on competitive conditions. "There will be a subsidy involved but, regrettably, that is the world today. A market price means a subsidy price for many sales."

Plant Publication Available

ITHACA, N.Y. — Anemones, asters, chrysanthemums, dahlias, foxgloves, peonies, poppies, Chinese lanterns and violets have something in common: diseases and insect pests will attack them all. Growers of herbaceous perennials need to have strategies for prevention and control of these problems.

To help combat these diseases and insects a new Cornell Cooperative Extension publication has been written by Margery L. Daughtrey and Maurie Semel, "Herbaceous Perennials: Diseases and Insect Pests."

Daughtrey is an extension associate in plant pathology and Semel is an associate professor in entomology at Cornell University's Long Island Horticultural Research Laboratory.

The 25-page publication is useful to both home gardeners and commercial growers. Some of the disease concerns covered are crown gall, leaf spots and blights, root and stem rots, dampings-off, rusts, mildews and viruses. This publication provides color photographs and detailed descriptions of disease symptoms and insect damage, and it suggests approaches for non-chemical control of pests and diseases.

Close-up color photographs show some of the insects which attack perennials so the grower can make positive identification and choose appropriate control measures.

A 12-page insert, "Chemical Pest Control for Herbaceous Perennials," lists specific effective controls for insects and diseases. The insert will be updated each year.

"Herbaceous Perennials: Diseases and Insect Pests," (IB 207) may be obtained from the Cornell University Distribution Center, 7 Research Park, Ithaca, NY 14850. The cost, including insert for 1987, shipping and handling is $5.50.

Farm Philosophy

By Newton Bair

Under The Haystack, Fast Asleep

I often wonder just what happened to Little Boy Blue. Was he caught napping? Shouldn't he be blowing his horn? He probably got scolded for making too much noise anyway. Let the cows enjoy the corn. It's nice and cozy under the haystack.

While the message in Mother Goose is directed to little kids, it's not too subtle for older ones too. Depending on your age, the lesson varies. But, considering that the message is simply that one shouldn't sleep on the job, it applies to kids of any age. It also warns against delaying the unpleasant decisions that mold our lives. Or, burying our head like an ostrich, hoping trouble will go away. Or crying "Wolf" when none threatens. We crawl under the haystack when we should be tending the sheep.

I am often haunted by the childhood memories of those summertime chores we called "minding the cows." Fences were often non-existent, or at best very old and broken down. The next best means of confining cows to the pasture area was to have the younger children stand guard along the openings that tempted the cows into the orchard or the sweet corn patch. There were always more holes in the fence than there were kids to watch them. It created more tension than a supertuned guitar string. We couldn't have slept, even if there had been a haystack handy to crawl under. The cows would have eaten it right off our backs anyway.

It's an awesome responsibility for a child to assume. Twenty beefy behemoths easily overpower the imagination of a 60-pound youngster. Our best tactic was to run screaming from one hole in the fence to another, hoping to frighten the bossy critter away. The noise only heightened their curiosity and brought them closer to the threat of invading the forbidden land.

Some of this same kind of hysteria gets carried over into later life. Responsibilities always look bigger than they really are. The ones imposed by society or by our job, are seldom as great as the ones we impose upon ourselves. We tend to overestimate the expectations of our peers, so too much time is spent in worry and tension. We stamp our feet, chew our nails and cuss under our breath. All that activity does is make us feel like we're making something happen. It doesn't really turn back the invaders, or make the grass greener, or patch the fence.

We also like to tag politicians with the Little Boy Blue image. They're either making a loud noise, posing for media pictures, or hiding quietly while the Mafia befouls our commerce, or the Commies threaten to invade our sacred shores. He'd never get reelected if he was caught snoozing.

But the image of Little Boy Blue is nowhere as apparent as in modern news reporting. News writers and TV commentators flagellate themselves with it. They are nearly hysterical in their search for and embellishment of a news spectacular. Most notable are the recent overkill of the Iran history story, and the "Pearlygate" TV preacher scandal. While the reporters run screaming and waving their little flags in front of the Pulitzer prize judges, the real enemies like drugs, AIDS, and illegal immigrants, just like the hungry cows, are inching closer to the holes in the fence. A little less noise might attract less attention. Hiding under the hay would be a relief for Reagan and the reporters, and especially the readers and listeners.

Well, let the politicos and reporters tootle away on their horn. Let 'em scream and wave their hands in front of the sagging fence. Leave them to worry about scoops, and leaks in the Iran and PTL gates. As for me, I'll just see if I can't find a nice, warm haystack and take a little snooze! If Little Boy Blue got away with it, why can't I?

Fertilizer Facts

MEDIA — Most gardeners know that fertilizer helps their plants grow, but deciding which kind to buy can be confusing. Some fertilizers are meant for specific plants, advises Susan Goldsworthy, Delaware County Extension horticulturist, while others are more general but contain different ratios of nutrients. Which kind should you buy? Either kind can work — depending on your need and what you're willing to pay.

Numbers such as 5-10-10 on a fertilizer package tell you the percentages of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium, respectively. All fertilizers sold in Pennsylvania must have these numbers listed on the label.

Knowing the meaning of the numbers and the type of plant to be fertilized makes the purchase decision easier. Plant leaves require mostly nitrogen, while phosphorus and potassium are primarily used in flower and seed production. So, if you want to fertilize a foliage plant, choose a fertilizer that's high in nitrogen. For flowering plants you'll want one low in nitrogen but high in phosphorus and potassium. Following these tips can make your fertilizer buying less confusing.

The better buffer. Pure and simple.

For pourability and ease of handling, S-Carb feed grade sodium sesquicarbonate stands above the rest. When compared to sodium bicarbonate, S-Carb dramatically reduces caking and dust, providing clean, problem-free handling.

And S-Carb delivers results! It effectively neutralizes rumen acid and is research-proven to yield significant increases in production of 4% fat-corrected milk—equal to or greater than sodium bicarbonate.

S-Carb doesn't strain the feed budget either. For ease of handling, high quality and performance you'll find S-Carb a true value.

--Richard Denison, general manager of Member Service Corporation Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, who explained the financial management programs offered by PFA.

–Raymond Johnson, president of ADADC and a member of the National Dairy Board, who explained the national and local milk promotion programs.

Crawford expressed a concern that politicians have in the past ignored or excluded the farm press from events and announcements. He referred to the news conference Candidate Casey held in Lancaster in regard to the Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act to which the campaign staff forgot to invite the farm press. "It wasn't on purpose," Crawford said. "But it was a grave omission. We have information we need to get out to farmers. And we need to receive from the press the things they hear when they are out among the farmers." Crawford said this was doubly important because he preceives the farm press to have more credibility with their readers than is enjoyed by the general press.

To change the preceived credibility gap between the farm community and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, an aggressive involvement in leadership is forthcoming from PDA. "We should be agriculture's number one advocates and spokesmen," Crawford said. "The policy direction for agriculture is going to come from PDA. And to form that policy we are going to seek a lot of imput from agricultural leaders around the state.

Dr. Hood said that to be a force in the food, agriculture and forestry market place, a lot of cooperation between states, counties and sectors of the public must be achieved. "With 25 percent of the nation's people living in the northeast within a day's drive of production agriculture, the markets are close. But markets change with an aging population and the changed eating habits. We in agriculture need to change to meet the market," Hood said.

In addition, Hood said we need to begin to talk about urban agriculture. "Everyone in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Lancaster eat and consume the products of agriculture. And almost everyone has a green plant on their property. We must get across to urban and suburban legislators that food and agriculture are very important to their constituents. We must emphasize the health and vitality–the quality of life in the urban setting that is very much linked to agriculture. I firmly believe the Extension services are here to serve all citizens of the state. We must move away from the mentality that Cooperative Extension is only for farmers."

Hood sited the example of the gardening program in the city of Philadelphia where about 5,000 families are manning 450 garden sites that occupies a total of about 60 acres if you add all the small plots together. "These people not only produce food for their needs, they also have a reason to be proud," Hood said. "It's fascinating to interact with these people to see the sociological as well as the economic benefits of the program.

ALEXANDRIA, Va. – Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine announced a Class I milk price of $14.03 per hundredweight for June 1987. This price is down 3 cents from May but is 2 cents above last June's Class I price.

Shine announced a Class II milk price of $10.93 per hundredweight for April 1987 and a butterfat differential of 16.0 cents for the month. The Class II price was down 7 cents from the previous month, while the butterfat differential increased two-tenths of a cent.

The June 1987 Class I price and the April 1987 Class II price are based on the April 1987 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $11.00 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

Farmers Survive Winter With Help From Relief Fund

But farmers, not only in southern Pennsylvania but throughtout the Southeast, will not likely forget the leanness, the sparse crops, brown and dead pasture, empty barns and silos, and hungry livestock that marked the Drought of 1986.

Nor is it likely, as they plant — and hope — that drought-stricken livestock producers will soon forget the outpouring of generosity that brightened for many a bleak winter of sparse feed supplies, added feed expense and heavily-crunched cash flow.

It was an effort of sharing that began with farmers loading up excess hay from their own mows and fields, and eventually spread to churches, community service groups, private businesses, 4-H and FFA'ers, ag-support groups, governmental agencies, even the National Guard.

In Pennsylvania, drought relief concern in late summer culminated in the establishment of a relief fund, co-ordinated primarily by Lancaster Farming and the Pennsylvania Farmers Association.

"It mostly started when people who had no hay to share wanted to donate money to the effort," according to Lois Brandt. Brandt is the office manager for PACMA, commodity marketing arm of PFA.

PACMA's livestock coordinator Ron Manley and Lancaster Farming editor Everett Newswanger agreed to work with the initial establishment of the fund for funneling donated monies to farmers in need of hay for livestock. Since Manley's job responsibilities keep him out of his Camp Hill office a great deal of the time, Brandt managed most of the actual records keeping and related chores entailed in administering the fund.

Response to the fund was overwhelming, eventually surpassing $25,000, including $8,500 donated by the Southern District of the Church of the Brethren.

Brandt is also an active worker for Pennsylvania's Southern District of the Church of the Brethren. In an effort to get hay moved early in the program, she called Church World Service, headquartered at New Windsor, in search of a truck. That call got her a connection to Charlie Sellers.

Sellers, Southern District Disaster Coordinator for the Church of the Brethren, is accustomed to responding on short notice to organizing and assisting with various disaster emergencies. With unflagging enthusiasm, the Spring Grove retiree made hundreds of phone calls and spent countless hours in the actual arranging, loading, directing and helping to deliver thousands of bales of donated and purchased hay.

Sellers' right-hand man as hay deliveries continued through the winter was fellow church member Lester Ferrance. Warren Eshbach, district manager for Church of the Brethren, also played a major role in the hay relief efforts.

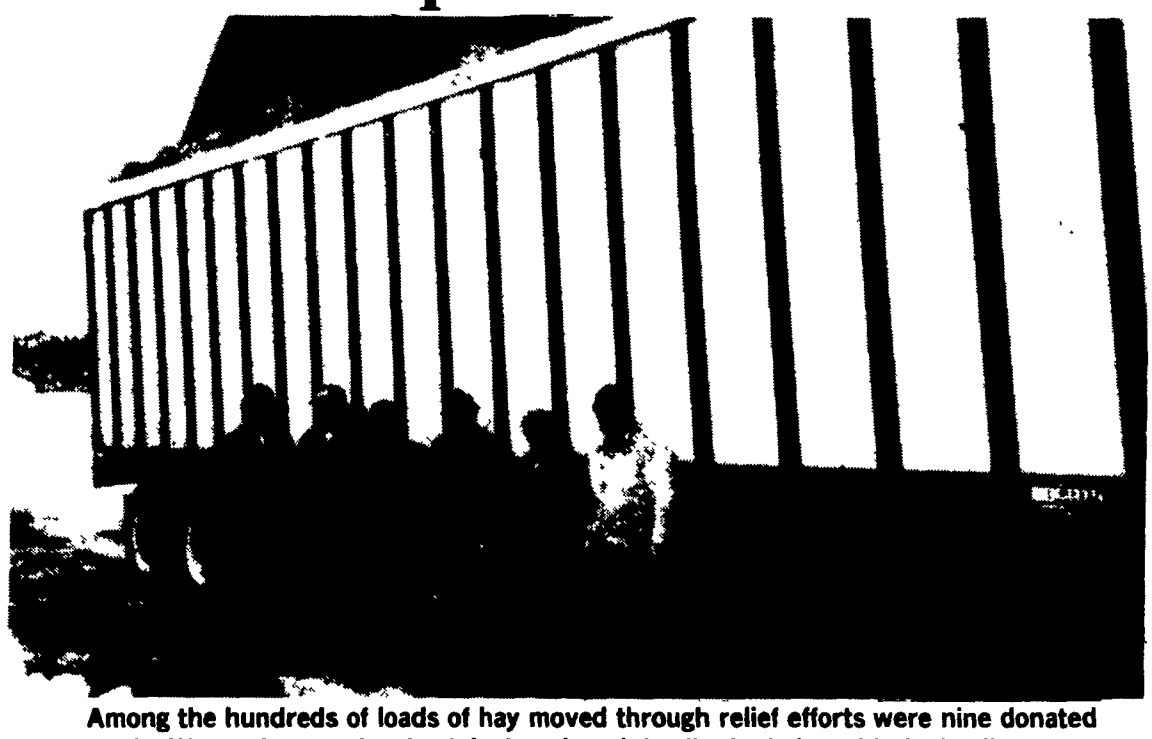
Initial efforts were directed at sending hay to parched farm communities in the South and Piedmont areas. Loads of hay went to Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware. But, a large part of the hay relief focus soon turned to neighboring farmers in York County.

"When we realized how serious it was here, we decided to keep the assistance right here at home," relates Sellers.

Also called into a leadership role in the local hay relief effort was York County extension agent Tony Dobrosky. Through the extension service and local ag leaders, an application form was quickly put together. Farmers facing curtailed feed supplies were asked to fill out the forms, which indicated numbers of livestock and feed on hand.

"Tony worked very hard to be as fair as possible to every involved," says Airville dairymen Ellis Crowl.

Crowl, president of the York County Farmers Association, when the relief effort began, agreed to assist with the coordination of hay deliveries to the drought-stricken southern half of the county. Like Brandt, Sellers, Dobrosky and many others involved, his commitment to help move hay to hungry livestock on full-time farming operations was one of many personal hours.



Among the hundreds of loads of hay moved through relief efforts were nine donated from the Waynesboro orchards of the Lucabaugh family. Assisting with the loading were, from right, Jim Pentz, Stewart Lucabaugh, Lester Ferrance, Earl Krout, Nevin Lucabaugh, Glenn Miller and Steve Neeley.

Ellis Crowl, past president of the York County Farmers Association, helped coordinate hay deliveries in the drought-wracked southern half of the county. With the relief efforts drawn to an end, corn planting offers renewed optimism for a year of more plentiful feeds harvest.

Four trainloads of hay came by railcar to Stewartstown, courtesy of vice-presidents and general managers A.P. Smith of the MA and PA Railroad, and George Hart of the Stewartstown Railroad. And, an Army National Guard convoy of donated hay arrived in the southern part of the county early in the relief efforts. Cooperating with efforts of the military assistance, and other relief arrangements, was Chuck Muir of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Before the haylift effort ended just a few weeks ago, 85 truckloads of hay aided southern York County farmers. The total 726 tons, or 36,308 bales, helped feed cattle on 51 different farms. Of that, 48 were family dairy herds averaging 66 cows per herd, and three were beef herds, averaging 51 cows per herd.

Now, the Summer Drought Hay Relief fund is drained. But, in its wake are dairy cattle still in milking strings, when, without a timely delivery of hay, they might otherwise have simply been sold. Beef cows that might have gone to slaughter have delivered a new generation of calves.

And farmers, caught in cash deficit situations breathed a bit easier for a few weeks after a trailer unloaded a few hundred bales of hay. Some of the hay came free, donated or bought with fund dollars.

On many loads, farmers paid all or part of the transportation costs, with the fund also underwriting some delivery charges. According to Crowl, every load that came free of transportation charges was divided among several producers, as were loads of extra-high-quality hay.

Representative of the drought-stricken York County dairymen are Melvin and Barb Marks, and their daughters, Nicole, 3, and baby Erin, 1. The Marks family has been farming less than three years, and moved onto their present rented farm at Collinsville last November.

At harvest, Marks inventoried about half the feed he'd hoped to have on hand for the winter. He'd put every stalk of his 50 acres of corn, instead of the anticipated 20, into the silo. With no grain, Marks then switched to a complete feed for the cows, to save what ear corn he could for other feeding. Rye went on the 50 corn acres in the fall, toward anticipated feed shortages this spring. A major concern was running out of silage before the rye was ready, with Marks keeping close watch on silo levels and alloting feeding volume.

"We are just so appreciative; it's hard to find the words to express it," say Melvin and Barb Marks, one of 51 southern York County farm families who stretched scarce winter feed with hay from the Drought Relief Fund. As their remaining supply of bales dwindles, Melvin, with Nicole, and Barb, holding Erin, look ahead to the spring rye ready for harvest.

Hay was in short supply, too. But, looking back, this young dairy producer relates that, every time he started to figure how he was going to wring a purchase of hay out of the cash flow, the phone would ring telling him that he was due in line for a load.

"It helped stretch about three months worth of hay through the winter," he says quietly. "We are just so appreciative that it's hard to find the words to express it."

Marks acknowledges that it is hard for a farmer to admit a problem, such as the feed shortage, even though the cause was through no fault of his own. And, too, he adds that there were times when, after hearing of farmers farther South with virtually no feed, they wondered if they should keep the hay.

Due to continued "pencil pushing," frequent silage inventories, hay relief hay that helped feed young stock, and saving the very best alfalfa hay for the milking herd, Marks was able to maintain his herd production despite stretched feed supplies.

"There are still a lot of good things happening from people, lots of people with the right heart," says Crowl of the emotional boost that drought-stressed farmers found in the generous sharing efforts.

"To some people, it just meant so much; there was some livestock out there getting real hungry. For some, it was the only hay, the only feed, they had."

And drought-stricken farmers, from southern York County and unknown places across the Southeast, say "Thanks."

1986 Summer Drought Hay Fund

To Whom it May Concern

I have examined the accounting records and financial transactions of Everett Newswanger and Donald Risser coordinators and in cooperation with the Pa. Farmers Association for the 1986 Summer Drought Hay fund for the period of July 1986 thru May 1987.

I have found them satisfactory in the collection and disposition of funds for this beneficial service.

ADA Announces Dairy Recipe Contest Winners

WILLIAMSPORT — The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council recently announced the winners of its recipe contest conducted this spring.

The contest invited local dairy farmers and friends of the industry to submit recipes featuring one-half cup of dairy products or more. The recipes have been compiled in a cookbook entitled "Our Dairy Best."

Although virtually impossible to name from among the entries a better or best recipe, entries were judged on creativity, taste appeal, appearance, use of dairy products and representation of the dairy industry. For each category which appears in "Our Dairy Best," a winner was selected. The categories included beverages, soups, sauces, vegetables, cookies, pies, frozen desserts, appetizers, salads, quick breads, yeast breads, entrees and desserts.

Featuring over 100 dairy recipes, "Our Dairy Best," is a salute to June Dairy Month, which honors the dairy farm families and industry employees who produce and process our nation's milk supply. Each contributor is identified in the cookbook by name, farm name and cooperative affiliation. The book also contains dairy product storage and handling information, as well as important page markers to identify microwave and quick and easy recipes, and recipes with unusual ingredients.

For a sample of the delicious recipes contained in "Our Dairy Best," the Northeast's own dairy cookbook, send a stamped, self-addressed, legal-size envelope to: "Our Dairy Best," American Dairy Association, 1853 E. Third Street, Williamsport, PA 17701.

Morrow, Wingert Seek Election To PSU Board Of Trustees

Two individuals with extensive backgrounds in agriculture are in the running for positions on Penn State University's Board of Trustees. Nominations will be taken during the morning of May 14, at the Hetzel Union Building in University Park, and an election will follow lunch.

A 1956 graduate of Penn State, David A. Morrow was born on a dairy farm in Blair County and currently resides in State College.

An educator, veterinarian and farmer, Morrow has been a faculty member at Cornell, Colorado State and Michigan State Universities. He is president-elect of Penn State's College of Agriculture Alumni Society and is a member of the University Alumni Council.

Morrow's 193-acre Arch Spring Farm is a hay, grain, cattle and swine operation used for instruction purposes by Penn State faculty and students.

Morrow and his wife Linda are the parents of three children.

Eugene Wingert is the third generation in his family to farm the 800-acre Wingert swine, beef and crop operation in Franklin County.

In addition to farming in cooperation with his son Jere Wingert, Eugene has served as a regional director for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture for eight years. He has been on the Department of Environmental Resources Agriculture Advisory Committee for four years and has served as acting director of PDA's Bureau of Planning and Research.

In 1967 Wingert was instrumental in organizing the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council and served as PPPC's first chairman. He is currently one of 11 members of the National Pork Producers Council's executive committee, the group responsible for administering the national pork checkoff program.

Wingert served two three-year terms as director of the Franklin County Extension Service. He and his wife Betty have three grown children.

Penn State's Board of Trustees consists of 32 member, six of whom are elected to represent agricultural interests. Two individuals will be elected on Thursday to fill vacated agricultural seats on the board. The board is responsible for approving the university's activities and policies.

Standardbred Trots One Step Towards Becoming State Horse

HARRISBURG — The Standardbred horse took one step closer to becoming the official horse of Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee sent House Bill 814 out of committee on Tuesday by an affirmative vote of 18 to two. The Bill designates the Standardbred as the official horse of the commonwealth.

Committee chairman Samuel Morris said, "The Standardbred is as close to the activities of agriculture in Pennsylvania as possible." In further support of the choice of this breed for official status, he explained that the three largest Standardbred horse farms in the world are located in Pennsylvania.

Morris noted that the schoolchildren in the state have rallied behind this issue and have written en mass to him asking his support of the Standardbred.

Representative Carmel Sirianni proposed the motion that sent the bill on its way through the legislative system. After her motion she said, "I think we waste entirely too much time on these things."

PSU Agronomy Grad Uses Education To Help Poor Haitian Farmers

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STRASBURG — If you have lived in a third world country for a year and a half, you even notice the waste cans when you get back home. That's what happened to Fred Musser, Pennsylvania State University grad, who works for the Mennonite Central Commitee in Mombin Crochv, Haiti, as an agronomist in charge of ag education.

Musser was home visiting his parents Robert and Dorothy Musser here the last three weeks before returning to Haiti to finish a three year commitment with the church relief organization. "Everything is so prepackaged here," Musser said at his Lancaster County family farm home. "In Haiti I need to take my own egg carton to the market. Here you get a throw-away carton in a throw-away plastic bag that's put in a throw-away paper bag. Also the inventory in the United States stores is incredible. I was at Park City yesterday, and there you have store after store loaded down with racks full of clothing and other merchandise. At a Honda dealer I saw cycles sitting all over the place," Musser said.

In Haiti, the economic factors are so different from here at home, according to Musser. "Labor is cheap and materials are expensive. So you have only one of each item displayed in the store. When you want to make a purchase, the clerk goes to the locked storeroom to get it for you. I see a lot more trust in this country," Musser said.

Musser signed on for the relief project after graduating from PSU in 1985. He had grown up with poultry, beef and pigs at home and was active in Lampeter-Strasburg's FFA chapter. He took a few courses in international ag at Penn State.

"There are several reasons why I have gone on this project," Musser said. "Some of my reasons are more humanitarian than others. First, Haiti's needs in MCC's 10 year program for social and economic help to the Haitian community fit my qualifications. So I saw the opportunity to help fulfill the Biblical request to feed the hungry and cloth the poor. At the same time it gives me a chance to explore a different part of the world and get some experience in a more social type environment."

"In third world countries, the educated persons are not interested in working in the countryside among the farmers," Musser said. "If a person by luck and by having wealthy parents with connections happens to get an education as an agronomist, the last thing he would want to do would go back to his hometown to teach illterate farmers. So there is no Extension Service in Haiti, and that's the missing link that MCC is trying to fulfill. Farming in Haiti is done like it has been for many generations–on the side of the hill using a machete and a hoe."

"Traditionally, you burn the old foliage from your garden, which we call the slope. There is no level ground. After the old grasses are burned, you hoe the ground to a very shallow depth, maybe scratching only a half inch of the surface. Then you plant with your machete digging a hole and planting several grains of corn before you cover it. You hoe it once and waite for the harvest. That's the traditional ag practive in Haiti," Musser said. "Because of the steep slopes, soil erotion is a major problem. When you burn off all the organic matter, there is nothing to help stop soil erotion. This erotion takes away all of the ash as well as the soil. You lose not only the soil, but also the fertility as well."

"It's hard to get farmers, even in this country, to get excited about soil conservation because it shows no real short-term profit. So we have found that a two-pronged plan helps encourage farmers to develop soil fertility as well as soil conservation. We make conservation appealing by helping to increase soil fertility."

"We first teach the farmers how to make an A-frame that can be used as a surveyor's level. You use this A-frame with a string and a stone to form a plumb line so you can find the contour line on the slope. You pivot the A-frame along the contour of the slope marking where the plumb shows level. This forms the outline of the conservation ramp or terrace. The farmers then manually turn the grass under with a shovel. The little mound row that is formed stops the water and at the same time the organic matter can rot to improve soil fertility for the next year."

"The farm crops include corn, beans, peanuts, sweet potatoes and sorghum. People live in single-family dwellings often sharing their yards. The rainfall is about 40" equivalent to the rainfall in the Lancaster area. But since it is hot all year, it seems dryer," Musser says. "However, there is enough moisture to get decent crops."

The program is based on community groups of about 10 people in each group who meet every other week to discuss problems such as health, Bible study or agricultural production. These groups make a garden together or build a chicken house as part of their learning process. The groups are encouraged by leaders called animators, which is equivalent to a motivator. The animators are in charge of teaching the lessons.

MCC came into Haiti in 1979 to accomplish a 10-year plan. The first five years were spent developing these groups with their animators. Then the groups needed more advanced trainng.

Farm Road Safety

Year-Round Heavy Traffic Flow Creates Major Problem

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

It happens to everyone.

The clouds dance across the deep-blue sky aided by mild breezes. The thermometer registers a balmy 75 degrees on a sun-filled day.

And the road beckons.

The car zips over the hills, through the valleys, around the bend and — suddenly a tractor lies dead ahead. The driver throws a quick glance into the rear-view mirrors, he peers ahead and hurriedly passes the farm vehicle, hopefully without incident.

Farmers have been both the passer and the passee on the highways. While they are fully aware of the road hazards, the accidents always happen to the other guy. Or do they.

That's what one Berks County dairymen used to think. And one bright, sunny morning last year he suddenly became the other guy.

David Longacre, Hereford, is just now recovering from an accident which witnesses claim probably should have killed him, judging from the wreckage. Both the tractor which he was driving and the baler he was towing were considered totaled by his insurance company.

Longacre's farm sits next to Route 100, a major thoroughfare linking the industrial areas of the Lehigh Valley and the Delaware Valley. "It's a dangerous place," he admits. "If there is a couple of cars in a row, I don't go out because one of the cars is bound to try and pass the whole row."

The morning of June 30, the day of the accident, Longacre intended bale a field with a southern exposure and which received the morning sun. "It was a nice, cool, airy day — perfect for baling."

When he pulled out, no vehicle was coming in either direction. Longacre's attention was drawn to the beautiful weather, his plans for the day and the side of the road. He was watching for glass on the shoulder so as to avert a punctured tire and oblivious to the danger behind him.

"There's so many close calls you don't want to look back," he said. "There's nothing you could do anyway." At times, he admits, he has considered what he would do if he was hit.

He was driving along, minding his own business, that morning at 8:30 when "just like that a force hit me that pushed everything forward," Longacre recalled. A tractor-trailer had crashed into the baler. The driver hit him at an estimated speed of 55 to 60 miles per hour and did not apply his brakes until after the impact, Longacre explained. The vehicle then skidded over 200 feet.

Longacre attempted to control the tractor after impact to prevent a collision with oncoming traffic or the guardrails. When he feared the tractor would overturn he tumbled from the farm implement and rolled. When he stood up, he found himself amazed that everything about himself appeared to be in working order. Longacre remembers looking at his equipment and saying in disbelief, "It's gone."

The crash had flipped the baler over the guardrail, snapped the baler's hitch, blown three of the tractor tires and ripped the fourth one from the farm vehicle.

Although he did not see the initial need, Longacre consented to go to the hospital in an ambulance. By the end of the day, he noted, he could only move his right arm. X-rays revealed Longacre had suffered two crushed ribs in the back and two broken ribs in the front. He had 22 cuts, although none required stitches, a major brush burn on his back, and bruises from head to toe. A back condition for which he was taking medication was also worsened by the accident.

"I figured I'd be back home to bale that day yet," Longacre recounted. Two days later he returned home from the hospital and was ordered not to do any work for 30 days. His back condition now required surgery and this winter he underwent an operation for a herniated disc.

David Longacre surveys his wrecked baler. Last year he was hit from behind by a tractor-trailer while towing the baler. He was fortunate to walk away from the accident.

The driver of the tractor-trailer was immediately dismissed by the trucking company. Longacre said it was his fourth accident with the firm. Longacre's insurance has covered his expenses to date and last month he was notified that the trucking company started to make inquires as to the extent of the damages.

"You figure you'll hear the brakes screech or they'll go around you. You don't expect to get run over," the Berks dairyman said. "There's not much you can about it."

Statistics

Longacre's accident was one of 114 reported accidents that involved farm tractors in 1986, according to Lisa McMullen, assistant press secretary for Pennsylvania Department of Transportation. Five of these accidents included a fatality, 74 included an injury, and the remaining 35 were listed as property damage.

During 1986 there were 18 accidents that involved motorized farm equipment. One of these accidents included a fatality, 15 included an injury and the remaining two were listed as property damage.

The third category of slow moving vehicles which McMullen had accident statistics for was horse and buggy. During 1986 there were 60 total accidents involving horse and buggy. Three were listed as fatalities, 48 as injuries and nine as property damage.

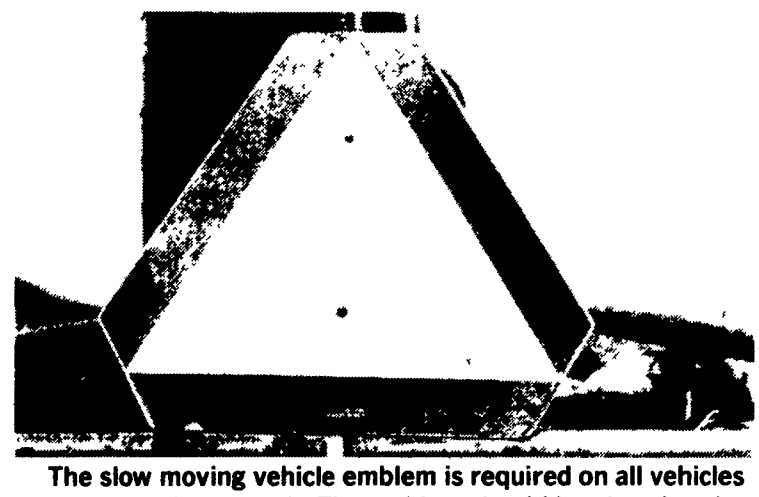
McMullen noted that in 1985 there were 116 total accidents involving farm tractors, 13 total accidents involving motorized farm equipment, and 43 total accidents involving horse and buggy.

In 1984 there were 89 total accidents reported which involved farm tractors, 14 total accidents which involved motorized farm equipment, and 55 which involved horse and buggy.

McMullen explained that the number of accidents for all motorized vehicles has increased slightly in the past two years. She credits this to the increased amount of traffic.

Why?

Sargent Joseph Monville of the Pennsylvania State Police, Lancaster barracks, credited the increased frequency which farmers find themselves in peril to the lack of a tourist season. "Traffic is high all year long. There is very little waning in the fall," he said.



The slow moving vehicle emblem is required on all vehicles traveling under 25 mph. The emblem should be placed at the rear of the vehicle, near the center of the equipment and two to six feet above the ground.

The general motoring public is unaware of what the slow moving vehicle emblem signifies, he noted as a major reason for the problems facing farmers as they attempt to cultivate and plant their field. "They don't realize that vehicle is traveling under 25 miles per hour."

"There's a lot of ignorance out there. They don't realize that you're going that slow," Longacre said.

Monville explained that when tourists come over a crest in the road, they are on a buggy, which averages 12 mph, before they can react and the tourists skid into it. "When a two-ton vehicle slams into wood...there's not much you can do. It's amazing there's not more fatalities," Monville commented.

He cited inattentive operators as another leading cause of accidents. They are driving too fast for conditions or pass at inappropriate locations. Monville explained that the too fast for conditions clause went beyond the weather. It includes any area where 500 feet of clear vision is not available after the pass has been completed, such as on curves or hills.

Monville noted that in Lancaster County farmers are unique in that they live in the third largest tourist area in the country and the large use of horse-drawn vehicles.

A majority of the accidents that occur involve left-hand turns, Dave Muzzy explained. The coordinator of claims for the Pennsylvania Farmer's Association noted the motorist collides with the farmer on the left or right side. This type of accident accounts for the largest percentage of the farm claims, he noted.

Motorists are most likely to (Turn to Page A39)

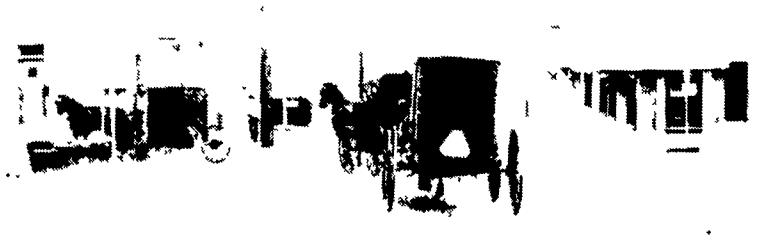
The emblem must appear on all farm equipment. One of the largest problems with the emblem is that the public is unaware of its significance. This is due to abuse and misuse of the emblem.

Extra time must be allotted when pulling a farm vehicle out in heavy traffic areas.



Horse-drawn vehicles are categorized as slow moving vehicles and must display the slow moving vehicle emblem.

Mow faster without plugging.

DISC MOWERS

With a Deutz-Allis 7' or 8½' SM series disc mower you can keep up a steady clip acre after acre without plugging. You'll get a clean, uniform cut, even if your crop is down, wet and tangled, thanks to rotating discs with paired knives that overlap from disc to disc.

Knives also extend beyond the ends of the cutter bar to separate mowed crop from standing material. This prevents logging and plugging. You can do two jobs at once with the 7' or 10½' disc mower conditioner. Choose from three types of conditioners to fit your needs.

Drum mowers in 5½' and 7' widths, feature the same non-plug cutting performance with added strengths designed in for heavy mowing applications.

Square off with 100 strokes a minute.

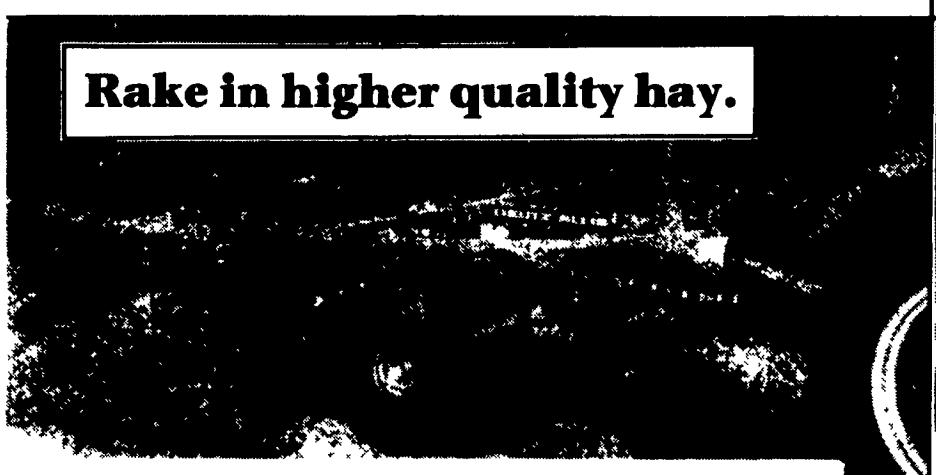
SQUARE BALERS

The HD 490 square baler from Deutz-Allis is your answer for high capacity baling. The rugged plunger assembly glides smoothly on ten sealed roller bearings at 100 strokes a minute! With its "big appetite" 77" wide pickup, this high production baler makes short work of big baling jobs.

The HD 490 baler is built tough for long life and minimum maintenance. Instead of annoying shear bolts, protection from shock loads is provided by a double slip clutch. You spend more time baling, less time stopping to replace flywheel shear bolts. Eight ball twine box means more bales before restocking your twine supply.

See the high capacity HD 490 at your Deutz-Allis dealer.

Rake in higher quality hay.

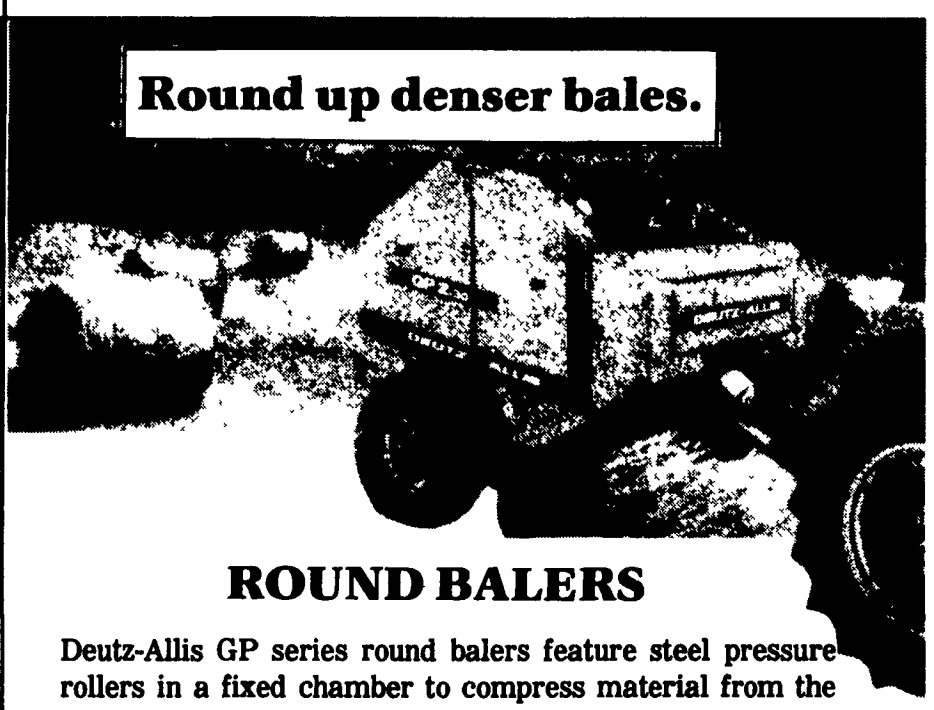


ROTARY RAKES

Deutz-Allis KS series rotary rakes help you get the most quality out of your hay. Their gently sweeping action eliminates beating, twisting or roping. You get a loose, high and fluffy windrow for fast, thorough drying and curing. And the gentle action reduces shatter and leaf loss. To keep rain from spoiling your crop, consider a rotary tedder. It's the ideal way to accelerate the drying process, especially after a rain or heavy dew.

See the full line of rotary rakes, tedders and the combination tedder/rake at your Deutz-Allis dealer.

Round up denser bales.



ROUND BALERS

Deutz-Allis GP series round balers feature steel pressure rollers in a fixed chamber to compress material from the outside in. You get smooth, densely packed bales with a firm outer wrap that resists weathering and locks nutrients in.

The wide 67" hydraulic pickup features a baffle plate that provides positive feeding even in short crops. You get a cleaner field and all the hay in the bale. A standard bale discharge bar saves you valuable baling time. A time-saving automatic tie-off system and automatic chain oiling make GP balers a pleasure to own and operate. Available in 4'x4', 4'x5' and 5'x6' sizes.

$250,000 Gift To Aid Milk Processing Research

UNIVERSITY PARK — A $250,000 gift from William and Lois Dietrich of Reading could help Penn State researchers improve the quality of milk and other dairy products.

Discovering better methods of processing dairy products is the job of a bioprocessing engineer, and that's a position Penn State soon hopes to add to its food science faculty.

"By modifying the protein, fat and carbohydrate components of milk, we can make it a more versatile ingredient in other foods," said Dr. Lowell Satterlee, head of Penn State's food science department.

"If we can improve the foaming properties of milk, we can develop better whipped toppings, tastier candy bars and creamier ice creams," he added. "And by improving milk's baking properties, we can improve the color, flavor and texture of bread and other baked goods."

The $250,000 Dietrich gift will help the University attract a top scientist and researcher to focus on this type of research. Their gift has established the William and Lois Dietrich Professorship in Bioengineering, which will provide money for salary, research assistance, equipment and other key support services.

Satterlee said the bioprocessing engineer will apply new technologies in molecular biology, microbiology, enzymology and engineering to the processing of dairy products. The new faculty member will work closely with the colleges of science and engineering and Penn State's Biotechnology Institute.

In addition to modifying the various components of milk, the bioprocessing engineer will use new, more efficient microorganisms and enzymes in the fermentation process. This should also result in improved processing and better products, according to Satterlee.

"Cheeses, yogurts and sour creams are all made through the fermentation process," he said.

A 1947 Penn State graduate in dairy science, William Dietrich is president of Dietrich Milk Products Inc., the largest producer of dried whole milk in the nation. Lois Dietrich is a 1947 Penn State graduate in psychology.

Dietrich Milk Products, which also manufactures butter, supplies bakers, candy makers, ice cream processors and other food manufacturers with powdered milk products. Among its customers are the Hershey Chocolate Co. and M&M-Mars.

Dietrich's father, Claude R. Dietrich, founded the company in 1926. By 1969, the younger Dietrich had shifted the company from a traditional dairy to a manufacturer of milk products.

Dietrichs have been active in the Berks Campus Advisory Board and the Penn State Alumni Association. They also are members of the Mount Nittany Society, which recognizes the highest levels of individual giving to the University. Their two daughters are Penn State graduates. In 1984, William was named an alumni fellow of the College of Agriculture. He also is a member of The Campaign for Penn State's national campaign committee for biotechnology.

The Campaign for Penn State is the University's five-year fund drive to raise $200 million from private sources for academic program enhancement.

United Announces Bonus Program

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — United Dairy Cooperative Services, Inc. announced a new quality incentive bonus program for their members. United, in cooperation with Dietrich's Milk Products Inc. of Middlebury Center, Pa., has developed a quality incentive bonus that will enhance their members pay price.

Effective with shipments of milk in June 1987, United members will receive an additional 8 cents per hundredweight for milk that meets certain quality standards. These standards exceed those of the United States Public Health Service required for all dairy farmers. However, the standards set by United are readily obtainable by the producers.

Conscientious dairy farmers will not only benefit by direct payment for producing quality milk, but will also benefit in increased production per cow through better management.

James G. Patsos, president of United, in announcing the new quality incentive bonus stated, "We are pleased with the new quality bonus program arranged with Dietrich's. This follows on the heels of our recent announcement of a new accelerated payment schedule for our producers. We continue to strive for the best possible marketing opportunity for our members. United is diligent in its effort to be a leader in imaginative marketing of their member's milk."

M-W Price Tumbles 24 Cents, Drops Below Support Price

UNIVERSITY PARK — Decreasing milk prices and increasing milk production in March was eerily reminiscent of the problem which the current buyout program sought to alleviate.

In March the Minnesota-Wisconsin price dipped below the support price by 4 cents. At $11.03 the March 1987 price remained 1 cent higher than the March 1986 price of $11.02 and 24 cents lower than the February 1987 figure, according to Dr. Jack Kirkland, Penn State dairy marketing specialist.

Total production in the 21 major dairy states rose to its highest level since July 1986. The reporting states produce 85 percent of the milk in the nation. Production stood at 10.4 billion pounds for the nation in March compared to 9.3 billion in February. Kirkland noted an encouraging sign was that the total production is down from the March 1986 production figure of 10.7 billion pounds.

"Things are looking good for the dairy industry," Kirkland said, citing the 76 cent increase in the Pennsylvania all-milk wholesale price from March 1986 to March 1987. "I think this year is going to be a good year overall for dairy farmers," he added.

The Commodity Credit Corporation's purchases for the shortened week of April 13 to 15 were down substantially compared to the same period of the previous year, Kirkland explained. The purchases dropped from 431 million pounds of milk products to 93 million pounds.

Butter prices increased slightly while the price of 40-pound cheese blocks fell slightly. "Usually they move together," Kirkland said. "This is the first time they have changed like this."

"The change," the Penn State marketing specialist explained, "will tell which item has the most impact on the M-W price. Butter was thought to have but cheese recently appears to have the greater impact."

"The market is really volatile right now," he said. "It is hard to predict what the M-W will do." Kirkland predicted the price will stabilize and changes in either direction will be small.

"Commercial stocks of butter and cheese are relatively low compared to last year," Kirkland explained. He speculated that buyers will be building stocks this summer to hedge against a fall price increase.

Kirkland noted the remaining portion of the buyout program, 75 percent completed, may reduce milk production more than many people anticipate. Of the remaining animals to be slaughtered in accordance with the provisions of the buyout program, Kirkland estimated 20 percent of these animals are milk cows. "There was no incentive for the dairymen to keep and feed heifers and calves."

In Pennsylvania, total milk production increased by 3 percent from March 1986 to March 1987. "The buyout program has not had as much of an impact on Pennsylvania. I think Pennsylvania dairymen will continue to increase production," the dairy marketing specialist explained. Production in the other Northeast states will remain the same, he predicted.

A contributing factor to the total increase in production is the increased production per cow.

Production per cow in Pennsylvania for March 1987 was 1,205 pounds compared to 1,140 pounds in March 1986, an increase of 5.7 percent, Kirkland reported. In the nation production per cow increased by 2.8 percent for the same period to 1,180 pounds in March 1987.

Despite the increasing production numbers, Kirkland does not think the impending spring flush will have a strong, detrimental impact on prices.

If the support price drops, the marketing specialist explained, it would be to try to make dairying unprofitable for the areas producing the surplus. He noted a drop in the support price does not mandate a drop in the M-W price. If market conditions are tight, the M-W price will remain strong. A drop in support price would lower the price which seller receive when selling to the government.

Dairymen in California and Texas are aggressively expanding their dairy facilities. The government purchases in these areas are high, Kirkland explained.

He does not foresee aggressive expansion occurring in the Northeast. Most dairymen have their facilities filled to capacity. They are not going to build. They may add two or three cows, but that's all, he noted.

"It's too early to tell what's down the road in 1988. If the support price drops, it will be a political decision, not one based on the market." Kirkland added, "The critical thing is what they expect purchases to be in 1988."

The situation for 1988 is still very volatile, many changes are happening, increasing the difficulty of accurately predicting what will occur, he noted.

Prices in the three Federal Orders covering Pennsylvania and the one State Order increased from last year, however, the prices declined from February this year.

BVD Confirmed In Three Northeast Counties

HARRISBURG — The Department of Agriculture advises dairy farmers in Bradford, Wyoming and Susquehanna Counties to take extra sanitation precautions to avoid unintentional spread of Bovine Viral Diarrhea.

BVD has been confirmed to three dairy herds and is suspected in seven others in the border area of those three counties. BVD is not a new disease and is not uncommon in Pennsylvania. However, cattle in the three affected counties apparently have not been exposed to the virus for many years and may lack immunity to the current outbreak.

BVD is a common cause of diarrhea and high mortality in calves, especially dairy calves. It is a less frequent cause of acute enteris and/or respiratory disease with substantial mortality in adult cattle. BVD may result in depression of the immune system, consequently infected animals, and sometimes recently vaccinated animals, are more susceptible to other infectious diseases. BVD is not a threat to human health.

At least eight animals have been lost in the current three county outbreak. Post mortems were performed at PDA's Tunkhannock Laboratory and at Cornell. Penn State University serum samples confirm the virus as Bovine Viral Diarrhea.

Field investigators from Penn State University have been investigating the BVD outbreak and alerting farmers to the problem and to precautions to minimize effects.

Dairy farmers, cattlemen, and veterinarians suspecting BVD can obtain diagnostic assistance and management advice from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Penn State University.

BVD vaccines are an effective way to protect calves but modified live vaccines must be used with care in pregnant animals to avoid vaccine-inducted abortions. There are no specific effective treatments for BVD other than general supportive care.

BVD is not a reportable disease, PDA does not quarantine because of it and does not indemnify losses.

Farmers can reduce their risk by minimizing farm to farm movement of equipment, trucks, and livestock. Only people who must travel from herd to herd should do so and should utilize rubber boots and disinfect footwear. Farmers with herds acutely affected by BVD should protect their neighbors through proper disposal of dead animals and aborted fetuses and by preventing dogs and cats from travelling to adjacent farms.

SURFIX®

A Non-ionic Spreader-Sticker Adjuvant For Pesticide Sprays

...we recommend Surfix!

Sometimes you just have to spray, even under the worst conditions. That's one reason you need Surfix® spreader/sticker. Surfix keeps your pesticide on the leaf, through wind and sun and rain. It forms a bond between droplet and leaf surface that resists washoff.

Surfix can improve your spray application under most conditions. It reduces the evaporation of spray droplets, sticks droplets onto the leaf surface and spreads those droplets for more uniform coverage.

Surfix contains more active ingredients than most other spreader/stickers...one-third more than most competitors. This means it takes less Surfix to do the job.

Surfix is the type of adjuvant recommended by basic manufacturers on many pesticide labels. So, when your pesticide label recommends "spreader/sticker" we recommend Surfix.

Berks County Dairyman Tackles Convention With Zeal

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

MERTZTOWN — Chairing a convention is not for everyone, but it is a challenge William Zollers has always wanted to attempt. The other year he got his chance and is the chairman of this year's national Guernsey convention slated for Pittsburgh, May 22 to 25.

"I always wanted to do something for the breed. This is a way of contributing to the breed I have always had a love for," the amiable Berks County dairyman said.

Zollers nutured his love for the Guernsey cow when he was a teenager at a neighboring registered Guernsey farm in Ambler. While he was not from a farm, he lived in a farm area and Zollers worked on David Kennedy's Guernsey farm. He worked with several other breeds but never lost his affection for the Guernsey cow. "It's something I can't explain," he confesses.

He started farming in Berks County 12 years ago part time and devoted his life to it fulltime five years ago.

Previously, Zollers was employed for 17 years in veterinary sales. He traveled across the United States and Canada and sold to foreign markets. During this time he received the basic training for his current role as convention chairman.

As a sales representative Zollers attended national, state and local conventions. At these events, he noted, he would chair a committee or assist in some way. However, Zollers said, he never chaired an entire convention.

He calls his present chairman position very rewarding. Zollers credits his wife, Sandra, with suggesting he work with the convention because of his prior convention experience."

The national convention required about 20 hours of his time each week in January, February and the first half of March, Zollers estimates, to finalize the details. "My routine was to get the morning milking done, eat breakfast around 9, and work on the convention until noon." Some days he would be gone for 24 hours to meet with individuals in the other parts of the state.

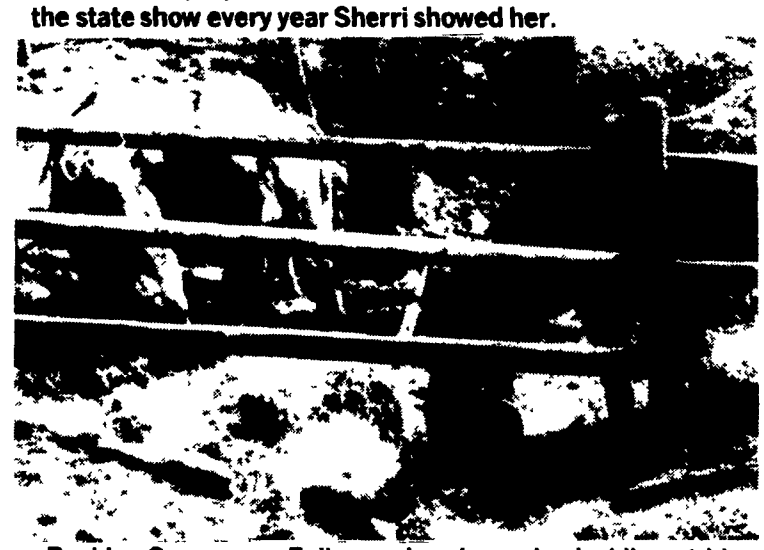
Zollers explained his entire family has helped in the convention preparations in one form or another. Sandra has helped with secretarial work after teaching elementary school. Their daughter, Sherri, is president of the Pennsylvania youth group and has worked with the youth convention. Zollers adds that their two sons help with farm chores when possible to permit him to take trips to work on the convention.

The Zollers' three children were a motivating factor in acquiring a farm, he explained. "We wanted to raise our children in the country so they would have the opportunity to join 4-H and FFA." The herd grew from the original Guernsey calf 4-H projects, he explained.

Zollers thought that when the children started showing they would raise a heifer, breed it, sell it, and start with a new heifer. "We found it wasn't easy getting rid of cows and the kids wanted to show a string," he noted. Which lead to the family's start in the milk business.

Stone Mill Farm received its name from this building located near the end of Zollers farm lane.

One of the cows to receive special treatment on the farm is Sherri's 4-H project "Karen." Zollers noted the cow went to the state show every year Sherri showed her.



Besides Guernseys, Zollers enjoys horse back riding at his Mertztown farm.

Then the children started going off to college and five years ago he quit his sales job and started farming fulltime.

"I was 41 at the time and I knew I wasn't going to get any younger," he commented.

Farming was always a dream for Zollers. But, it was a family decision to move from Montgomery County and establish Stone Mill Farms, located just outside of Mertztown.

Yet, Zollers relates, "I don't expect the kids to take over the farm. If they would want to, I'd look for a larger farm." He added, "I'm not out to be the biggest, I just want to do a good job." Maintaining a scaled-down dairy is different from the norm. However, Zollers stated, "It's not right for everyone but it is right for me."

In his present location, Zollers notes he is limited in how big he can become. "It was a dream. I always wanted to farm. I just didn't dream big enough," he laughs. The farm was originally 17 acres. They purchased 13 additional acres several years ago. Some of his rented land is six miles away, limiting the feasibility of running equipment back and forth.

Zoller must buy some grain but is able to raise all the necessary forages. Due to a lack of silos, he feeds all of his forage as dried hay. In addition to hay, his herd's ration includes ground ear corn, a 34 percent topdressing of soybean meal and cooked soybeans.

Presently, he is milking 30 cows and farming close to 120 acres, 30 of which he owns.

"It is a day-to-day financial struggle," Zollers admits, "just like everyone else."

He reflected on how things might be if he had stayed in sales. "We could have more money, but not a better life," Zollers said. "I have never been sorry for making the change. It's a great life."

Zollers served as a 4-H leader until last year, resigning as leader when Sherri graduated from the program. Zollers called his experience as 4-H leader "one of the greatest times. I was sorry to see it end." However, he jokes "I'm looking forward to grandchildren and starting over again in 4-H."

In the future, he explains, "I'd like to perfect what I have. I don't want to get larger." Zollers commented, "I'd like to be an asset to the dairy industry."

One of the ways he noted he can be an asset is chairing committees when asked. As chairman of the national Guernsey convention, Zollers say with characteristic zeal that he is anticipating a great convention. "I'm real excited and I can't wait until it gets here." However, he grins and admits he'll be glad when its over.

Zollers checks on one of the young calves at his Mertztown farm. He presently milks 30 cows averaging between 11,000 and 12,000 pounds of milk.

Leprino/Eastern Announce Expansion, Cash Premiums

WAVERLY, N.Y. — Leprino Foods and Eastern Milk Producers jointly announced an expansion program at their mozzarella cheese plant here, and a new cash premium program that will boost farmers' income.

A $6 million expansion and renovation program is underway at the plant, said Cy Carne, a Leprino vice president.

"This program entails new equipment, replacement equipment and improved facilities, including additional storage space," Carne said.

He noted that the expansion would enable Leprino to continue to meet the growing needs of its cheese customers, and also secure present employment.

"Combined with our other cheese plant in Horseheads the local Leprino workforce totals 330 people," Carne said, with an annual payroll in excess of $6 million.

Eastern President Earl Forwood, a dairy farmer from Hop Bottom, Pa., said the new premium program would put an additional "three quarters of a million dollars" in the pockets of farmers shipping milk to the cheese plants.

He said the premium program was three-pronged, and included a 10-cents per hundredweight competitive premium, up to another 20 cents per hundredweight for quality, and up to an additional 70 cents per hundredweight for milk with high protein content.

Eastern General Manager Michael Donovan noted that every farmer who ships milk to the cheese plants through Eastern will get the 10-cent competitive premium, and that "the majority of farmers will also qualify" for the quality premiums.

"In practical terms," Donovan said, "an average farmer with a herd of 40 to 50 cows producing 600,000 pounds of milk a year, could receive $1,200 to $1,800 in additional income."

That extra income could jump to over $5,000 for an average farmer with a high protein herd who also qualifies for the protein premium, he said.

Donovan added, "We are also offering special fall premiums aimed at boosting milk production in the autumn when milk supplies have traditionally been short. Farmers will receive a premium of $1 per hundredweight for milk that exceeds spring production, and they also will receive a 40-cent premium for fall milk that exceeds last fall's production levels."

Donovan said the new cash premium program, combined with the fall premiums, would provide "a much-needed economic boost to the farmers of the region."

Carne noted that Leprino's $6 million payroll was only part of the economic picture for the New York-Pennsylvania Twin Tier region. He said the picture would not be complete without taking into account the $80 million that Leprino paid for farmers' milk.

The cheese plants at Waverly and Horseheads are owned by the member-farmers of Eastern, and are operated by Leprino under a 20-year lease arrangement.

Eastern provided approximately 700 million pounds of milk to the plants last year. Mozzarella cheese production totaled about 70 million pounds, with the majority of that coming from the Waverly facility, which is the largest mozzarella plant in the U.S.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

— Frosts late last week did some damage to exceptionally heavy fruit and strawberry buds in the state, but a Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Survey released Wednesday by the State Department of Agriculture said it was still too early to estimate damages accurately. The Department said early set tomato plants suffered 30 to 100 percent kill in Berks County.

Temperatures averaged about five degrees below normal for the week ended Monday, and 15 to 20 degrees under readings for the previous week. The lowest temperature was 22 degrees in Philipsburg, Centre County, on May 4.

— Lancaster County bee keepers were warned by William Clark, extension entomologist, to pull bees out of orchards before fruit spraying for insects begins.

Modern poisons used to kill harmful insects will kill bees, he said. It is best to move the hives at least a mile away from the orchard.

— The Department of Agriculture announced today that it is distributing to the food industry practical suggestions for assuring continued operation of commercial food facilities in the event of an enemy attack.

— The Pennsylvania State Grange is bitterly protesting the action of the United States Department of Agriculture in reducing the wheat acreage allocated to Pennsylvania farmers for the 1958 crop season by 13,000 acres it was announced here today by S. Ralph Wanner, master of the Lancaster County Pomona Grange No. 71.

— A first and a second year member of the Farm and Home 4-H Electrical Club tied for top honors at the club roundup at the Greist Building in Lancaster Tuesday night.

The two members, both with 94 out of a possible 100 point score for the year, are Joanne L. Denlinger, R5 Lancaster, and Ivan R. Yost, R2 Narvon.

Special Haying, Grazing Approved For York Co. ACR Land

YORK — York County has been approved for special haying and grazing due to drought conditions in 1986. Generally low hay production in 1986 and normal use over winter have reduced hay stocks on hand and will cause earlier than normal feeding of forage crops in 1987.

York County farmers participating in the 1987 Grain Program may now harvest hay for personal use or sale from ACR acreage and also graze year-round. Charges for forage crops that are sold from harvested ACR acreages may only cover normal harvesting costs. Farmers that let other livestock producers graze ACR may not charge for the grazing.

There are several steps that farmers must take to meet the program provisions. The farmer must designate acreage for ACR harvest in the York ASCS office. He then must sign a register indicating intended use. This must be done prior to any harvesting or grazing. Finally, the ACR designated for special use must be eligible as ACR meaning row cropped or ACR in 2 of the last 3 years. The applicant must be prepared to give necessary cropping history to determine eligibility.

One exception to the 2 of 3 year rule is that an old field of hay may be used for ACR if a like acreage of hay was established in fall 1986 or spring 1987 and both fields are normally rotated with row crops. The new field of hay must have been row cropped, 2 of the last 3 years to allow harvest on the old field of hay.

Hooked On Horns:

This Berks County Cattleman Thinks Texas Longhorns Are The Right Breed In The Long Run

BY JACK HUBLEY

FREDERICKSBURG — Unlike most cattlemen these days, Don Neidigh always liked cattle with horns. When he was eight years old his aunt and uncle bought him a belt buckle with a picture of a Texas Longhorn. He still has that buckle...along with 50 head of the real thing on his 50-acre farm near Fredericksburg, Berks County.

Neidigh came by his first longhorns somewhat by accident when a pair of steers hit the auction block at a horse sale in Dillsburg. After 10 years of raising longhorns, he's sold on the breed; so much so, that last year he teamed up with Bill Mummert of Spring Grove to establish the Northeast Texas Longhorn Association, the first such organization to be formed in the East. According to Mummert, who serves as association president, NTLA has about 30 members from 16 states.

Any fan of old western movies has probably suspected Texas Longhorns played an important role in feeding the nation during the 19th century. Actually, Columbus brought the ancestors of what were to become Texas Longhorns to the West Indies in 1493. In 1521 these horned Andalusian cattle were taken to Mexico, and descendants of the original herd were driven north into Texas in 1690, where they received their new name.

Despite the sparse vegetation and predators as imposing as grizzly bears, the cattle thrived on the open range. Enterprising cattlemen rounded them up and hired young cowboys to drive the tough, rangy animals north to railroads in Kansas.

With the introduction of the faster growing British breeds, however, the longhorn's popularity declined, and the golden age of the American cowboy ended during the latter part of the 1800s.

In 1927 concerned conservationists convinced Congress to come to the rescue of the vanishing breed. Some of the few remaining pure longhorns were moved to the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge in Oklahoma, and a second government herd was established at the Fort Niobrara National Wildlife Refuge in Nebraska.

Today's longhorns trace their ancestry to one of these government herds, or to one of six other private herds, according to Wanda Pridgen, sales director of Dickinson Ranch in Colorado, a well-known longhorn breeding operation. Named after the individuals who started them, these herds include Butler, Phillips, Graves Peeler, Marks, Yates and Wright.

Preserving the breed was a wise move, according to Pridgen, who points out that longhorns have much to offer the modern cattle industry. "We say they're groomed by nature," she says, noting that longhorns survive well on a Spartan diet and utilize their food efficiently. "They're basically the goats of the cattle industry."

An austere diet doesn't seem to reduce their life expectancy and vigor, either, since their reproductive period is significantly longer than other breeds. "We've had a 30-year-old cow give birth to her twenty-ninth calf," Pridgen says.

The longhorns' dark skin pigmentation makes them resistant to hoof rot and pinkeye, and the breed is well-known for calving ease and mothering ability.

With consumers shopping for leaner cuts these days, Pridgen says longhorns' ability to produce leaner crossbred cattle makes them right for the times. But she also maintains that a purebred Texas Longhorn can be a tasty animal. In addition to working at Dickinson, she buys leftover purebred commercial longhorn bulls, feeds them out and butchers them at weights between 950 and 1,050 pounds. She points out that her animals marble well but don't produce large amounts of backfat. The meat grades Good-plus to Choice-minus and tastes excellent, she says.

Pridgen sells about 20 "organically grown" carcasses to health food stores and individuals each year. "It's very lean, tender and full-flavored," says the cattlewoman.

From a production standpoint, longhorns seem to be about as maintenance-free as a beef animal can get, says Don Neidigh. Neidigh's herd is out on pasture year-round, living on alfalfa hay, pasture grass and protein and mineral supplements.

Despite their home-on-the-range existence, the cattle remain remarkably healthy, Neidigh says. "I never had a veterinarian out here for a sick animal," he says. Neidigh points out that calving season hasn't been a problem either, since his cows have little trouble giving birth to the small 50- to 60-pound calves.

Best of all, longhorns pass their virtues on to the next generation and help to produce beef animals in step with industry demands. Neidigh points out that a pen of Texas Longhorn-Salers crossbreds won the carcass division at the prestigious National Western Stock Show in Denver this year.

Neidigh says that semen is available from longhorn bulls, including his own herd sires, Magic Marker and Impressive Copy. Longhorns are known for variability in markings, and the 1,750-pound Magic Marker bull is a prime (or at least Good-plus) example of just how variable a longhorn's hide can be. The bull registration certificate lists seven colors on his pelt. The bull was bred by Wright Texas Longhorn Ranch in Robstown, Texas, while Impressive Copy has WR (Wichita Refuge) and Texas Ranger breeding in his pedigree.

At first glance those long, distinctive horns seem to have no more utilitarian value than a rainbow-colored pelt, but Wanda Pridgen points out that the horns are a reliable indicator of the purity of the breed. While the horns on cows and bull usually measure less than four feet, adult steers may carry headgear spanning six feet or more.

But, despite their awesome appearance, the horns usually don't become a safety hazard, says Neidigh, who notes that he has only been "bumped" once by a cow. "I tag all the calves by myself and the cows won't bother me," he says.

Neidigh likes to point out that in this age of bald-headed cattle, horns still aren't without their merits. On pasture the cows are well equipped to protect calves from predators, such as coyotes, which are apparently on the increase in Pennsylvania. And rodeo cowboys aren't likely to switch to cattle without handles for a steer wrestling event.

But those who still aren't sold on beef cattle with pointed headgear will be happy to know that a Texas Longhorn bull produces polled calves on the first cross when mated to a polled cow.

"I think the cattle will make a real good comeback," Neidigh sums up, adding that longhorns offer a package of traits that can help put the beef industry back in the race for consumers' dollars.

Best of all, this package comes complete with handles.

Anyone interested in learning more about Texas Longhorns is invited to attend a longhorn field day on May 30 at Hutchinson's Piney Hill Farm near Bluemont, Virginia. For more information on the field day, the longhorn breed, or to schedule a visit to the Neidigh farm, call Don Neidigh, 717-865-5239.

Don Neidigh's bull Magic Marker is a good example of how colorful longhorns can be. There are seven colors identified on his coat.

Despite the formidable headgear, longhorns are generally gentle. Neidigh and Julie demonstrate just how gentle they can be.

Polled calves are the end result when longhorn bulls are bred to polled cows. These two calves are out of one of Neidigh's bulls and Angus cows.

This first-calf heifer had no quarrel with Neidigh when he eartagged her offspring, but potential predators such as dogs and coyotes aren't tolerated.

USDA Terminates Proceedings To Amend Federal Milk Orders

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture terminated proceedings on proposals to amend seven southeastern federal milk marketing orders.

The affected milk marketing orders are Georgia, Tennessee Valley, Louisville-Lexington-Evansville, Alabama-West Florida, New Orleans-Mississippi, Greater Louisiana and Nashville, Tenn.

The proposals would have paid milk handlers from proceeds due producers for marketing services considered to be of marketwide benefit, said Kenneth A. Gilles, assistant secretary for marketing and inspection services.

Gilles said evidence from an extended public hearing indicated the extensive amount of intermarket milk movements in the area would result in producers in the seven markets bearing the burden of balancing milk supplies for handlers not associated with the local markets. According to Gilles, this would impose an inquitable financial burden on the producers who supply these seven markets. For this reason, Gilles said, the proposals were denied and the proceeding terminated.

The hearing to consider the proposals was held Sept. 8 to 11, Oct. 27 to Nov. 1, and Nov. 3, 1986, in Atlanta, Ga. The proposed provisions involved the use of funds otherwise payable to producers to cover the costs of handling and transporting milk supplies. These costs are incurred in balancing available milk supplies with the needs of fluid milk handlers. Proponents of the amendments held that they would have spread costs of such services provided by handlers in a particular market uniformly among all producers in that market.

Over 100 Attend NW Auctioneers Seminar

BY CAROLYN GILLES
Crawford Co. Correspondent

WEST MIDDLESEX – Auctioneers and their staffs turned out 110 strong for the Spring Seminar conducted on Sunday, May 3, at the Sheraton Inn in West Middlesex by the Northwest Chapter of the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association.

Highlight of the noon meal was the presentation of checks to three children's hospitals. Every spring the NW Chapter holds an auction at the Sheraton with goods consigned by fellow auctioneers, antique dealers or individuals. According to NW Chapter President Wayne Patterson, this year's auction turned over $28,000.

Commissions earned are used to support organizations that must rely on the mercy of other organizations and individuals. Three checks for $200 each were presented to Shriners Hospital, Crippled Children's Hospital and Children's Hospital.

Accepting the donation for Crippled Children's Hospital, Esther Klinge of Mercer County Crippled Children and Adult Society told a story about a man who bought his bird a bell, a mirror, and a ladder but was surprised when the bird died. It seems that he had never thought to buy birdseed! "You," said Ms. Klinge, "Are our birdseed. You keep us going."

Richard W. Brzuz, Administrator for the Shriners Hospital in Erie, accepted the check on behalf of the Shriners and thanked the group for their support saying that they couldn't continue their philanthropic works without support from this and similar organizations.

A letter was read from Janet Emory, Annual Fund Director from Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh. She thanked the group for helping them to provide health care to the tri-state area.

Ross Porter, State Director for the NW Chapter, stated two main reasons for joining the Auctioneers Association. "The first," said Porter, "is the formal education available through workshops and conferences. The second is the chance to rub shoulders with some of the best auctioneers in the nation, a chance to pick their brains and come up with some new ideas."

State President Don Huck said that although the NW Chapter, with 44 members, was one of the smallest in the state, it was also one of the most active chapters. He advocated membership in the organization for all auctioneers because the association works as a team to look out for the interests of the auctioneer.

Jim Lewis, State Secretary, commended Karen Patterson as the only chapter secretary in the state to achieve 100 percent renewal of membership. In addition, the NW chapter shows 19 percent growth over last year.

State membership stands at 385, reflecting 8 percent growth. Said Lewis, "We are not a club; we are an organization that benefits you." Lewis cited the work of Association member Mr. Reimold who is also a member of the State Board of Examiners and is working on their behalf to promote issues like the recovery fund for bonding fees.

Ohio Association Vice President Larry Gardner expressed appreciation at being invited to the seminar and introduced Ohio directors David Jones and Denny Eberhart.

Volunteer Carol Morrison was specially honored by Patterson for many hours donated to the spring auction for which she refused any pay.

During the day-long seminar, sessions were conducted on wood identification, auction law, anti-trust laws and pooling, real estate auctions, IRS 1987 tax law changes, and computers in the auction business.

In addition, participants had the opportunity during breaks to examine computer programs designed for the auctioneer displayed by Auto Scan Systems of Lancaster and Lectrosonics Sound Equipment displayed by John R. Huey and Sons of North Huntingdon and by Bassinger Auction Service of North Lima, Ohio.

Following the seminar, J. Paul Bassinger auctioned off a "Side kick" portable sound system which was bought by Sherman Allen of Nicholls & Allen for $220. Total proceeds went to the NW Chapter of the Auctioneers Association.

of problems, including abortions, still births, and breeding problems. Respiratory diseases such as pneumonia are often intensified when a pig's immune system is weakened by PRV virus, and in an acute outbreak, PRV can cause 100 percent mortality in pigs under two weeks of age.

According to Dr. Max Van Buskirk, director of the Pa. Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Animal Industry, as of April 30 there were 23 breeding herds and 22 feedlots under quarantine in the state, with the disease centered in Lancaster County. Most of the infected herds are located in the Ephrata and Manheim areas and some producers have been re-infected as many three times.

But while 45 herds are under quarantine, only 11 have submitted a written cleanup proposal required by the state, said Van Buskirk.

"We have too many herds under quarantine that don't have any program filed with the state," said Larry Hutchinson, noting that the meeting's goal was to get herd owners to file a plan with BAI, and "to encourage those avoiding detection to come out in the open and get some help."

Producers who choose to limp along with the disease can expect PRV to increase their cost of production by 8 to 10-percent in the average farrow-to-finish operation, according to experts. But Leroy Biehl said there is no reason to live with PRV in light of the current ammunition available to wipe it out.

In Feb., 1985, Illinois passed state feeder pig regulations requiring producers to test sows for PRV before their offspring could be shipped. The statute pertains to pigs brought into the state, as well as those moved within the state.

In January of this year Illinois instituted a cleanup program, and thus far producers of 252 herds have implemented cleanup programs. The plans take one of three basic forms, according to Biehl.

Plan A, Depopulation- This is the last resort. If a high percentage of pigs test positive for the virus, herd genetics are not exceptionally valuable, there are other disease problems and all the pigs breathe a common air source, depopulation may be advisable. A producer-controlled depopulation board reviews the herd situation and may recommend this if other options fail.

Plan B, Test and Removal- Pigs are tested at 30-day intervals and positives are removed. If, after four tests, more than 1 percent are still positive this method is abandoned. When herd size is small and the percentage of positive pigs is low this approach is often workable.

Plan C, Offspring Segregation- Baby pigs from positive sows are segregated at three to four weeks of age, tested at 16 weeks and removed if PRV antibody is present. The original infected sows are depopulated. This option is considered if isolation facilities for the baby pigs are available. An alternative to this plan involves transferring embryos from infected sows to uninfected recipient sows. Embryo transfer can be justified only in herds of high genetic value.

Biehl said that the cost of implementing the three plans has been estimated at $1 per sow for test and removal, $29 per sow for offspring segregation and $146 per sow for depopulation. When testing is required the state pays costs incurred from a local veterinarian and lab fees.

The Illinois veterinarian said that vaccination has played a key role in helping to eliminate the virus. The three basic types available–killed, modified live and subunit vaccine–are all being used, he said. In an acute outbreak vaccine helps to limit death losses and also helps to limit secondary disease problems by eliminating the PRV virus. Vaccine also protects nursing pigs when sows pass on their acquired immunity.

Biehl did point out, however, that blood tests will not distinguish between a recently vaccinated pig and one carrying the active virus. After about two months, though, pigs vaccinated with killed vaccine will test negative for PRV. He also noted that the duration of protection provided by vaccine is unknown. One other disadvantage of vaccination is its cost, with injections costing between 75 cents and $1.50, plus the services of a veterinarian.

BAI's Van Buskirk said that the bureau is receptive to the idea of using vaccine when certain conditions are met. Herds must be quarantined to use vaccine, and all animals testing positive for PRV are to be removed within 18 months from the start of the vaccination program. "However, we would review the plan and would consider extending permission to use vaccine (beyond 18 months)," said the bureau chief.

Dr. Leroy Biehl

Presenting the meat packer's perspective, Jerry Clemens of Hatfield Packing noted "a number of these (PRV) hogs are coming to this facility," and that Hatfield plans to continue to cooperate with producers who have infected herds. He did warn, however, that restrictions from the state involving the handling of infected pigs could make processing PRV pigs prohibitively expensive. At present, Hatfield has no truck washing facilities or separate unloading chutes for infected pigs. He also pointed out that "a lot more problems on the slaughter floor," are evident in infected pigs and the condemnation rate is significantly higher. Although the virus itself has no effect on meat quality, secondary disease problems may have an effect.

Clemens recommended that the state consider setting up a buying station for the purpose of taking only infected pigs.

Van Buskirk noted that, while all infected herds must be quarantined, Pennsylvania imposes no restrictions on the movement of hogs to slaughter. He said that producers are requested to cleanup within eight months and a $100-per-sow "incentive" payment is being offered on all infected sows removed from the herd within 90 days of quarantine.

The bureau chief said BAI is looking for a "clear signal" from the state's pork industry as to whether producers want to live with the disease or eradicate it. "We feel the entire industry ought to get behind the 10 percent (of producers) that's footing the bill," he said.

Harold Wright managed the sales and C.W. Gray and Sons auctioneered the events.

And the programs shifted gears from the social life of the groups into agricultural training and public health. That's when Musser came into the program.

"In 1985 we worked with 15 farmers," Musser said. "And even with a dry year we were able to get real good results–about 400 percent increase in yields over traditional harvests. Actually, a lot of farmers had no yields that dry year. In 1986 the program increased to 20 groups that amounted to 200 people learning how to better feed themselves. They not only learn the lessons, but they grow a technique garden as part of the educational process. Again, the farmers experienced a 400 percent increase over traditional gardens."

"This year enthusiasm is very high. And now it's not the techniques we need, it's the administrative capacity to work with all those people who want to learn. We have about 65 groups now enrolled with close to 700 people in the agricultural education programs. We have hired 10 more educators, 15 in total," Musser said. "And my roll has changed from teaching techniques to staying in the office to train an administrator. One of the original animators as been hired as the administrator. But he or no one else in the community has had any background in accounting and accountability. So we need to start teaching from the basic principles."

"In these educational plots, fertilizer is used at the rate of a spoonful to each hill of corn. Fertilizer costs about $8 for a 50 pound sack of 20-10-10. But the farmers are still so poor that they cannot pay for the sack of fertilizer at planting time. So a credit program has been set up where the farmer pays one fourth down and the remainder of the money at harvest. Of course this adds to the administrative work of keeping books for 700 people getting a sack of fertilizer."

"Everybody has a few goats and chickens. There are a few cows. And pigs are in a repopulation program. Several years ago all the pigs in Haiti were killed because of African swine fever. Now the population of hogs is being replenished mostly with hampshire, yorkshire and duroc breeds."

"Plans are being made for the Inter-American Foundation, which is a foundation of the U.S. government to continue the project when MCC leaves the country in 1989. We hope we can get a few of the teachers into further education channels. And hopefully they have a conscience now and will want to come back to their home as educated teachers. We would like to see a Haitian agronomist working in town."

There are six Americans working on the MCC project in Mombin Crochv. It's a small town of about 2,000 people, and the outlying areas would total about 20,000 people. We tend to balance what the missionaries are doing. We don't plant churches, but we do work with a lot of church leaders. If we find a need, we call in a missionary."

"Teaching these farmers to improve their lot somehow seems to me to complete the message of the gospel," Musser concluded.

Potassium In Fruit, Vegetables Provides Stroke Protection

NEWARK, Del. — Eating a banana, half a melon or a bunch of fresh asparagus may be one way to protect yourself from a stroke.

All these foods contain a high level of potassium and recently released research findings show that potassium can protect against stroke, says Dr. Sue Snider, University of Delaware extension nutrition specialist.

"Early studies of hypertensive rats showed that a high intake of potassium protected against stroke, even though the blood pressure was not affected," Snider says. "And now a 12-year study of 859 men and women between 50 and 79 years old living in southern California confirms this concept."

The study shows that one serving of fresh fruit or vegetable a day (a 390 mg. increase in daily potassium intake) was associated with a 40 percent reduction in risk of stroke.

"This protective effect was observed to be independent of overall diet and known cardiovascular risk factors such as age, sex, blood pressure, blood cholesterol level, obesity, fasting blood glucose level and cigarette smoking," the specialist says.

However, there's no reason to go out and buy potassium supplements, she adds. The study's authors say the findings do not support the broad recommendation of a high-potassium diet for the general population.

"But increasing the amount of fruits and vegetables — particularly fresh fruits and vegetables — in a well-balanced diet appears to help protect against stroke," says Snider. People who eat out a lot may find it difficult to get a variety of fruits and vegetables, she notes, but salad bars can help.

The nutrition specialist gave these examples of the potassium levels in popular fruits: one average size apple has 159 mg of potassium, one banana has 451 mg and one-half cantaloupe has 825 mg. For one-half cup of the following vegetables the potassium contents are: cooked fresn spinach, 410 mg; asparagus, 279 mg; beets, 266 mg; potatoes, 256 mg; and snap beans, 185 mg. One raw carrot has 233 mg of potassium.

Road Safety Is No Accident

collide with farm machinery that is traveling in the same direction, according to the extension folder 629 of the University of Minnesota.

The publication lists contributing factors to accidents as: difference in speed between motorist and farmer, increased distance between fields requiring transportation of farm equipment on public roads, larger machinery, lack of operator skills, time of year, and outdated machinery which lack proper warnings.

It's The Law

Monville explained that all implements of husbandry designed to operate at 25 mph or less, including animal-drawn vehicles, must display the slow moving vehile emblem when traveling on a highway. At night the vehicles must also be equipped with the proper lights. All farm equipment that travels on the road must also bear the emblem.

Vehicles which display the slow moving vehicle emblem are not permitted to travel faster than 25 mph, Monville said.

Any towed slow moving vehicle must display the emblem when being towed, he added.

A tractor may tow a maximum of two items. Monville stressed that farm trucks are restricted to towing one item.

Law number 3301 of the Pennsylvania motor vehicle code requires all slow moving vehicles to travel as close as possible to the right. Monville said that vehicles traveling slower than 25 mph are required to pull onto the road shoulder, when it is of a sufficient width, to permit the normal flow of traffic.

Monville noted that when there is one lane of traffic in either direction, the operator of the slow moving vehicle must pull off the roadway, when safe and practical, when traffic develops behind them. He defined traffic as one vehicle. "Not four," he stressed, noting that somehow traffic has been incorrectly defined as a buildup of four vehicles.

Four-way flashers are needed when the speed of the tractor or truck, in the normal flow of traffic, drops below 25 mph, Monville said.

He added that farm vehicles are required to signal turning intentions through electric signals or hand motions.

There are no laws requiring an operator's license for farm machinery. "Farm machinery is a sacred cow. There are no inspections or regulations for safety," Monville said. He encourages preventing anyone without an operators license from operating farm equipment. "They are too small to know the dangers," he explained.

Prevention

Monville recommends three points to help prevent becoming an accident statistic: signal turning intentions, take extra precautions when pulling out, and pull to right when possible.

Muzzy notes there must be a greater effort to educate the general public on the meaning of the slow moving vehicle emblem. "People don't recognize what it is because they see it everywhere," he said.

In the most current issue of the Pennsylvania driver's manual, an explanation of the emblem appears for the first time.

McMullen explained that a law is on the books which permits individuals who misuse the emblem to be cited. Monville, however, was unaware that such a law existed. McMullen added that no fine schedule was attached to the regulation.

The University of Minnesota publication offers the following recommendations to improve road safety and reduce the risk of accidents:

- Provide adequate lighting and marking for easy recognition.
- Secure loads and equipment in transport.
- Check equipment for safety prior to entering the roadway.
- Practice safe operating procedures.
- Watch for roadside hazards such as debris, potholes, brush and drainways.

Longacre discovered the costs of an accident the hard way. Besides his physical pain and insurance costs, he notes his absence placed an increased burden on the rest of the family to take up the slack.

He praised his neighboring farmers who pitched in and baled his hay. "They were a big help."

The close call also inspired him to make out his will, something he had been putting off. "You read about doing it in the farm magazines all the time. But after coming so close I decided it was time to get it done," Longacre explained.

Correction

In last week's report of the New Jersey Calf and Bred Heifer Sale it was incorrectly reported that William Pettit was honored for his service to the sale. The report should have instead reported that William Teets was honored. At the sale Frank Gibbs and Teets were honored for serving as chairmen of the sale for many years. The staff regrets the error.

Farm Toy Show And Sale Scheduled

By Dave Nolt, Collector

The hobby of farm toy collecting continues to grow. There are over 200 farm toy shows held in North America each year. The largest show is held each November in Iowa and draws over 15,000 collectors. More and more shows are being held in the East, especially during the spring and fall seasons. One of the best ways to learn about the hobby is to attend a farm toy show.

Come see what farm toy collecting is all about on Friday evening, May 15th or on Saturday, May 16th beginning at 8:30 a.m. at the Lebanon Fairgrounds. The fairgrounds are located off Route 72, just south of the city of Lebanon. Interstate Route 81 runs close by. Food will be available and a small admission fee will be charged. Overnight camping available and motels are nearby.

The East's largest collection of pedal tractors owned by Lloyd Wenger of Myerstown, Pa., will be on display. The Wenger collection won 1st place at the East's largest fall farm toy show ever which was held at the Lancaster Mennonite School gym complex. He edged out twenty other displays to take the trophy. Jon Miller from New York State will be displaying his trophy winning miniature farm scene layout. Many collectors will offer toys for sale or trade at their tables. Also collector books, price guides, and repair parts will be on sale.

A collection of older "White" toys (shipped in from Iowa) is reserved to be sold at the 5:00 p.m. Saturday evening auction. Included will be the rare "White" 4-210 tractor valued at several hundred dollars. A custom built scale model "Allis-Chalmers" roll-baler and model "60" combine along with a 2 row "New Idea" corn picker will also be sold at the auction as will about 400 other older and unique farm toys of interest to collectors. Brands include John Deere, Farmall and IH, Case, Massey Ferguson, New Holland, A-C, Ford, and most others.

Three Pennsylvania collectors are sponsoring the show: Don Bollinger, Irwin Engle, and Dave Nolt. If more information is needed, write: Show, P.O. Box 422, New Holland, Pa. 17557 or call (717) 426-3554.

Legislators Review RCMA Resolution

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania legislators received an education on milk marketing Tuesday as they considered a resolution to support the efforts of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency.

Edward Anna, executive director of RCMA, and Harold Ely, Pennsylvania RCMA coordinator, brought the issue of RCMA to the Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee.

This committee is presently considering a resolution which concludes, "Therefore, be it resolved: that the Pennsylvania House of Representatives wholeheartedly support the present dairy farmer initiative to implement the purposes of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency Inc. and thus benefit the economy of the region; and be it further resolved: that the Pennsylvania House of Representatives encourage independent dairy farmers to become members of RCMA.

In order for the elected officials to understand the importance of RCMA, Anna outlined the history of, and the need which RCMA will fill. Ely explained how similar over-order groups are filling the need in Western milk market orders.

"RCMA is designed to help stabilize the Northeast dairy industry by working to assure consumers and handlers of a long-term, fairly priced milk supply," Anna said.

"Total membership in RCMA and the neighboring Mid-Atlantic bargaining agency currently stands at 29,000 out of a total pool of 32,000 farms," Anna explained. Based on these figures, he noted RCMA has sufficient membership and could start bargaining for over-order prices within the next 70 days, but added that a more realistic time for bargaining would be in August. He estimated that 2,000 of the unsigned dairymen reside in Pennsylvania.

Lycoming County Farm Woman Holds Her Own In The Field

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

MUNCY — If they look closely on a summer day, visitors to the Lycoming Mall in Muncy may notice a woman and a dog in the cab of a tractor working the fields opposite the mall. For almost 25 years Thelma White has been spending her days, often from sunup to sunset, helping husband, Frank, put out approximately 440 acres in grain.

Thelma, who ironically enough possesses a degree in home economics, stresses she loves the out-of-doors and the variety of activities farming offers.

"Farming is dirty work, a tiresome and thankless job, but also rewarding in the variety of activities," she remarks.

Thelma helps Frank in all aspects of farming, and although a woman, she is definitely a Jack-of-all-trades and mistress of many in farming as well as other areas of her life.

Thelma and her Malamute, Mike, can be found in the fields chopping, discing and in the fall bringing in numerous wagonloads of corn from the fields to unload at the driers. She is in charge of drying and storing the corn and notes the care which must be taken with the corn.

"Monitoring the corn is very critical because you want to have it dried for safe storage but not over dried so the quality is endangered."

Thelma adds that some nights, since the drier runs continually, she slips out at 10 o'clock to unload a couple more loads into the drier. She says they were the first farmers to own an automatic grain drier in Pennsylvania.

When she's not driving tractor, Thelma is busy greasing machinery or helping Frank repair equipment. In addition, she does the book work on the farm. All this is a far cry from the Georgia native who moved to Pennsylvania in June 1954 to work as a food supervisor at Penn State. It was there she met Frank, and in a whirlwind courtship married him in December of the same year.

In May 1955, Frank graduated with an agricultural degree and shortly thereafter the Whites rented Muncy Farms from the Brock estate and moved to their current address. Muncy Farms is a beautiful estate situated along the Susquehanna River with a large fieldstone house and an abundance of riverbottom acreage. Established in 1769 by a land grant from William Penn, the fieldstone house is the oldest house in Lycoming County.

It didn't take Thelma long to discover farming in the North differed a little from farming in the South.

"I was six months pregnant and he put me on a tractor to rake hay and I didn't know what a windrow was," she recalls, laughing.

Reared on a southern farm, Thelma observes, she had learned to pick cotton and raise corn and watermelon, but no hay. However, she proved a quick study, swiftly acquiring the necessary skills through the years.

During the first years of their tenure the Whites ran a dairy operation until the barn burned. Next, for a few years, Thelma recalls, they ran a successful swine operation, raising 1,200 pigs a year until the bottom dropped out of the market.

Although their boys, Steven and Lee, were born during these years, Thelma helped with the farming, particularly, she says, with the care of the animals. Both boys since, Thelma notes, have graduated from Penn State with degrees in chemical engineering and presently live out of state with their families.

"I milked cows and vaccinated pigs. I was on call 24 hours a day," recalls Thelma.

When they were involved in their swine operation, Thelma observed, they employed two men, but when they made the decision 24 years ago to grain farm, they decided they would farm without outside help. It was at this time that Thelma began spending a major chunk of her time in the fields.

Presently, Thelma relates with a chuckle, she and Frank possess identical tractors marked "His" and "Hers." They bought a new Allis-Chalmers in 1961 and a used one exactly like it a year later, she says. The one equipped with power steering was designated Thelma's tractor and the other without it was supposed to be Frank's. Frequently, Thelma says, she found herself driving the tractor without power steering because Frank "forgot" and drove the other one. It wasn't long after Thelma got around to labeling the tractors his and hers that a decision was made to install power steering in Frank's tractor.

In addition to field work, machinery repair, and farm book work, Thelma also performs the usual household chores and still finds time to pursue an abundant variety of other interests. Thelma enjoys sewing and says she hasn't bought a dress since she was nine years old. She also sews curtains and draperies.

Thelma has refurnished numerous pieces of furniture in their home such as cupboards,

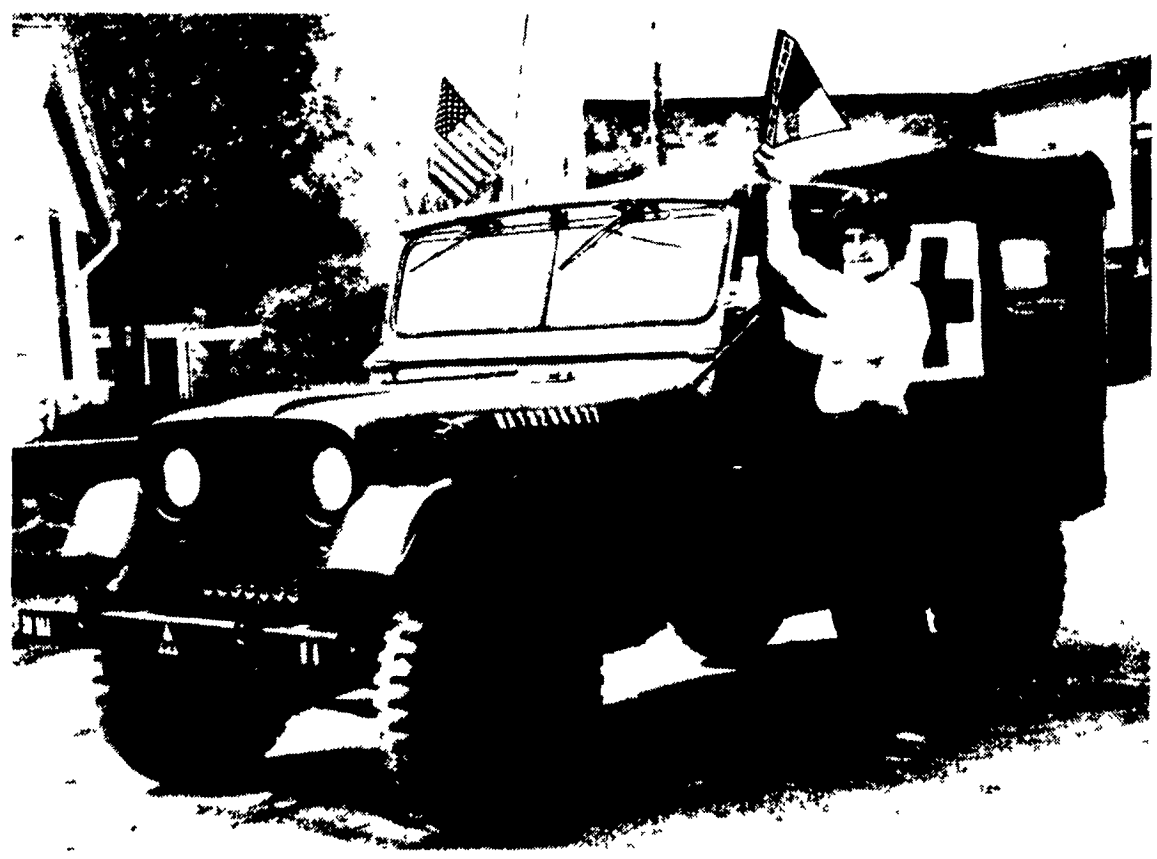
(Turn to Page B4)

Although she holds a college degree in home economics, Thelma White of Muncy devotes much of her time to field work. Thelma and her husband, Frank, raise about 440 acres of grain. Here she points to the word "Hers" which distinguishes her tractor from the identical one Frank uses.

When she's not in the field, Thelma spends some of her time going over the books.

Homestead Notes

Thelma and her Malamute, Mike, disc a field. Mike has been riding with Thelma since he was a puppy.



Thelma displays the 1954 Willys Ambulance she and her husband, Frank, own. Members of a military vehicle collectors club, they have restored six such military vehicles.

Thelma White

chests of drawers and chairs and she recently began constructing frames for paintings they purchase.

Since Thelma and Frank enjoy homemade bread, Thelma has found a unique way of working it into her schedule while she's in the fields.

"I mix the bread and then stop to mix it down and then I stop to bake it," she explains.

From old military vehicles to old small kitchen utensils, collecting things is a hobby of Thelma's. For the past eight years the Whites have belonged to the Military Vehicles Collectors Club and presently have in their collection six antique and classic vehicles including three jeeps, one truck, one weasel, and one track vehicle. In addition they have three unrestored vehicles they work on from time to time. Their interest in collecting the vehicles stems in part from the fact that Frank is a Korean war veteran.

Thelma says she enjoys driving the ambulance jeep in local parades and as the only female member of the club, has made parade banners and helped with food for their gatherings. Sometimes, the old military vehicles come in handy, Thelma reports, such as this winter when a deep snow brought traffic to a virtual halt. Thelma merely hopped in one of the vehicles and went to a nearby store for milk.

Although she says she's a bit rusty now, Thelma reports she has removed engines from the jeeps and replaced them with others.

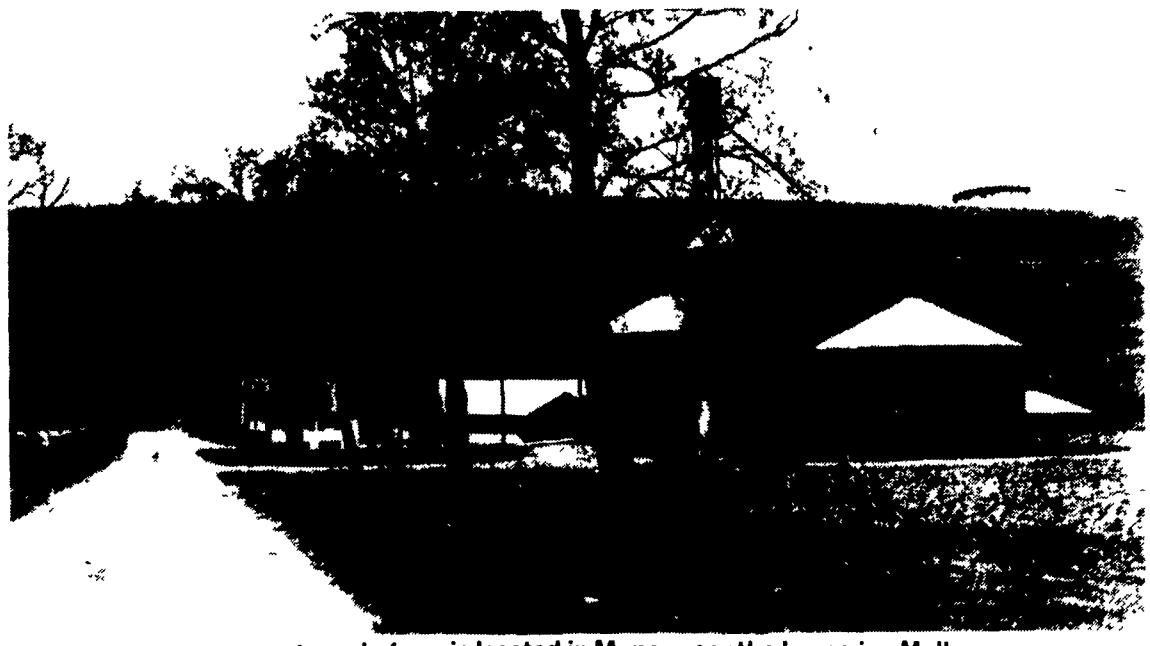
The aspect of field work she enjoys most, according to Thelma, is "finishing a field, whether it's discing or harvesting, because sometimes the weather interferes." It's the grease and grime associated with farming that she says she dislikes most.

But, she reports, her favorite activity is walking or driving the jeep through the woods to look for wildlife. She keeps a pair of field glasses with her in the cab of her tractor at all times.

Recently, while in the fields Thelma witnessed a rare sight. Looking across to the mountains, she noticed a small yellow cloud hovering over the trees originating from what looked like an explosion. The phenomenon repeated itself several times until much of the mountain was under a yellow cloud. Consulting with Frank later, Thelma learned she had witnessed "pollen firing" which may occur in the forests in springtime when conditions are just right.

It is for reasons such as the above that Thelma shrugs off an occasional remark made to the effect that her "dietician skills are going to waste."

"I don't want to be cooped up in a restaurant," she says. "I want to be outdoors doing plant work or working with machinery and feeling the accomplishment... and not stuck on an assembly line job."



The White's grain farm is located in Muncy near the Lycoming Mall.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The weather has many moods and can affect people in different ways. On dreary days it affects our temperament in unpleasant ways, while on sunny days, we may feel on "top of the world."

Sometimes the weather is a slavedriver the same as the clock on the kitchen wall. It urges us to complete work before rain comes. Even though it doesn't suit us, we rush out to plant beans and sweetcorn before the rain comes.

In a few minutes a hail storm can destroy a tobacco crop that has been carefully tended, while a flood not only demolishes property but takes away precious top soil.

Heavy snow will not only slow traffic, but can cause buildings to collapse. When roofs cave in in winter, animals must be given other shelter.

Another element of nature that shows its powerful force is the wind. Hurricanes topple trees and cause a lot of extra work. Sometimes tornadoes with their violent winds tear a path of destruction through villages and country-side alike. We have learned a lot about what kind of weather to expect, but we can't stop it from coming our way.

With summer coming we can expect thunderstorms too. Often they will strike a tall oak or locust tree and leave it to die. This has happened often on our farm. However, this is to be desired over a lightning strike hitting a building as a fire can be a devastating thing which takes years to recover from.

Many adults have stories that they can tell their children concerning the weather. Maybe it is a stroll through an April shower or one of those stories about how deep the snow was when they had to walk to a country school.

CHELATION THERAPY

THIS MAY BE YOUR ANSWER TO: Heart Problems, High Blood Pressure, Poor Circulation, Arthritis, Diabetes, Leg Cramps, Numbness, Tingling, Cold Hands And Feet & Atherosclerosis.

All of these conditions can be helped by Golden Prime Formula #1. This aids in removing approximately 50 detrimental factors including lead, mercury and calcium deposits form the arteries. It also lowers triglycerides and cholesterol.

This chelated formula called Golden Pride Formula #1 is available in a pleasant-tasting form containing honey, royal jelly, bee pollen and the chelating agent EDTA. Start to erase years of damage to your system. Good nutrition can eleviate many health problems. The following are just a few testimonies of some of the many local persons using Golden Pride Products.

ARTHRITIS MIRACLE

In 1979 my health started to deteriorate rapidly. Between that year and 1983 I had been to eight doctors. I was sent to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington for tests and in 1984 was finally diagnosed as having severe Rheumatoid Arthritris. By this time I had bandages on my feet and knees and 3 times daily I applied frozen vegetable packs to them to ease the stiffness. My hands were crippled and I could do nothing without help. I had to be lifted in and out of any vehicle. I was so sick from medication and ready to give up. My ninth doctor assured me that if I didn't fight this disease I would be in a wheelchair in two years. And so I began!

In 1985 I found a Holistic doctor who taught me the effects of good nutrition, pure water, emotions, information, yeast, weight control, exercise and prayer. I knew I had a long way ahead of me in rebuilding my system, but with God's strength, I knew I could do it.

In Feb. of 1986, I was given the name of a chiropractor who used ultrasound, He gave me a series of treatments intended to dissolve the excess calcium within my badly swollen joints. I also had a severe sciatic problem. Slowly I started to improve.

In August of 1986, Ken Horning introduced me to Golden Pride Products. They are all drug free and formulated to help countless problems. The main ingredient was to do the same job within as the ultrasound did on the outside. This was just what I was looking for. My doctor approved wholeheartedly.

Within a few weeks my swelling went down, my sciatic problem was so much better, my energy level started to return, and my skin actually regained its color. I can now write with a pencil, wear shoes again, do many of the simple tasks that many take for granted. My fingers have even straightened out. Just recently my doctor has given me permission to roller skate!!

Many things for the prayers of those who cared.

Susan Williams
Lykens, Pa. 453-7517

HEARING IMPROVED

Since I began Golden Pride I am not tired like before. My swollen tonsils are gone, the cramps are gone from my legs, and best of all my hearing is so improved I don't need my hearing aid anymore.

Albert Ebert, Gratz

IMPROVED CIRCULATION

I am so glad I started taking Golden Pride as it has helped me attacks previously. My heart is so much better. My dizziness is all gone. The pressure in my chest is gone and my circulation is so much better. My hands and feet used to get so numb that they turned snowy white. That is all gone too. I used to be up and around for only one hour then I would have to lay down because I was so tired and didn't have any energy. Since I started Golden Pride I can go all day. I had a pain for years on my right side that the doctors couldn't discover the cause and what to do, but it left after starting Golden Pride. I also got rid of my cane! Emotionally I feel so much better and my relationship has improved with my beloved husband. He sure sees a difference in me! Just recently my heart Dr. was so pleased with me and said that whatever I was doing I should keep it up! Well, it's Golden Pride's Formula #1! I just think it is wonderful.

G.F., Lebanon, Pa.

NURSE DOUBTFUL?

I am a nurse. When I heard about Golden Pride I was skeptical. My problems included very high blood pressure along with high triglycerides and cholesterol. What sold me on Golden Pride was my blood test results and my doctor's wholehearted approval. He was very impressed with how well I was doing since I previously had surgery for blocked carotid arteries. My doctor encouraged me to keep up the oral chelation Golden Pride. My blood pressure came down in 1 week after starting Golden Pride #1. I am convinced!

B.H., Northumberland, Pa.

...My doctors ran many tests and took x-rays to find out what the extreme pressure was in my head, but they couldn't come up with anything. After being on Golden Pride just 1 day, it left and hasn't come back. I already had a stroke and I know this Golden Pride helps prevent them from happening again. I was skeptical but I am now very impressed!

...I was going to be forced into retiring 2 years early due to severe pain in my legs. My job as night watchman required me to be on my feet continually. After hearing about Golden Pride Formula #1 I tried it and in 4 days I noticed a difference. The pain and swelling went down and was gone in 2 weeks. My varicose veins went down and my hammer toes became flexible and began to straighten. I feel 20 years younger.

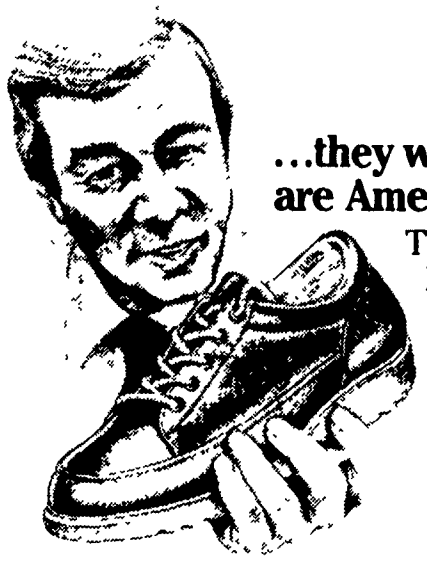
If your feet could read...



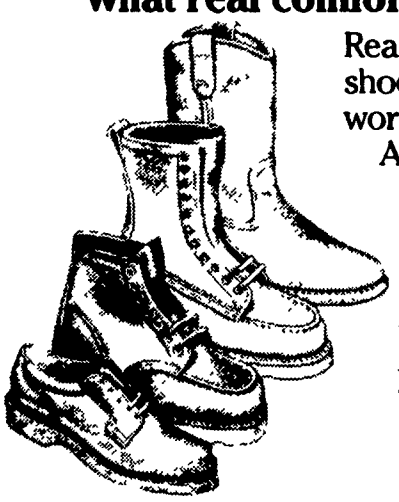
...they would learn why Red Wings are America's best shoes for work.

They'd find that premium quality leather and real American craftsmanship make a shoe that fits better, feels better and wears better.

...they would understand how important it is for a trained shoe professional to do the fitting.

First, he takes the time to learn about you and what you do. Because different jobs make different demands. He measures both your feet. Because no two feet are exactly alike. Then he fits you—with professional knowledge and skill.

...they would discover—for the first time—what real comfort and satisfaction mean.



Real comfort is no accident. It takes a shoe style that matches your kind of work. It takes shoes made to fit American feet and then a pair carefully selected to fit yours. That's Red Wing.

Most important, we want you to be completely satisfied as a Red Wing customer. Because we want you back.

ANSWER - Phyllis Grantham, Kearneysville, W Va , requested a recipe for cream of tomato soup Thanks go to Mrs. Charles Hess, Bethlehem, for sharing her family's favorite recipe and to all others who sent tomato soup recipes.

Cream of Tomato Soup

2 or 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1½ teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk
4 cups fresh tomatoes (peeled, diced and simmered 10 minutes) OR
3 cups canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon minced onion
¼ teaspoon celery seeds
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
½ bay leaf or a pinch of basil (optional)
1 while clove (optional)
1/8 teaspoon baking soda

Peel fresh tomatoes (if using) in a saucepan and simmer about 10 to 12 minutes, stirring once in a while. While watching and stirring tomatoes, melt butter in a heavy 3- or 4-quart saucepan. Add flour, salt and pepper to butter and stir to a smooth paste. Add milk and cook over low to medium heat, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Set aside

Add to the simmered or canned tomatoes, the onion, celery seeds, salt and sugar. If using bay leaf and/or cloves, put in a small cloth bag or a small tea ball. Simmer uncovered about 8 minutes. Remove bay leaf and clove. Press through sieve or put into blender the tomato mixture Return to saucepan and stir in soda.

Just before serving, stir tomato mixture into milk mixture. Heat but do not boil. Enjoy!

Note: This soup has never curdled for me, but if it does, whirl in blender to smooth it out.

Northwest Ordinance Bicentennial To Honor Neglected Document

MARIETTA, Ohio — It is one of the basic documents in American history, setting forth the principles of how citizens of the United States are to be governed and guaranteeing their freedoms.

It has far-reaching provisions that remained valid well beyond the imagination of its authors. And this year, celebrations will be held marking its bicentennial, notably in this quiet, history-conscious Ohio River city of 17,000.

No, not the U.S. Constitution. It's the much-less-known, even neglected, Northwest Ordinance of 1787.

Principles Of Liberty

A U.S. Supreme Court justice called the Northwest Ordinance remarkable "for its masterly display of the fundamental principles of civil and religious and political liberty." A historian has termed it "a unique and amazing document," establishing "the first commonwealth in the world whose organic law recognized every man as free and equal."

"On this plan was the United States built," said President Franklin D. Roosevelt. "It was the highway over which poured the westward march of our civilization."

Enacted by the Continental Congress under the Articles of Confederation in New York on July 31, 1787, even as the Constitutional Convention was meeting in Philadelphia, the Northwest Ordinance opened up for settlement the vast lands north and west of the Ohio River and east of the Mississippi River, lands that now are the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and the eastern portion of Minnesota.

But the document also set the ground rules of how the subdivisions of what was then called the Northwest Territory were eventually to become states: not colonies, but members of the Union, equal to the original 13 states.

The pattern established under the ordinance — settlement, a territorial government, application to Congress for statehood when population reached a certain size, and admission as a state so long as a republican state constitution and government were adopted — was followed consistently as the nation grew from 13 to 50 states.

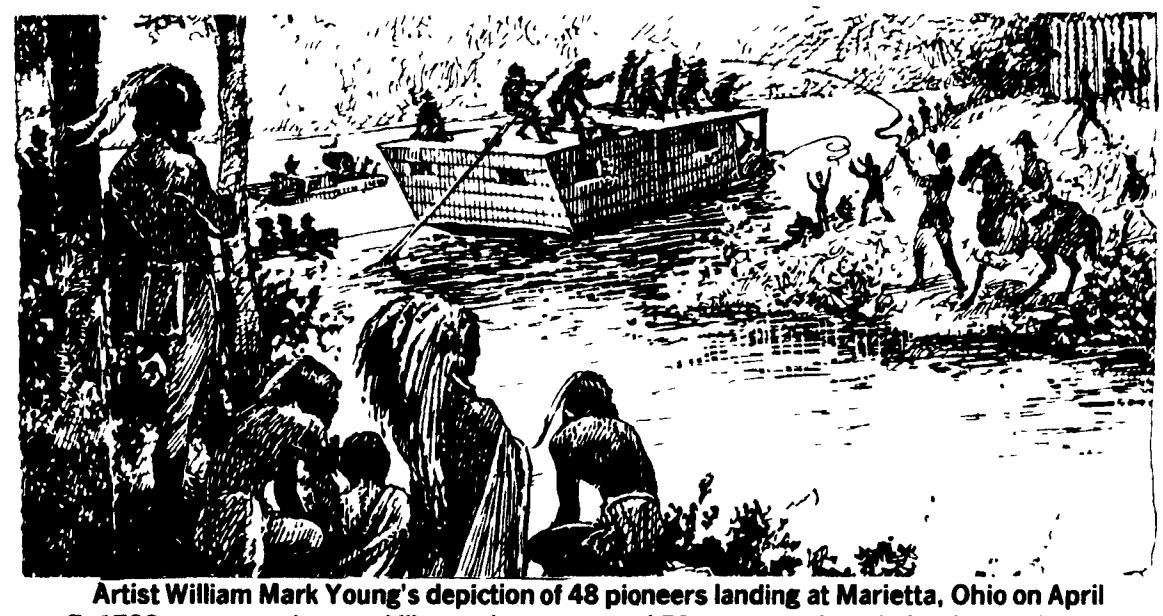
In a provision unusual for its time, the ordinance prohibited slavery. It guaranteed habeas corpus, trial by jury, freedom of religion, and freedom from cruel and unusual punishment — rights that were not guaranteed to citizens of the original 13 states until the Bill of Rights was added to the new Constitution. It required that the "utmost good faith" should always be shown to Indians, and Indian lands were not to be taken without their consent (a provision not often adhered to).

King Barred Settlement

King George III had barred settlement of the 274,000 square miles of the Old Northwest soon after Great Britain acquired the land from the French in 1763. Several colonies claimed the land well into the 1780s.

By then, the loosely confederated new nation had a sizable war debt, many veterans to whom it owed money, and vast unsettled lands. One solution was to sell the land cheaply to the veterans, using receipts to retire the debt. Congress made several attempts at orderly settlement, but it wasn't until the Northwest Ordinance was enacted that settlement could begin.

On Dec. 3, 1787, the first group of 22 settlers set out by ox-pulled covered wagon and on foot from Ipswich (now Hamilton), Mass. Another 26 joined them in Sumrill's Ferry, Pa., now West Newton, on Feb. 14, and there they built boats that carried them from the Youghiogheny River to the Monongahela and then to the Ohio.



Artist William Mark Young's depiction of 48 pioneers landing at Marietta, Ohio on April 7, 1788, was one of several illustrations prepared 50 years ago for a federal commission to mark the 150th anniversary of the Northwest Ordinance and the settlement of the Northwest Territory. The ordinance, adopted by Congress on July 13, 1787, set rules for settling and governing the huge region, which became five states and part of a sixth.

Weary, bedraggled, and wet, the 48 pioneers reached their goal on April 7: the mouth of the Muskingum River, where the army had established Fort Harmar in 1785. They began to erect buildings, including fortifications, and debated what to call their new home. The choice was to honor Marie Antoinette, because of French help in the Revolutionary War, so the settlement was named Marietta.

Today, Marietta has historical markers virtually everywhere. The town is restoring the riverfront area where the pioneers landed and calling attention to the early cemetery, where more Revolutionary War generals are buried than in any other; to the original Ohio Land Co. office; and to the home of Gen. Rufus Putnam, leader of the settlers.

Under the direction of Barbara Lovely, the Marietta Bicentennial Commission is planning a yearlong celebration of the ordinance and the settlers. On July 11 to 13 there will be a parade, an ice cream social, and a symposium on the historic significance of the ordinance.

Speculation On Neglect

Philip R. Shriver, retired president of Miami University and chairman of an Ohio commission marking the bicentennial, has speculated on why the ordinance has been neglected in recent years: the document's legalistic style; the absence of major figures in its authorship; its association with a dying, barely functioning Continental Congress; and the taint of land speculation.

But it was not always neglected. In 1937-38, on its 150th birthday, a federally supported commission sponsored a re-enactment of the trek by the 48 settlers from Ipswich to Marietta, complete with ox team, covered wagon, and hand-built boats.

This summer, a group of survivors of the 1930s trek, now in their 70s, will re-enact their re-enactment. They will not walk all the way this time, but their efforts may bring some attention to one of America's major historical documents.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"Boy, there oughta' be a law against that!"

If I had a buck for every time I've either thought or made that innocuous statement, it would no doubt cover the cost of a decent pedigreed show heifer.

The aims of my personal-irritation laws have ranged from the mundane tc the moral. Mentally, I've framed proposed legislation against everything from escaped hogs to muddy barn boots on a newly-waxed kitchen floor. From burning damp leaves on an airless day to nails on the road that go heads up when they see our cattle trailer headed their way. From mindless automobile drivers who refuse to obey Yield signs or use turn signals to granting early parole to convicted murderers or rapists.

This country has a history of some wacky, way-out laws, some of which still turn up on the records, usually in small rural municipalities.

And, some are still being proposed. Like, for instance, how about a law that would limit your income? Undemocratic? Unfair? Unconstitutional? Impossible, you say? Well, maybe not.

Recently announced in local papers was a proposed municipal ordinance which was — innocently, no doubt — aimed at avoiding local warfare over the potential for possible odor and waste problems from large farming operations.

For years, the farm, agribusiness, economic and legislative segments have wrestled with the meaning of the term "large" when applied to farms. This proposed ordinance buttonholed the issue, spelling out in detail the number of head of livestock a farm could maintain in a concentrated unit.

Under the original proposal, a farm operation would have had to apply for a special zoning exception to maintain, on contiguous lands owned by the same owner or owners, any more than 250 head of cattle, 25,000 birds, or 1,000 hogs. (Contiguous lands could be any number of acres, from extremes of maybe ten to ten thousand). The ordinance would also have prevented putting up livestock housing less than 1,000 feet from any dwelling not owned by the owner of the land.

These are total numbers of said types of livestock, folks. Including from baby calves to mature cows, or the total number of head of feeder animals. All hogs, from newly-farrowed litters to mature breeding boars.

There are viable dairy operations with less than 250 total head, but they're diminishing, because economics are trending toward larger, more economic units. Few poultry producers could subsist these days on the living from no more than 25,000 birds. And ditto for similar limits on hog numbers.

Such pulled-from-the air, arbitrary figures are simply laughable (or cryable) in that they're totally irrelevant. Each farm situation is unique.

A producer with no debt, no need to buy or repair machinery, no medical bills, no college tuition, no family to feed, might manage. But when costs go up and income drops, adding a couple of head of livestock to bump up cash flow and stretch ends to meet a little closer is usually a farmer's only answer.

And, how many people could add a building to their farmstead, in our heavily non-farm rural populated countrysides, that was at least 1,000 feet from someone else's buildings and be any reasonable distance to our own farm operation?

To their credit, the elected officials of this municipality delayed action on the proposal for further study and input from the experience and insight of extension and farm community leaders.

On the other hand, the same municipality also advertised another ordinance soon after, which would place the following warning on all plans proposing residential development in the agricultural-zoned district: Warning: the dwelling lot or lots proposed by this subdivision plan are in the agriculture district. A primary use of such district is agriculture and residents must expect things such as the smell of farm animals and the manure they produce, toxic chemical sprays, slow moving agriculture machinery on local roads and other byproducts of agriculture activity." And, a hearty "Amen" to that.

There oughta' be a law?

By gosh, there might already be one proposed. And we doggone well better understand the long-range connotations of it.

Extension 'Master Volunteers' Share Sewing Expertise With Others

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LEBANON – With ever-shrinking budgets plaguing the Cooperative Extension Service, the "Master Volunteer" program has emerged as an alternative method of providing basic programs to the public.

Last week, 32 seamstresses from 14 counties in the Extension Service's Southeast Region participated in a three-day training program which is the beginning of their work toward becoming an Extension Service Clothing and Textiles Master Volunteer. In addition they will complete 10 hours of correspondence work at home.

These 32 women shared a love of sewing, an interest in clothing and textiles and a sense of adventure as they gathered at the Kenbrook conference center north of Lebanon. At the conclusion of the 20 hours of structured workshops, and countless hours of informal discussions, they had gained updates on the latest in clothing construction, the most up-to-date techniques, and the latest fabrics.

In addition they came away with several hours of training in actual teaching techniques so that they can convey what they have learned to others in the community. Each "Master Volunteer" is required to return 40 hours of community service in exchange for the intensive training. Discussions of various ways of working off that volunteer commitment were an integral part of the workshop.

Alletta Schadler, extension home economist at Lebanon County, explained, "When it is well established, this program will help us to extend our scarce resources."

Indeed, many participants have already made plans to help with 4-H programs, other extension homemaker programs and to hold workshops. In several urban areas, the homemakers are hoping to put their skills to work helping battered and abused homemakers.

The Master Clothing and Textiles Volunteer program follows on the heels of a master gardener and master knitter program. In the future, such programs will be offered in food preservation.

Cynthia Walls, extension home economist in Lehigh County, said a side benefit of the program comes with exposing all of these women to the Extension Service. "A lot of them didn't know the Extension Service." Walls explained that the women will be evaluated once more before meeting for a recognition luncheon on June 8, when they will receive their master volunteer name tags, recognition for having completed their work.

A very complete notebook was given each participant with detailed outlines of the presentations. Continuing education credits at Penn State are also earned through successful completion of the Master Volunteer program.

Sandy Klingler, Lebanon County, is already deeply involved with the Extension Service as a paid teacher of adult classes. She wanted to become a Master Volunteer; however, because, "I really needed an update from the information I got in college. This will push me back into clothing construction, and it was good to learn about sergers and new fabrics."

Klinger says, "It was definitely worthwhile. It was very intensive and very concentrated. We learned about wardrobe planning, fit and construction." In addition to working with adults, she will put her skills to use with a 4-H club she just started.

The backgrounds of the participants varied greatly, from teachers to homemakers, to young mothers to grandmothers, and their interests ranged from tailoring to fabrics to consumer skills. Roxanne Price, 4-H agent in York County, explained, "Here they gain motivation and excitement from people who share the same thing. They have developed good rapport with one another."

The cost of the workshop was underwritten largely through monies provided by the Friends of 4-H, and Price noted that in York County they also paid for the room and board of volunteers "because they are giving of their time."

Deb Felak helped to pilot the Master Volunteer as a resident of Lehigh County, though she has since moved to Lancaster County. Felak, whose interest in sewing dates to her days as a Washington County 4-H'er, recalled that the "neatest thing was to find 50 people who were excited about sewing. There was as much sharing outside the classroom as inside."

Felak was one of four from Lehigh County who completed the program and she said that each one has returned their 40 hours of volunteer work. They helped schedule bus trips to the fabric areas of Philadelphia and New York City, they offered classes in using sergers, in clothing construction and machine care, and they prepared a 15 minute spot for public television on spot removal.

This group also planned several programs which reached non-traditional extension groups, including wardrobe planning, and a mastectomy outreach group. Felak coordinated the county 4-H fashion revue and helped with regional fashion revue. One volunteer worked with county 4-H clothing leaders and served as a judge for fashion revue, then

Master Volunteers

Felak continues to sew for herself and her children as well as maintaining a "minimal" custom sewing business, and she has already volunteered her talents to Lancaster County's Extension service.

About her experience, Felak says, "I loved it. I was very pleasantly surprised with the program."

Sally Miller, Adams County, is also a home economics major who is a 4-H leader and a teacher of adult sewing classes. She said, "I have an avid interest in clothing and textiles and I hoped to update my skills and have an interchange of ideas with similar minded people." She hopes strongly that from the workshops will come a network of people throughout the state who can continue to share current information on clothing and textiles. Indeed, some of her volunteer hours may be spent working out such a network.

She adds, "I stay very current with trade journals, but I enjoyed learning how they are teaching it as well as getting new ideas." Miller says she is concerned about the future of sewing, explaining, "We need to foster an interest in sewing. We need to look at who we are reaching."

Beverly Vos of Berks County found the fabric and fitting workshops particularly helpful to her. She is very interested in helping home sewers learn to use their present machine attachments to their fullest. She said often women are tempted to buy a new product, "when they have something that is better at home." She is also interested in working to develop new dress forms in foam, but noted that sometimes materials like that are not available to individuals.

Diane Brown, regional program coordinator for the Penn State Extension service, said the volunteers are necessary to "continue to deliver programs," and called the volunteers "an important part of the program team." Brown noted that in the last two years there have been 20 extension home economics positions lost in the 16 county area, which obviously affects program delivery.

Brown said the product of extension is education, and "our role is to market it." It is through Master Volunteer programs that the education will be marketed to a wider group of people.

Brown concluded, "The future is in the hands of the volunteers and staff working together as an extension team."

Indeed, if you are interested in clothing and textiles, watch for Master Volunteers in your county. These trained, professional volunteers will be more and more visible, sharing their skills with others.

Have You Heard?

Record Appliance Numbers

Numbers, numbers, numbers — there are so many to keep track of in our fast-paced world today. As we all know, the numbers do serve a purpose — they are a key to making things happen, and getting things done. And as a busy consumer, the more organized you can keep the numbers in your life, the more control you can have.

You should record and save two sets of numbers from all the major appliances in your home — the model number and serial number. Saving these numbers can help make your world a little easier.

Every appliance has both a model number and a serial number. With them, the manufacturer of the product can determine all the pertinent information about your appliance.

The model number designates the specific features and styling of the appliance, and the serial number tells the manufacturer exactly when and where the unit was produced.

When the manufacturer knows both numbers, it makes efforts to satisfy your appliance needs much easier, whether your appliance requires service or if you have questions about how it operates, or if you just want additional product literature. And besides helping the manufacturer, the model number and serial number are invaluable to the dealer who sold you the appliance, or the technician calling on you to service the unit.

Where do you find the model and serial numbers? The location varies, depending on the type of product and the manufacturer. Most manufacturers make it easy to find.

Find the numbers on your major appliances, ideally on the same day your appliance is installed. Write them down, either in a special book designated for that purpose, or on the use and care guide.

Keep the numbers with the sales receipt and a copy of the product warranty in a safe, but handy, place. Don't forget where you put them!

It's true numbers are popping up everywhere, and mean more and more to every consumer. But smart consumers will know how to use important numbers when they are needed, so they can do the work they are meant to do.

Food Prices Rose in 1986

According to the USDA's Economic Research Service, food prices rose 3.2 percent in 1986. This is slightly more than the 2.3 percent rise in 1985. But the increase nearly equaled the average annual 3 percent increase since 1981 when there was a sharp slowing in the rate of inflation.

Food prices rose slower at supermarkets and other grocery stores than at eating places, continuing the trend of recent years. Prices at grocery stores went up 2 percent while restaurant meal prices climbed 3.9 percent, about the same amount as in 1984 and 1985. However, food prices in grocery stores rose much more than in the previous year, mainly because prices of meat, poultry, and fish declined slightly in 1985 and then rose 4.3 percent in 1986.

But the rise in retail prices was held down in 1986 because plentiful food supplies pushed down the prices farmers received for commodities for the second year. The farm value of foods declined 1.3 percent, reflecting large supplies, a decline in agricultural exports, and the 1985 farm act that set lower support prices for grains. Retail food prices were tempered by the economy's reduced inflation, which slowed the rise in marketing costs such as packaging, transportation, and energy.

Increases in consumer demand for food, reflecting modest gains in income and lower unemployment, were not sufficient to greatly inflate food prices.

'Open House At The Zeamers' To Feature Crafts

Elli Zeamer will host an open house featuring traditional crafts at her home in Manheim May 14 through 16. Here, she shows a few examples of the crafts that will be offered.

BY SUZANNE KEENE

MANHEIM — In the past several years craft shows have become commonplace, but next week Elli Zeamer of Manheim will add a new twist to craft show protocol.

Elli is planning a craft show in her home Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 14 through 16. Twenty-one local craftsmen will exhibit their wares in the living room, dining room and kitchen of her colonial-style home, located just north of Manheim on Route 72.

In preparation for the event, which she is billing as "Open House at the Zeamers," Elli mailed about 1,500 invitations to friends and neighbors welcoming them to view her beautifully-decorated home and the traditional crafts that will be displayed there.

Elli said the inspiration for the show was her sister, Barabra Mowrer of Columbia, who sews plain-faced Amish dolls and bunnies. But her desire to showcase her sister's talents wasn't the only reason for the adventure. Simply put, Elli enjoys entertaining.

"I just enjoy enjoy people," says the petite mother of three teenagers. "I just thought it would be fun to have a craft show in my home."

Several years ago, Elli hosted a similar show which featured the craft projects of a company called Creativity, "It was so much fun," she says, "I thought, why not do it with the people I know.

"It's much more personal and it's fun for the people in the community to see your home," she adds.

Although she claims to have little talent for crafts herself, Elli does needlepoint and enjoys interior decorating. She's had plenty of opportunity to use her flair for decorating in the 14 homes her family has inhabited.

Elli centers her life around her family and the comfortable home she makes for them. "My craft is centered around people," she noted. "I think that is a definite craft."

Organizing an event as large as an at-home craft show is a time-consuming project and Elli began her planning in September. "It really takes a lot of time. It takes a lot of effort," she says without complaint.

In addition to selecting and inviting craftspeople and preparing and mailing the invitations to guests, Elli has to make room in the lower floor of her home for the crafts. Much of the furniture will be temporarily relocated, while a few pieces will support the various crafts that will be displayed.

If the show is successful, Elli hopes to make it an annual event. In the future, she said, she may plan the shows to benefit organizations such as Hospice or the local wrestling program. "I'd like to do this every year," she says.

For her first show, Elli expects between 350 and 500 people to visit her home. Craftspeople who will be exhibiting include:

- Amy Rockwell of Kutztown, a water color artist.
- Jackie Rice, Manheim; Julie Graybill, Lititz; Sally Young, Manheim; and Pat Kruse, Manheim; all of whom will display wooden folk art.
- Lu Ann Rohrer, who will offer pillows, quilts and wallhangings.
- Laurie Adair, who will feature handmade baskets.

Drop Those Extra Pounds And Live Longer!

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Nobody has ever denied the benefits of too much money in the bank. But just a few years ago, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company made headlines when it disputed the merits of being too trim and raised the "desirable" weight of Americans by as much as 7 percent.

According to Metropolitan's statisticians, people appeared to live longer with a few extra pounds. The figure conscious could figure on a slightly shorter life span.

Now, however, the medical community is sharply questioning the validity of Metropolitan's charts of desirable weights. Researchers at Harvard University's School of Public Health have reviewed the study on which the charts are based and found serious flaws in the methodology.

The result: the scales are again tipped in favor of trimmer people. Says Mark Kantor, a nutritionist for The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service: "The message is clear. You'll live longer if you're not overweight."

What went wrong with Metropolitan's study?

Many of the people included in the study of obesity and longevity were smokers, says Kantor. Taken as a whole, smokers are a lean group. But Metropolitan's researchers failed to consider smoking's link to lung cancer, heart disease, and premature death.

Kantor explains: "It appeared to be more dangerous to be lean. In fact, what is really dangerous is to smoke."

In addition, researchers excluded too many overweight people from the study because they were victims of high blood pressure and diabetes. Yet obesity can trigger these two problems and early death.

How thin is thin enough? That's still not clear, say nutritionists.

What is clear is that despite the $5 billion we spend each year on diet pills, diet sodas, and diet aids, one out of every five Americans is still obese. Moreover, people who are only 10 percent over the weight that Metropolitan's charts now call desirable increase their chance of an early death by as much as 10 percent.

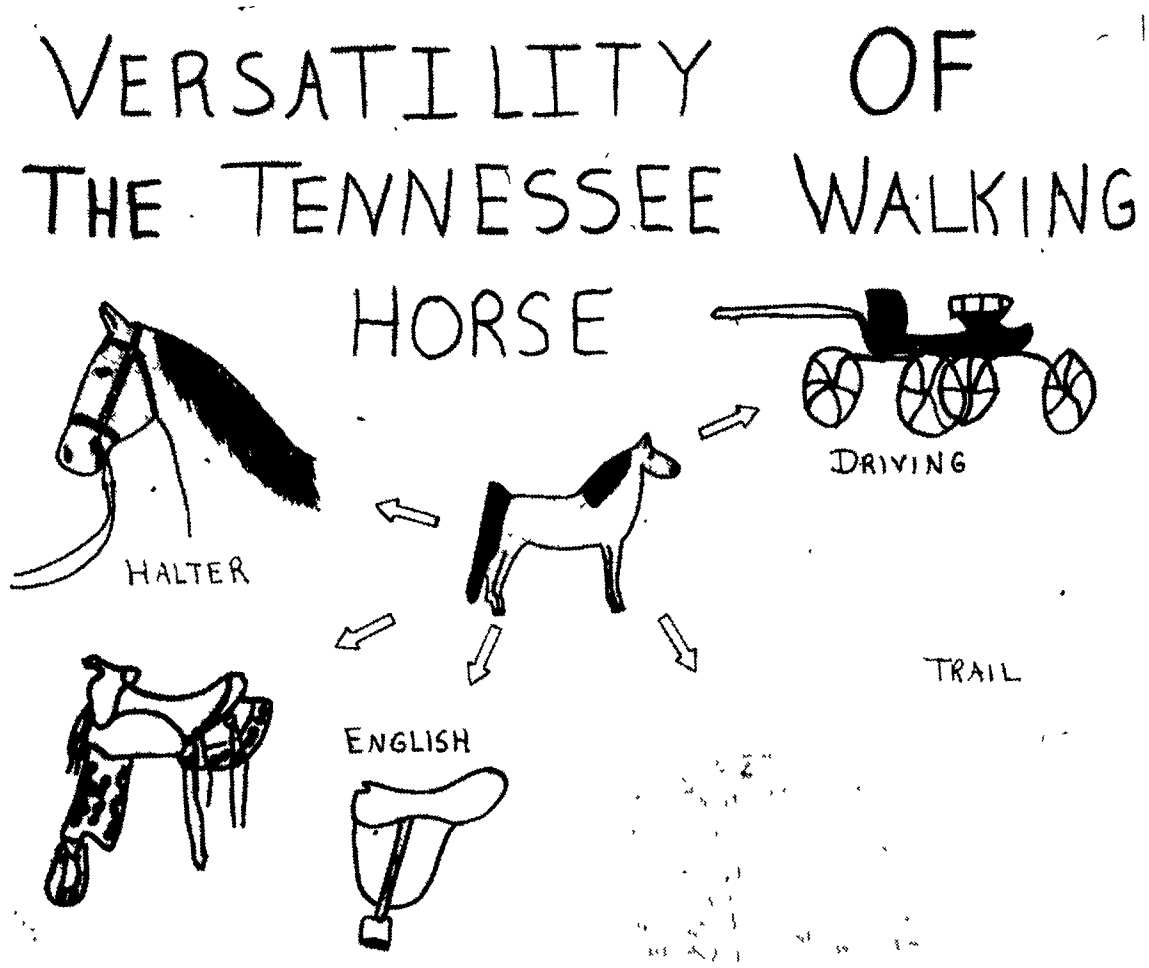
Palmyra 4-H'er Tops Eastern Classic Horse Show Poster Contest

QUENTIN — Jonathan Bixler, the 9-year-old son of Donald and Becky Bixler of Palmyra, was recently named winner of the Eastern Classic Horse Show poster contest.

A member of the Hoofs and Horns 4-H Club, Jonathan bested the dozen competitors who drew posters promoting the horse show and the versatility of the walking horse. Jonathan's poster centered around the versatility of the Tennessee walking horse, depicting the various ways the horse is used.

The American Walking Horse Association, contest sponsor, will present Jonathan with the $25 top prize during the Eastern Classic Horse Show, scheduled for May 8 through 10 at the Quentin Riding Club. He will also be invited to distribute ribbons to the show winners.

Kimberly Kettering, the daughter of Robert and Karen Kettering, Manheim, received an honorable mention for her prize. The 13-year-old 4-H'er is a member of the Saddle Cinches 4-H Club.



This poster crafted by Jonathan Bixler of Palmyra was the first place entry in the Eastern Classic Horse Show poster contest.

Free Stickers Could Save Farm Lives

NEWARK, Del. — When an accident involving farm machinery occurs, the victim's survival often depends on the speed with which a would-be rescuer can turn off equipment. And to do that, the rescuer must know where and how to stop it.

Delaware farmers interested in making rescue easier are encouraged to label critical shut-off points on tractors, combines and other self-propelled equipment using free stickers provided by the Delaware Cooperative Extension System and Delaware Farm Bureau. The bright, iridescent orange 2-inch octagons are designed so they can be mounted on the operating panels of farm machinery.

The self-adhesive stickers are being distributed in support of "Operation Shutdown" — a safety awareness campaign sponsored by the two agencies and culminating at 1 p.m. Saturday, May 9. At that time, fire companies throughout the state will sound their sirens to encourage all farmers to take a few minutes with their spouses and other responsible family members to review shutdown procedures on the equipment used on their farm.

One decal is designed for equipment that has a pull- (or push-) to-stop device. Another is appropriate for equipment where the throttle must be moved to stop the engine. A third bearing the picture of a key and the words "STOP ENGINE" is intended for use on gasoline-powered or diesel engines which are controlled with a key. Another sticker bears the words "ENGINE STOP" plus a diagram of a sliding mechanism or lever which must be moved to cut off power.

"One of these stickers could save your life," says University of Delaware extension safety specialist Ron Jester, who urges farmers to use them. "A person's ability to make quick decisions and take proper action after an accident may be the difference between death and recovery for the victim."

Besides being trained in first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation, Jester says, would-be rescuers must be able to "size up the situation" to assure that they don't become victims, too. Their safety also depends on knowing how to stabilize equipment and eliminate fire or explosion hazards and other dangers that may be present.

Free shutoff decals, as well as additional information on Operation Shutdown, are available from county extension offices in Newark (451-8934), Dover (697-4000) and Georgetown (856-7303). They may also be obtained by writing: Extension Safety Specialist Ron Jester, University of Delaware Research and Education Center, R.D. #2, Box 48, Georgetown, DE 19947.

The next meeting of the Woolies Club will be held May 18 at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Appetizers - The Micro Way

Your microwave can really help when you are entertaining friends at home. With appetizers prepared ahead of time, it only takes a minute or two to have them piping hot and ready to serve. You can spend the time with your friends and not in the kitchen.

Even if you don't have things prepared ahead of time, you can still spend the time with your friends. Try this UNrecipe for UNexpected company!

Unrecipe For Instant Canapes

Keep a box of crackers and a jar of olives, mushrooms, etc. in the pantry. In your freezer, keep some sliced pepperoni and some shredded cheese.

When company strikes, place about 12 crackers in a ring on a plate. Put a slice of pepperoni on each cracker. Slice some olives, etc. and place one or two slices on the pepperoni, then top with a sprinkle of grated cheese. Microwave on high for 30 to 45 seconds, just until the cheese melts.

These Souffle Stuffed Mushrooms are delicious and very easy to make. In fact, any recipe for stuffed mushrooms is better when microwaved. The mushrooms hold their shape better, making them easier to handle.

Souffle Stuffed Mushrooms

24 medium-large fresh mushrooms (most of an 8-ounce box)
12 ounce package frozen spinach souffle
2 tablespoons dry bread crumbs
¼ teaspoon onion powder
2 to 3 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese

1. Unwrap frozen spinach and remove from container. Wrap half of the frozen block with foil, and set in a small microsafe bowl or casserole. Microwave on high for 1 to 1½ minutes, just until you can cup the unwrapped part loose. (See Tip, below.) Return frozen half to freezer, and set partially thawed block aside in the bowl.

2. Clean mushrooms and remove stems, saving for another use.

3. If spinach is not completely thawed, microwave on medium (50,5) for 2 to 3 minutes, just until thawed and you can stir it. Stir in bread crumbs and onion powder, mixing well. Spoon spinach into each mushroom cap rounding the top slightly. Sprinkle a little cheese on top of spinach in each mushroom.

4. Arrange 12 in a ring on a microsafe plate and microwave on hihgh for 2 to 3 minutes, until the filling is set and the mushrooms are cooked. Let stand 2 to 3 minutes before serving (to cool slightly). Serve warm. Repeat for the remaining 12 mushrooms. Makes 24 appetizers.

Tips: - Any time you need to thaw part of a package of meat, vegetables, etc., wrap the part you do not need in foil. The foil wrapped part is shielded form the microwaves and will not thaw as quickly as the unwrapped part. Put the partially foil wrapped block of food in the center of the oven, and do not let the foil touch other metal. This way, it will not arc and will be safe to put in your oven!

Microwave the block on high for a minute or two, then see if you can cup off the part you need. Repeat if it is still too frozen. As soon as you have cut off the part you need, rewrap and label the remaining frozen part and return it to the freezer.

- To prepare ahead, complete through step 3 and refrigerate. Microwave when ready to serve, increasing time 30 to 45 seconds, if chilled.

If you have your own favorite appetizers you'd like to microwave, save these hints to help you out!

Microwave Appetizers

1. The microwave can't make things brown and crispy (except bacon!), so don't try microwaving foods that need to be browned or crispy to be good. For example, pastry-wrapped or breaded things are usually a disaster when microwaved, especially if they are raw to start.

2. Prebake appetizers wrapped with pastry can be warmed up in a microwave. But some of the crispiness is lost. Place pastry-wrapped foods on a rack or paper towel so they don't get soggy on the bottom. Keep time short so pastry doesn't turn rubbery.

3. A browning grill can be used to warm crispy things, but the quantity you can do in one batch is limited. This works well for heating egg rolls, pizza, and breaded appetizers.

4. To warm precooked appetizers, place them in a ring on a round micro-safe serving platter. Microwave on medium high (70,7), unless recipe uses heat sensitive ingredients.

5. For recipes with heat sensitive ingredients (cheese, cream, sour cream, mayonnaise, eggs, meats, cream cheese) use medium (50,5) to warm them. These ingredients get rubbery or curdle easily on high power.

6. Use your microwave to bring refrigerated cheese and dips to room temperature for serving. Microwave 8 ounces of cheese for about a minute on medium (50,5). Microwave dips on medium for 1 to 1½ minutes for each cup of dip. Stir once halfway through. Double the time if you want the dip warm for serving.

7. When melting toppings on crackers for canapes, use "sturdy" crackers. Buttery type crackers get soggy easily. If topping is moist, put on cracker just before microwaving.

NOTE: The times above are for microwaves with 650-700 watts of paper. For 500-600 W, add 10-15 seconds to each minute.

Operation Shutdown Set For May 9 in Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Do your spouse and other family members know how to shut off a tractor or other piece of farm equipment in an emergency situation?

Do they know how to disconnect electric power to a piece of equipment or a burning building?

Though preventing accidents should be their goal, farmers and their families need to know what to do when an accident or other emergency does occur. For example, how does one shut off an overturned tractor to minimize the fire hazard?

The latest statistics indicate that farming is the most hazardous industry in the United States. Most facilities and disabling injuries result from involvement in machinery accidents. A recent National Safety Council report indicates that more than 66 percent of all permanent farm injuries and more than 70 percent of all accidental deaths involve tractor and agricultural machinery.

"Much farm work is of a solitary nature," points out University of Delaware extension safety specialist Ron Jester. "Accident victims are often found in isolated locations — sometimes hours after the accident."

The victim is usually found by a family member or neighbor. That person's ability to make quick decisions and take proper action may make the difference between the victim's recovery from the accident and death.

Besides knowing how to administer first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation, the first person at the scene must be able to size up the situation to assure that he or she does not become a victim, too. This includes stabilizing equipment and eliminating fire or explosion hazards and other dangers that may be present.

In recognition of the importance of knowing such emergency procedures, Delaware's governor, Mike Castle, has signed a proclamation designating Saturday, May 9, at 1 p.m. as Operation Shutdown. The event is being sponsored jointly by the Delaware Farm Bureau and the Delaware Cooperative Extension System.

On this day, fire companies throughout the state will be sounding their sirens at 1 p.m. to encourage all farmers to take a few minutes with their spouses and other responsible family members to discuss shutdown procedures.

Most modern farms have a confusing number of panel boxes and switches. For quick action in an emergency, the switch that controls each machine should be clearly marked on the switch cover. Main and individual circuits should also be clearly marked so the first responders to an emergency can shut off power.

"When you hear the sirens Saturday afternoon, May 9th, take a few minutes to review proper shut-off procedures for equipment," Jester says. "Go through each piece of equipment starting with the tractor. Also locate electrical panels, identify circuits, and discuss shutting off electrical power to buildings and equipment."

Educational packets and decals in support of Operation Shutdown are available from the Delaware Farm Bureau and county extension offices in Newark (451-2506), Dover (697-4000) and Georgetown (856-7303). Or write: Extension Safety Specialist Ronald C. Jester, University of Delaware Research & Education Center, RD #2, Box 48, Georgetown, DE 19947.

Penn State Ag Faculty To Attend Development Workshops

UNIVERSITY PARK — Classes may be over for students, but soon it will be class time for faculty. The College of Agriculture has scheduled a week of faculty development workshops beginning May 18.

Teaching styles, assumptions about how students learn, and individual personality traits all have an impact on classroom dynamics. Workshops on Monday and Tuesday, led by Dr. Leverne A. Barrett, associate professor of agricultural education at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, are targeted to understanding the role of personality in teaching and learning. They will be based on the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator personality preference model.

Barrett also will give a public seminar on his studies of leadership types. He will discuss how students today differ from those of several decades ago and how those differences are likely to change the way decisions are made in the future.

Faculty attending the "Systems Approaches to Food and Agricultural Problems" workshop Thursday and Friday will concentrate on developing changes in the undergraduate curriculum to reflect the interdisciplinary nature of most issues in food, agriculture and natural resources. They also will address the impact that policies and practices in these areas have on values and communities. Last fall the College of Agriculture adopted recommendations for curriculum changes and this workshop will focus on how the College will implement those recommendations.

Dr. Kathleen Wilson, assistant professor of community resource development at the University of Hawaii; Dr. Les Lanyon, associate professor of soil fertility; and Dr. Pat Madden, professor of agricultural economics, both at Penn State, will lead the systems approaches workshop.

Dr. Wilson will give a public seminar, "Systems Thinking and Practice Applied to Food, Agriculture and Natural Resource Situations: Origins, Variations, and Advances" in 301 Ag Admin., May 21 at 7:30 p.m. In addition to reviewing the systems approach to learning, she will discuss current trends in curricula development.

Faculty will attend workshops on how to implement speaking and writing across the curriculum. Dr. James Hamilton, assistant professor of speech at the Mont Alto Campus, will lead the workshop on ways to develop speaking-intensive courses that will complement SPCOM 100X, a University requirement.

The writing across the curriculum workshop will be led by Dr. Paul Shellenberger, professor of dairy science, Dr. Robert Baldwin, associate professor of wood science and technology, will join Dr. Ronald Maxwell and Dr. Davita Charney, assistant professors of English. Shellenberger and Baldwin have already offered "W" courses, approved by the Faculty Senate as writing-intensive courses to complement University communications requirements.

About 100 faculty have preregistered for workshops. Contact Dr. Al Jarrett, acting assistant dean for resident education, at (814) 865-7521 for more information.

Yellow Rose 4-H Club

The Yellow Rose 4-H Club will sponsor an Annual Open Horse Show May 10 at the Luzerne County Fairgrounds, located 3 miles west of Dallas on Route 118. The show will begin at 8 a.m.

The show will feature 40 classes which will include Western Pleasure and Equitations, Hunter Horses and Ponies, 4-H Pleasures and Equitations, Gymkhana, and Pee Wee Classes. A trophy and six ribbons will be awarded in all classes and champion and reserve champion in each division.

SEWAGE SLUDGE IS A VALUABLE RESOURCE!!

Did you know that.....
... municipal and industrial wastewater treatment plants produce two end products - water and sludge
... after treatment, the water is returned to the environment, usually to the nearest stream.
... sludge is produced as a result of biological, chemical and physical conditioning processes within the treatment plant.
... many sludges are often landfilled or incinerated, even though they may have good crop fertilizer value.
... landfilling and incineration are very costly disposal techniques, compared to land application methods of injection and incorporation.
... higher disposal costs are paid for by the users of the system — local businesses and homeowners.
... farmland application of good quality stabilized sludge can provide an economical means of disposal for the treatment plant, and results in savings to the farmer by reducing his fertilizer needs for many field crops such as corn, small grain and hay.
... land application permits are issued and monitored by the state environmental agency to assure compliance with good management techniques.
... Statewide will work with you to obtain both the permit and the quality sludge to reduce your crop input costs.
... there is no cost for this service to qualified farmers.
... sewage sludge is a valuable resource!! Find out today!

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Eby trailers or truck bodies can haul anything you want — even Brahman bulls

Eby Gives You Choices

You can haul livestock in a trailer hooked to your pickup. Or on the other hand, you may prefer a truck and livestock body for its maneuverability.

Perhaps you need to haul dairy cattle Or calves. Hogs. Sheep. Horses. Even a Brahman Bull.

You decide what you want. Then practically design your own Eby trailer or livestock body before it's custom made. Choose length, width and height. Select from a variety of partitions and doors Even decide whether or not to have a tool box In short, our versatility lets you own just what you want.

But you don't have to make all the choices

Every Eby livestock body and trailer is aluminum. No matter what options you choose, your trailer or body will never rust or need paint. It's as much as 35% lighter than steel and wood construction for increased load capacity and better fuel economy And heavy-duty standard components ensure safe, trouble-free hauling for years to come.

Now all these choices can be yours for probably a lot less than you expect. In fact, when you figure in the durability and low maintenance, an Eby all-aluminum livestock body or trailer is a fantastic value. So give us a call, or write, for more information and the name of the dealer nearest you.

For 70 Years We've Helped Farm Families Succeed.

Many families took their first step to successful farming when they stepped into their local Farm Credit office.

They came to us for a loan to buy the land and build the house and raise the barn.

As farms are passed on from generation to generation, many of them grow into family corporations.

And Farm Credit remains a part of the picture. With loans to help plant the seeds and harvest the crops. Or buy more land for future generations.

There's a very good reason why we want farmers to prosper. It's because we're farmers, too. The Farm Credit System is owned and controlled by the farmers who use it.

So the next time you need a loan, look up the family member who isn't in the photographs you see here.

But who's always been in the background.

HOMETOWN ECONOMICS
By Walt Buescher
A Seven Part Series

Editor's Note: We first heard this humorist give this speech at the ADA-DC Annual Meeting in Syracuse, N.Y. but Walt Buescher of Pigeon Forge, Tennessee has spoken in Pennsylvania a good many times too. He always gives farm and agri-business groups the same message, a message that he calls "Hometown Economics," but which can best be described with the words, "cut back or sell."

Since retirement from Allis-Chalmers, Buescher has lived in the Smoky Mountains of Tennessee where he operates a sales promotion firm called Grass Roots Communications. For the last 10 years, he has filled speaking dates for Ford New Holland all over the United States. So, here's Part 6 of 7 Parts.

Last time we stated in effect, "For farmers, the cash register is as important as the plow." Farm production without farm marketing adds up to zilch.

If I have inferred that farmers have done nothing about marketing, that impression is wrong. When I was a boy in Indiana, we got one orange a year...at church on Christmas Eve. If you got in a fight when you came home from church, you either had two oranges that year or you skipped a year. Then some farmers out in California got together and they called themselves Sunkist. They started to sell oranges. Now you can buy oranges 364 days a year. The only day you can't get them is Christmas... store's closed. That's what one group of farmers have done about marketing. Dole Pineapple. Ocean-Spray Cranberries. Chiquita Bananas. They all use the Sunkist idea. I don't know if this will work with corn or soybeans, but it's something of a pattern that should be looked at.

People ask me, "How do you think it's going to happen?" I tell them, "I can't tell you for two reasons: (1) we don't have the time, and (2) I don't know." But when farmers ask, "How do we do it?" that's the first step. We must admit we have a problem before we move toward the solution. It's a kind of lousy comparison, but a drunk has to admit that he's a drunk before AA's can help him.

I see American Farm Bureau as the big horizonal organization, but Farm Bureau is made up of competitors, so it can't choose sides. Pork farmers compete with beef farmers who compete with poultrymen. Soybean farmers compete with sunflower farmers. Wheat farmers compete with rice farmers. But I know Farm Bureau well enough to know that they realize that marketing is very important.

I can see a role for government. In countries where all the buying is done from one swivel chair, we'll need help from the USDA and State Department. Continental and Cargill have the order blanks. They'll be in the picture somewhere.

It's my guess, however, that commodity groups is where the action will be. I speak at a lot of their conventions. At Nashville, at the Beef Convention there, I got a bumper sticker that read, "Beef Means Strength." A gal from Michigan came to the Nashville convention wearing a button that said, "If he doesn't get it at home, he'll go out after it...serve beef at home." If the Cattlemen don't buy a couple million of those buttons and scatter them around, they're nuts. That's clever enough to sell beef.

At Myrtle Beach, at a Pork Convention, I got two bumper stickers. One said, "Lean on Pork," playing up the lean aspects of pork. The other said, "Promote Pork...run over a chicken." Pork people promote "the other white meat."

The American Soybean Association has been doing a whale of a job of marketing for over 30 years that I know of. If Jerry Ford hadn't undercut them and put Brazil and Argentina in the soybean business, soybeans would be one of the bright spots in USA agriculture. If the Good Lord was to create a new crop to solve the world's hunger problems, it would have to look much like the soybean...all that protein.

Corn Producers work at new markets. Sweeteners. Ethanol. A product that Chevron calls Ice-B-Gone...a substitute for salt on the highways. Environmentally much more acceptable, and it won't rust out the fenders.

Beef people have a new national advertising campaign going. I've seen some of the first ads and they're good.

Dairy people, in my book, have done the best job of all. They spend just over 1% of gross on promotion and it's paying off. In one year, 4% increase in fluid milk sales, 3% increase in butter sales, 9% increase in cheese sales. They plunked their Super Bowl ads in the first quarter before people had too much beer or Coke or coffee and had to go to the bathroom during the commercial. That was deliberate. That was good marketing.

I like to talk to dairy groups because I think they gave the greatest potential. You can eat only so much bread and potatoes and meat, but liquids? Wow! Water, apple juice, tomato juice, milk, new Coke, old Coke, new-old Coke, old-new Coke, 7-Up, Pepsi, Mellow Yellow, Budweiser, Pabst, Gallo, Christian Brothers, Old Granddad, Jim Beam, Maxwell House and Liptons. Milk is the best drink of the bunch and the price is right. I tell dairy audiences, "You ought to be ashamed of yourself for letting soft-drink people get ahead of you."

Did you ever read what was on the back of a soft drink can? You don't know whether to put it in your stomach or your radiator. Soft drink people brag, "There's nothing in it." No vitamins, no carbohydrates, no protein, no calories, no preservatives, no artificial coloring, no nothing but bubbles and water and they charge more for the stuff than farmers charge for milk.

I tell dairy people, "Why don't you take a page out of the brewer's book?" They found out that if you pour a bucket of water into a bucket of beer and call it 'Lite,' you can sell water for the price of beer. Then Lehigh Valley Dairy, here in Pennsylvania, sent me a milk carton labeled, 'Lite' milk. They also sent one that had 66% more calcium added...strong bones, you know."

Yep, farmers are doing something about marketing, but they've only just begun. You still see more farmers in the rest room at the Harrisburg Farm Show than you do at a commodity group convention. Somehow we must all work together to convince all farmers that if they don't learn how to sell, they won't need to produce.

Let's stop here for today. Next time I'll come with the wind-up.

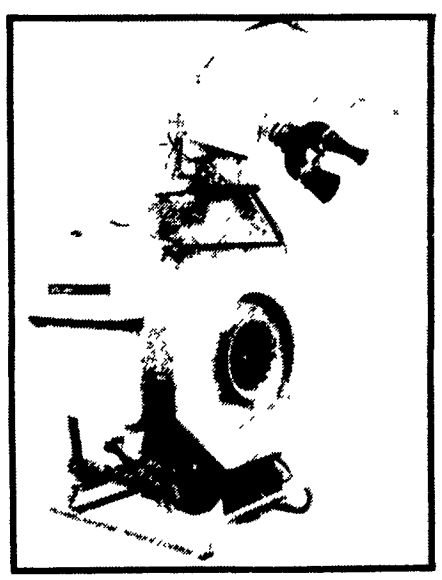
MODEL C-400 "CANNON"

Versatile Sprayer For Many Different Applications Of Insecticides And Fungicides!



Aerodynamic Design Of The "Cannon" Head Delivers

MORE AIR!

39" fan produces 280 MPH air speed. Allows you to cover 100-130 feet which means fewer trips thru the fields, fewer drive roads and more crop per acre. This design gives a well-defined, easily controlled mist, yet small cannon covers crop close to tractor.

MORE PENETRATION!

High air velocity produces a finer mist which penetrates short dense growth or tall crops such as sweet corn. Also allows smaller volumes of water with excellent coverage and fewer trips to the water tank.

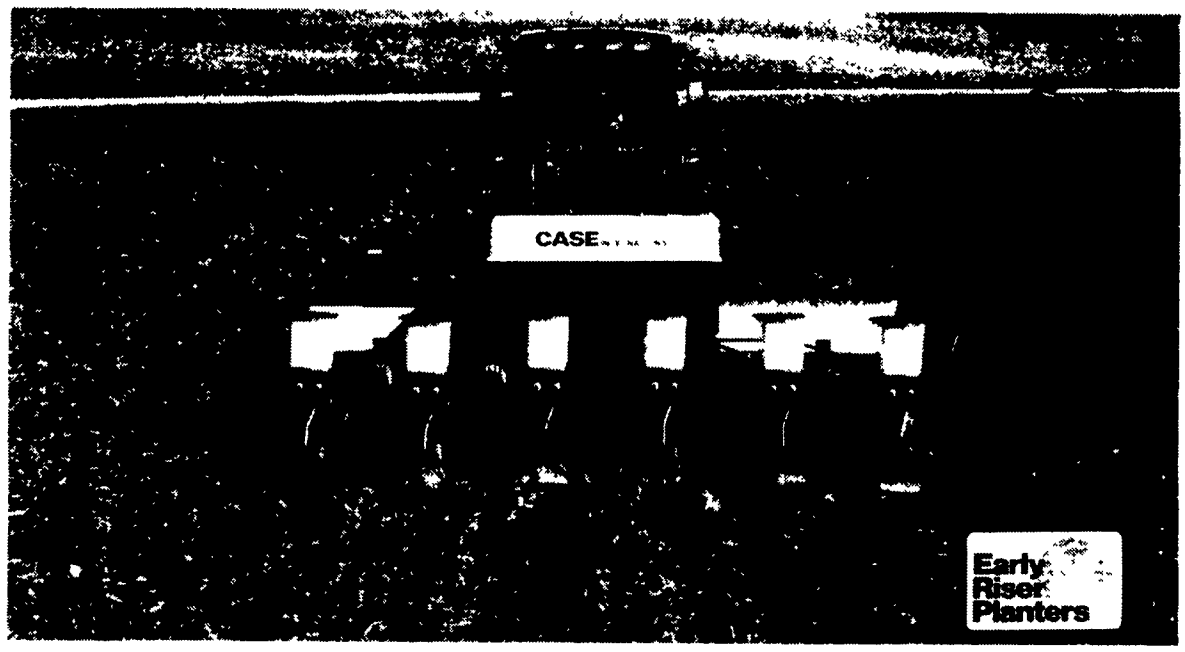
EARLY RISER PLANTER

THE ONE FOR CONVENTIONAL, MIN-TILL, NO-TILL & SOD



The 900 Series Early Riser Row Units Are The Secret!

1. Case IH staggered doubled disk openers reduce power demands, effectively cut through trash and penetrate hard soils, eliminating the need for costly colter attachments common to so-called "no till" planters.

2. Exclusive front pull equalizing depth gauge wheels are connected through special linkage that maintains equal pressure on the gauge wheels at all times. Grooved gauge wheel tires work to trap the moist soil brought up by the openers so that soil is placed back into the bottom of the seed trench following seed placement.

3. Improved Furrow firming point forms a well-defined "V" furrow bottom offering optimum depth control, seed spacing and germination.

4. With the clean "V" furrow bottom and smooth, narrow seed trench, seeds are delivered to the same depth and held in place for reliable uniform emergence.

5. Twin inverted staggered covering disks mounted directly behind the openers, return moist soil to the seed trench and provide good seed/soil contact.

6. Chevron-tread press wheels seal the closed seed trench and firm the furrow, eliminating air pockets and promoting optimum germination.

CONVENTIONAL SILOS

Since forage quality is so important to today's dairy farmers, it is very important to consider factors that might improve that quality.

Many farmers are finding that an upright silo is a good investment because of increased feed value of haylage. Samples of wilted hay from University forage analysis programs are running 3.5-4 percentage points higher in crude protein than the average hay sample.

There is no better upright silo than a poured Sollenberger Silo! The strong, smooth walls reflect heat so that your forage protein doesn't suffer from heat damage.

You will appreciate the quality of a Sollenberger Silo, and "your cows will just love you" because of the high quality feed.

A Sollenberger Silo keeps feed good, and unloads easily, at the 50%-58% moisture level.

"The real difference between seed companies goes beyond the seed."

David Garst

David Garst, Garst Seed Company

There are a lot of seed companies selling hybrid corn. And with today's genetic technology, most of them can sell you a pretty good hybrid.

But the trick is to match the right number to your particular need. Your particular style of farming.

And that's where a seed company's people come in.

Back when hybrid seeds were first being sold, my father came up with the farmer/salesman concept. And for the past 54 years, Garst seed has been sold to farmers by farmers.

Farmers who understand the difference between farms. And between farmers. That what works well for you, may not be quite right for your neighbor.

That's why you'll find Garst Seed salesmen talking with their neighbors. Learning their needs. And personally planting and testing Garst numbers— getting to know how each performs in his own area.

They're willing to do the homework, and the legwork it takes to help you get that little bit extra from the land you farm.

I believe the real difference between seed companies is not just in the seed. It's in the people.

That's why for 54 years, we've built the Garst Seed Company not just on good seed, but on good people.

The difference goes beyond the seed.

Britishers Top Shearing Contest

Soviet-American Theme Highlights Sheep And Wool Festival

BY SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

The annual Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival proved to be yet another wild and wooly event for the steady crowd of people who flocked to the two day event in Howard County, Maryland last week.

Supreme Champions Named

Various breed shows were ongoing throughout the festival, judged by Dr. Gary Ricketts of Illinois. "It has been an excellent show here for the past few days," declared Ricketts. "There are some very high quality animals here." Premier breeder awards were presented to Cindy Bankhead for her showing in the Romney division. Bankhead also captured the title for showing the supreme champion ewe with her entry in the White Long Wool division, a Romney. Bankhead is from Rock Hall, Maryland.

A Natural-Colored ram was chosen as supreme champion ram of the show. The large Corriedale was exhibited by Billie Andrews of Vesper Valley Farms in Spring Grove, Pennsylvania.

Sarah Ruppert of Union Bridge, Maryland was named premier exhibitor in the Corriedale, White Wool and Natural-Colored Wool shows. Premier exhibitor in the Border Leicester division was Randy Irwin of Freeland, Maryland.

Champion Shears Blindfolded

While steady crowds flocked to the breed shows, thousands more herded through the various exhibits, craft shows and demonstrations. The outcome of the professional sheep-shearing contest was anybody's guess right up to the end. Ian Roxborough won by two shakes of a lamb's tail, with 293.9 points out of a possible 300. There was a point spread of only 27 points from first place to eighth. "Roxy" is a professional shearer from England who was making his seventh appearance at the Maryland festival.

Having sheared as many as 200 to 300 sheep in a day, Roxy could "do it blindfolded." And that is exactly what he did. After the contest he met the challenge and sheared a sheep almost as quickly as his contest time while wearing a blindfold. David Todd, also of England, took second place, with Kent Kershner of Middletown, Maryland placing third.

Lustrous, curly fleeces were judged and displayed at the festival. A Natural-Colored fleece from a Border Leicester owned by Janet McPeck of Decker, Michigan was named champion in that division and selected as the overall grand champion fleece. In the White Fleece category, Morehouse Farm in Red Rock, New York exhibited the champion fleece and overall reserve champion fleece.

Soviet Sheep On Display

Approximately 30 breeds of sheep were on display in the barns at the fairgrounds. Even some of the exotic breeds were exhibited, such as Cotswold, Romanov and Hog Island. The Romanov sheep, exhibited by Pitts and Sam Dockman of Parkton, Maryland, represented the first privately owned flock in the United States.

The breed, which originated in the Soviet Union, is prized for its high lambing rate, milk production and small size. "If I can get by with a 140-pound sheep and cut feed costs, that's what I'm after," explained Dockman. The Dockmans raise about 100 Corriedales and recently introduced the Romanovs to their flock. "We hope to cross them with out-of-season breeders such as Dorsets, for year-round lambing." The Dockmans acquired their rare flock from Canadian stock. "They are good flockers out in the pasture and they aren't spooky," added Dockman.

The diminutive set of Romanov twins were the center of attention in the Exotic Breeds Display. The Dockman's ewes have had two sets of triplets and one set of twins, with another ewe due to lamb any time. "Our goal is to offer stud service and ram lambs," said Dockman.

The Romanov sheep represented one of the two interesting Soviet-American links to the event. A Soviet-American Peace Quilt was on display to express women's concerns for their children's future.

The portraits of 20 children from the United States and 20 children from the U.S.S.R. were stitched by American women from photographs. Soviet women sewed the border and the central panel which is taken from a Soviet peace poster. Hosted by British Mothers for Peace, representatives from both countries pieced the quilt together. The quilting was done in Boise, Idaho. The wool batting is "Peace Fleece" from sheep of both countries. The project was a creation of Peter Hagerty, a Maine wool producer, "to demonstrate

This Corriedale shown by Billie Andrews of Spring Grove, Pa., was festival's supreme champion ram.

Hot Weather And The Poultry House

Bird comfort is extremely important for maintaining productivity. Hot weather, especially sudden periods of high temperatures early in warmer months, usually results in bird discomfort and loss of feed efficiency and egg production. These sudden periods of high temperature usually occur before the birds have had an opportunity to acclimatize or become adapted to warmer weather.

The end result is that one or two days of 85° F temperatures early in the year can be more detrimental to productivity than a week of 90-95°F later in the summer. This is especially true if the producer has not serviced and fine tuned the ventilation system prior to the first hot spell.

Preparing the poultry house ventilation system for summer weather includes servicing the inlets, fans, plus the controls for inlets and fans. The assumption is being made that the ventilation system is properly sized for the number of birds housed. If the ventilation system is improperly sized, no degree of servicing the components will result in proper summer ventilation. The following are suggestions for preparing the ventilation components for summer conditions.

Inlets

Inlet openings are the entry point of fresh outside air into the poultry house. The air intake openings are usually covered with screening of a size that will prevent wild birds from entering the building. There is almost always air being pulled through this screening by the ventilation fans. Dust, feathers or other debris caught by the screening will not normally fall away. They only serve as obstructions to entrap additional material. In all probability, this screening has not been cleaned since last fall and should be cleaned immediately.

The baffle or series of baffles that prevents pulling air from the attic into the building through the inlets should be checked to assure they are firmly in place and have not become dislodged.

The inlet baffles should be operated manually to assure they open properly and are not binding at points.

Fans

Fans are the heart of the poultry ventilation system. Proper fan maintenance includes:

- checking to make certain all fans are operational and have been lubricated if required.
- cleaning the fan blades, orifices, and motors.
- cleaning and lubricating (use graphite) fan louvers.
- adjusting belt tension and replacing belts as necessary.
- stocking spare replacement fan belts.

Establish a regular schedule for servicing the fans during the summer months. Proper maintenance can increase the air delivery capacity of a fan by as much as 30-40 percent.

Controls

Dust should be removed from the sensing units of thermostats. Dust on these sensing units can act as an insulating agent and reduce theromstat sensitivity.

Most poultry air intake systems are regulated by automatic inlet controllers. These controllers use a manometer as a sensing device. The manometer in these units should be serviced. This includes checking the fluid level and calibrating the zero setting. Adjust the automatic inlet controller to maintain a .04-.06 static pressure in the building.

Check the high temperature alarm to make certain it is operating properly.

Cooling Systems

If the poultry house contains a misting evaporative cooling system, this system should be serviced as follows:

1. Remove all nozzles and soak for 10-20 minutes in approximately an 8 percent solution of hydrochloric acid. This can be prepared by diluting common swimming pool muriatic acid 3:1 with water. Dilute the acid in a plastic or glass container; Do Not Use A Metal Container. Warning: Acid is Caustic - Do Not Get In Eyes, Mouth Or On Skin.
2. Remove nozzles for solution and rinse with water.
3. Replace nozzles.
4. Service the pump in accordance with the manufacturer's recommendations.

A small investment now can pay big dividends when the first hot spells occur.

Deere To Celebrate 150th Anniversary With Tours, Displays

MOLINE, Ill. – This year Deere & Company celebrates a corporate milestone that few American industrial companies have attained – the 150th anniversary of continuously doing business under the same name.

The event that led to the founding of the company in 1837, while unheralded at the time, changed the course of an important segment of U.S. history: the agricultural development of the bountiful midwestern prairies by eastward moving frontiersmen and women.

Working in a small blacksmith shop in the tiny village of Grand Detour, Illinois, a "smithy" from New England named John Deere set out to solve a problem that was plaguing the farmers who were arriving in the midwest from the east in increasing numbers. The problem was simple: the fertile midwestern soil was so sticky that it gummed up on the farmers' plows. This meant they had to stop their teams of horses every few steps and scrape the plow blade clean.

This was a laborious task and was so discouraging to some frontier farmers that they were beginning to pack up and return East. John Deere had been in Illinois for less than a year in 1837, having migrated from Vermont, when word of this dilemma caught his attention and his craftman's imagination. He set out to find a solution to the problem and, by changing the material used in the plow from cast iron to steel, he succeeded.

Deere soon showed he had as much talent as a marketer as he did as an inventor and his new self-scouring plow became a hit with farmers. Within 10 years, the farm equipment business of John Deere had grown at such a pace that he decided to move it to the Mississippi river town of Moline, Illinois, to take advantage of the water power and better transportation facilities.

During 1987, Deere & Company will engage in activities to celebrate its 150th birthday. Events such as antique tractor competitions, factory and office open houses, displays of farm machinery that John Deere produced over the years and special events at the John Deere Historic Site at Grand Detour, will mark the anniversary year.

Special activities surrounding the 150th anniversary of John Deere's business that are open to the public include the equipment museum at the Deere & Company Administrative Center on John Deere Road in Moline, Illinois. The special display shows an evolution of equipment produced throughout the history of the company. The display is open year-round daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Large groups should call in advance 309-752-4208 or 309-752-4235.

Also of special interest is the John Deere Historic Site at Grand Detour, Illinois. The site includes John Deere's original Illinois home, a replica of his first blacksmith shop, an archaeological exhibit supplemented with audio visual programs at the location of the original blacksmith shop and the restored home of a former neighbor of John Deere. For information call 815-652-4551.

The John Deere Historic Site is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily from March 1 to November 30. Fee is $1 for those 16 and older.

On July 16, 17, 18, and 19, hundreds of collectors of antique John Deere tractors from 48 States and from other countries will gather in Waterloo, Iowa, the home of Deere's tractor manufacturing in North America, for a major show of their restored equipment. The display will include Waterloo Boy and John Deere tractors and some implements produced between the early 1900s and 1960. For information call 309-752-5030.

Seed Treatment Gives Wheat Healthy Start

SALISBURY, Md. – One of the first systemic seed treatment fungicides on the market, Vitavax-200 (R) Flowable Fungicide, today remains the most popular and one of the most widely used by wheat farmers across the United States.

"With Vitavax-200, farmers choosing to have their seed treated get the best of both worlds, because it contains a systemic and a contact fungicide," says Frank Welch, marketing director for Beachley-Hardy Seed Company.

The surface action of the contact fungicide, Thiram, protects the seed from soil-borne disease and decay. The systemic fungicide, Carboxin, is absorbed through the seed coat and translocated into the developing seedling.

"The systemic action provides protection for up to three weeks, allowing your plants time to develop healthy root systems and hardy foliage," says Welch.

Welch says university tests show not only an increase in yield from treated versus untreated seed, but also increases in germination percentages in diseased seed.

The popularity of the systemic fungicide comes not only from its effectiveness to control disease, but also from the cost effectiveness of using it versus an in-furrow or broadcast application of a fungicide.

"The field application of a fungicide can cost three to five times what a seed treatment costs and still not offer the assurance that the fungicide will come into contact with the seed," says Welch.

Lebanon Chemical Celebrates 40th Anniversary

LEBANON – Vernon Bishop, founder and president of Lebanon Chemical Corporation, has announced the celebration of the company's 40th year of service to the agricultural and turfgrass industries of North America.

Established in 1947, Lebanon Chemical began as a small fertilizer business operating out of a renovated drop forge plant in Lebanon, Pa. Founded on service to production agriculture, the company's reputation for quality grew, bringing prosperity and new opportunities for future growth.

While strengthening its position in the agricultural marketplace, Lebanon branched out with new product lines for the turf and horticultural markets. It started supplying Sears and Roebuck, as well as many other customers, with its own brands of private label fertilizers.

Today, Lebanon's branded and private label products reach out to homeowners and professional users from coast to coast, and represent almost 50 percent of the company's total volume.

Much of Lebanon Chemical's growth in the past 40 years can be attributed to Vernon Bishop's successful practice of growth through acquisition. The purchase of New Jersey's Dayton Fertilizer plant in 1965 was the first of many acquisitions which proved to be profitable in choice and operation for the company.

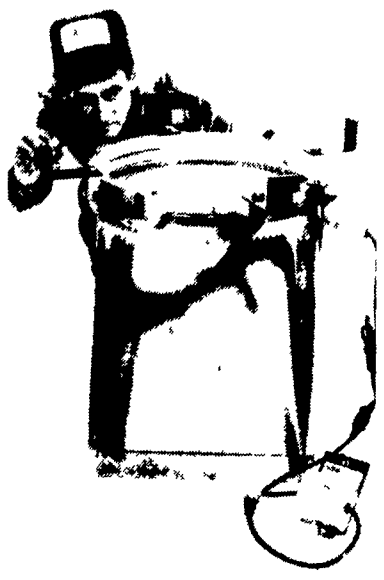
Once a single plant in Lebanon County, Lebanon Chemical now operates 48 producing locations in seven states and employs over 700 people. Its products, distributed throughout the continental United States, are marketed under a variety of brand names, such as Lebanon, Greenview, Green Gold, Glorion, Country Club, Homestead, Greenskeeper, Lebanon Pro, Green Pro, and Turfmaster.

Broad Pan Distributor Increases Silage Quality

DOYLESTOWN, Ohio – The broad pan Easy-Up Model 1604 silage distributor, a high capacity member of 3-J Manufacturing Company's powered distributor family, is now available from the manufacturer and at silo service companies and farm implement dealers in the U.S. and Canada.

The Model 1604 features the company's patented gear-driven, self-cleaning race design. Its new design incorporates a large 16-inch diameter assembly. A precision cast aluminum race is driven -- rack and pinion style – by a completely sealed, burn-out resistant motor. This allows the stainless steel broad pan deflector to produce a near-flat distribution pattern in silage materials like haylage and high moisture ground ear corn without spillage, flow by or plugging – even from today's newer, higher capacity blowers.

The importance of a near-flat distribution pattern in silos has been stressed recently in a new study from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Dr. Howard J. Crowder, Elanco Marketing Services, Elanco Products Company, Lilly Corporate Center, Indianapolis, Indiana 46285



Easy-Up Silage Distributor

Larsen found that silage distribution patterns in silo filling are directly related to silo capacity and quality of the resulting feed. He concluded that the nearly flat pattern produced by a well-managed broad pan distributor could increase the capcity of a silo by as much as 30 percent. Silage materials pack in a uniform fashion, rapidly exhausting air and promoting good quality feed.

The Model 1604 weighs less than 20 pounds and can be easily moved from silo to silo. Equipped with mounting brackets specified for hatch size and silo type, it simply drops onto the hatch mounting ring. These are provided by the manufacturer to fit most popular silos.

Easy-Up Model 1604 Silage Distributor is manufactured by 3-J Manufacturing Company Inc., 437 South Portage Road, Doylestown, Ohio 44230, telephone (216) 658-2529.

Agway Ad Introduces 'Pork Chop Machine'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. – A "Lean, mean pork chop machine," also known as a pig, stars in a new print campaign by Eric Mower and Associates for Agway Feed Services' introduction of Pro:Lean Swine Feeds.

The campaign, which has been running exclusively in Lancaster Farming since March, is slated for rollout throughout Agway's service area which includes New York, Pennsylvania, New England, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

The campaign was launched in Pennsylvania to coincide with Agway's participation in the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council, and addresses farmers' needs for leaner, faster growing and healthier meat for more profitable pork production operations.

DPI Fund Drive Nets Record Amount

GEORGETOWN, Del. – The 1987 Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. Fund Drive concluded April 28 with the annual Delmarva Poultry Booster Banquet at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center in Salisbury, Maryland. Nearly 2,500 people associated with the local poultry industry attended the banquet.

DPI first vice president and fund drive chairman, Keith Rinehart, told the audience $367,445 in donations and pledges had been collected. This year's goal was $340,000. Both the amount collected and the goal were record highs.

This money will be used to finance DPI's many activities. As the non-profit trade association representing all phases of Delmarva's poultry industry, DPI works for the progress of the industry through research, legislative and public affairs, consumer information, educational activities and the promotion of chicken consumption.

One of the highlights of the night was the presentation of awards to three people who have made noteworthy contributions to the local poultry industry. The DPI Medal of Achievement, an award given to a public servant for outstanding accomplishment and service on behalf of the poultry industry, was given to Richard S. Barr of Salisbury, Maryland. Barr, a native of Colorado, came to Salisbury in 1969 when he bought the International-Harvester dealership. In 1983, he established the Barr Transportation Center near Delmar, Maryland and recently he opened Accubilt, a heavy duty parts distributorship and machine shop. His companies have more than 100 employees. Barr has won many trucking industry awards, most recently the prestigious Business Week/ATD Truck Dealer of the Year Award.

Delmarva's Distinguished Citizen Award for 1987 was presented to Everett Conaway of Seaford, Delaware, a native of that city. This is the highest honor conferred by DPI in recognition of contributions to the poultry industry and community affairs. While at the Albright Company in Chicago, Conaway developed a patent for chicken processing equipment. Later, he furthered his knowledge of processing equipment and gathered experience in the poultry industry while representing several major poultry equipment companies. Conaway has been an active director of DPI for more than 30 years and has served on a number of DPI committees.

A special DPI presentation was made at the Booster Banquet to Dr. John K. Rosenberger, chairman of the Department of Animal Sciences and Agricultural Biochemistry at the University of Delaware. This award was given to recognize Dr. Rosenberger for his close work with the Delmarva poultry industry and the research contributions he and his colleagues have made. In the early 1970's, he identified a new poultry disease syndrome caused by the infectious bursal disease virus (Gumboro disease). Ten years later when established vaccines ceased to work well against this disease, he identified new, variant strains of the virus from which a new vaccine was produced last year. These discoveries have saved the industry millions of dollars.

Badger Offers New Forage Blowers

KAUKAUNA, Wisc. – Two new forage blower models designed for maximum effectiveness in silo operations are now available from Badger Northland, Inc.

The Badger BN1040 (1000 RPM) are equipped with heavyweight, cupped paddle Badger fans. The cupped paddle design allows greater efficiency because the paddle concentrates each forage "charge" at the center of the air stream. This maintains high velocity for the heaviest material.

Combined with Badger's "throw action" hopper, it creates an unbeatable combination for high-volume silo filling. A complement to the effectiveness of the cupped paddle fan, this hopper actually lifts and throws sticky haylage directly into the intake auger.

A high-strength rim sheet constructed of durable Corten steel and a flexible windguard which minimizes spillage are also standard on Badger's new blowers And to insure a smooth, trouble-free operation, Badger forage blowers include an adjustable shear bar which prevents feed carryover, and a powerful permament magnet to catch scrap metal before it can reach livestock.

Americans Eating More

Per capital U.S. food consumption increased an estimated 2.2 percent in 1985 to a record level, according to the latest figures in USDA's aggregate food consumption index.

Consumptions rose 3.4 percent for crop-based foods and 1.4 percent for animal products.

Historic highs in per capita consumption were set in 1985 by several products and product groups, including poultry, fish, breakfast cereals, peanuts, orange juice, several fresh fruits and vegetables (grapes, bananas, tomatoes, broccoli and onions), high fructose corn syrup, soft drinks and wine.

Many other products also registered consumption gains from 1984 to 1985. Among them were beef, pork, the overall dairy product group, rice and wheat flour.

Per capita consumption declined in 1985 for eggs, whole milk, a few fresh fruits and vegetables (apples, peaches, carrots, sweet corn and lettuce), canned fruits, refined sugar (which fell to the lowest level on record), coffee and beer.

Moisture Meter Gives In-Cab Readout

BOONTON, N.J. – Delmhorst's new DLB-1 moisture meter enables a tractor operator to monitor hay moisture content while baling without having to leave the cab.

The meter features digital LCD readout, temperature stable circuitry, under-range and over-range indication, hands-free operation and may also be used as a portable meter.

Installation requires drilling four small holes for bolts. For information contact: Thomas J. Laurenzi, Delmhorst Instrument Co., P.O. Box 220, Boonton, N.J. 07005. Phone: 201-334-2557

Sulbra CMA Elects Directors

TOWANDA — The Sulbra Crop Management Association serving most of the Northern Tier area recently elected two new directors to the group of seven directors. The new directors are Jim Gore of Ulster and Roy Beardslee of Columbia Cross Roads. Incumbent director and president of the association, Charles Allen of Granville Summit was re-elected. Other directors now serving the association are Duane Wilcox of Canton, William Lambert of Dushore, Sidney Lewis of Wysox and Robert Taylor of Rome.

The Sulbra Crop Management Association has grown to over 50 members and approximately 10,000 acres in Sullivan, Bradford, Wyoming and Susquehanna counties.

The Association has saved many farmers the first year $10,000 to $12,000 on fertilizer and up to $1,000 on herbicides alone. Other savings have been in pesticides primarily in insect control.

Benefits of the organization are many. More efficient crop production results from applying fertilizer and lime according to recommendations based on accurate, representative soil samples. Increased profits may come from lower costs, higher yields, higher quality, or combinations of all three.

For more information contact any of the directors, technicians or the Bradford County Extension Service at 717-265-2896.

Penn State Scientists Clone Gene For Anti-Pollution Enzyme

UNIVERSITY PARK – Two Penn State scientists have cloned the gene for an enzyme capable of destroying a wide variety of environmental pollutants commonly found in chemical dump sites, papermaking industries and agricultural wastes.

Dr. Ming Tien, assistant professor of molecular and cell biology, and Dr. David Tu, associate professor of biochemistry and molecular biology, describe cloning the enzyme, ligninase, in the current (April 2-8) issue of the weekly British journal, Nature. Their research paper, titled "Cloning and Sequencing of a cDNA for a Ligninase from Phanerochaete chrysosporium," also presents the first detailed description of the gene and characterizes its regulation.

In 1983 Tien, who was then employed at the U.S. Forest Service Laboratory, discovered that ligninase was the secret to a common wood fungus's unique ability to degrade lignin, a major component of wood that is the main waste product of the papermaking industry.

The discovery inspired a variety of research programs which produced the additional findings that ligninase can degrade DDT, benzopyrene and many other organic pollutants. The enzyme acts by breaking down the large pollutant molecules into simpler ones that can be degraded to harmless carbon dioxide by natural processes.

These discoveries and the enzyme's potential to serve as a cheap method of decontaminating soil and water set off a wide effort to clone the gene that enables the wood fungus, Phanerochaete chrysosporium, to produce ligninase.

Tien, the enzyme's discoverer, has now become the first person to announce cloning, describing and characterizing the regulation of the ligninase gene.

The development of a ligninase gene clone is a major milestone in the effort to bring the enzyme's power to bear on environmental problems.

Tien said, "Now, we can think about putting this gene in organisms that may have other degradative abilities. In other words, start beefing up and strengthening organisms that have some limited power to degrade certain pollutants."

"I am trying to put the gene into a yeast to try to get it to overproduce, to make a large supply of ligninase."

"We can also possibly think of taking the gene and putting it back into the original fungus to enhance its ability to make ligninase. Now that we know how to clone the gene, it opens up lots of possibilities."

In addition to cloning the ligninase gene, Tien and Tu have, for the first time, described each of the units, called nucleotides, that make up the gene. The resulting list of units or nucleotide sequence will help researchers understand how the gene works and help them to achieve the enzyme's potential as an anti-pollution tool.

The research on the ligninase clone was supported, in part, by grants to Tien from a Penn State Biomedical Research Grant and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Jesse G. Cooper
Farm Management Extension Specialist

Not all Lancaster Farming readers are familiar with the word "DRUTHER" used in the title of this article. I picked it up from my Scotch Irish grandmother years ago when I was a youngster growing up on a western Pennsylvania farm. In fact, I had almost forgotten that there was such a word until I recently happened on it in our new office dictionary.

The word itself means "Freedom of choice." You have seen bumper stickers that declare "I'd rather be fishing" or skiing, bowling, boating, whatever. That's the general idea. I think druther is a special word that says it a little better. For example when I was a boy, if I had had my druthers I would have druther been outside helping dad farm, not inside supposedly practicing my piano lessons. Eventually both my piano teacher and my mother came to see it my way. My mother was disappointed I'm sure. My music teacher was, I suspect, quite relieved to lose me as pupil.

Now I intend to put that word druther to further use in this article. I won't beat around the bush about it, I think it will help me make a point that some folks would druther forget all about.

Naturally enough as a farm management specialist working for the Cooperative Extension Service I work with lots of folks who would druther be out there farming then doing anything else.

Jesse G. Cooper

That's great. I understand how they feel about agriculture.

For many it can be best described as a tremendous desire to be part and parcel of farm life. To the extent they can put their feelings into words, some will express a strong sense of attachment to the land or nature.

Others, an opportunity for more freedom and independence than they would expect to find elsewhere. Still others just want to work with livestock and growing crops and raise their family out in the country. All most of us need to hear someone mention the words "family farm" and that releases all sorts of memories and emotions. Memories and emotions that tend to reinforce the many positive things we value highly about farm life. All too often our attachment to these values helps us delay coming to grips with the harsher realities of farming that must be dealt with these days. But let's move along.

We all know farmers who would druther be and, in fact, are out there early and late, day in, day out spreading, plowing, planting, mowing, milking, harvesting, hauling; when I know and you do too that they might have gained extra dollars - often badly needed to bolster their farming operations - if they would only spend part of that time testing, calculating, comparing, analyzing, reading, listening, thinking, planning, deciding. Chances are I've just described someone you know. Let's say it again this way. In this day and age there is much more to farming than long hours and, often satisfying, but still just plain hard work.

Now I'm going to refer to that part of farming that some folks would druther not get involved in as "pencil pushing management." If you want to be more accurate you can call it farm business management if you wish.

My ideas of what farming is all about have changed a great lot since those boyhood days when I had to spend long hours practicing piano — all the time glancing out the window to see what was going on around the farm and wishing I too was out there plowing, mowing, whatever. Like every other teenager my enthusiasm for farming did not extend to keeping records, including keeping feed costs for my own 4-H club pig project. Over time I've learned how important pencil pushing management is to the success of any business. I hope you agree and are a dedicated pencil pusher in your own right.

I've heard farmers declare, "I'm only farming half as good as I know how now." To some degree that statement fits everyone of us doesn't it? Of course there may be very good reasons why a farm manager falls short of farming as well as he knows how. Shortage of money to purchase needed fertilizer at planting time is certainly a good example. However, I'm more concerned about the person who really doesn't have a good excuse but is simply determined to avoid pencil pushing farm management today just as I tried to skip daily piano practice years ago. It's a critical part of farm management and as I indicate the part most often neglected.

But wait a minute. Youngsters can learn to do farming right as they say and I've also seen old dogs learn new tricks too. For instance I've recently observed steadily growing farmer interest in doing more and more pencil pushing. That is all for the good. Granted new comers to pencil pushing management may not feel as comfortable behind a desk as they do milking cows but much closer attention is being paid to the flow of dollars into, through, and out of farm businesses than ever before. It's more than farm lenders needing to get an accurate picture of their client's farm financial situation. Farm families themselves are very conscious of the need to know more about what's going on in their farming operations if they wish to retain control rather than having their farm businesses control them. Yes, things are changing in agriculture these days, more rapidly than we realize or perhaps are willing to admit. Using the latest ideas to farm correctly and on time will become even more important in the future. Sure some farm managers will continue to ignore anything that requires pencil pushing, most will adjust their management style once they find they can make better use of their dollars if they take time to think things through and do some planning before they rush out to plow, plant, mow or whatever. Again, the point is so important but often so easily ignored.

Now I have a thought or so, even a suggestion, that might be worth considering for any farm family that would druther be farming right through the eighties and well into the nineties and beyond.

1. Few if any individual farmers or farm families are so completely in control of their own destiny these days that they can guarantee themselves a successful future in farming. Governments, weather, disease, unforseen events all can disrupt or destroy our best laid plans. We buy certain kinds of insurance to help reduce dollar losses in income when crops fail or injury hits our workers and that helps, but its certainly no secret that how well things are going on American farms is determined to an important extent by what's happening to agriculture in foreign countries all around the world. Remember when our only concern with foreign agriculture used to be what the Canadians were doing with their wheat? The first thing we must face up to today is that the individual farmer is not only part of the American agricultural economy, but suddenly or so it seems, we are all competing in a global economy. A lot of grain farmers in particular need to give very serious pencil pushing thought as to what adjustments they should make in their cropping operations in order to compete on at least equal terms with South America or wherever their competition is located.

2. Global economy or not, the individual farm manager still has the last word about how and when a lot of things will be done around this farm. The price at which a grain farmer can sell his crop may, in truth, be beyond his control. What crops, how many acres, and crop production practices are still largely determined by the farmer. How well he performs as a manager depends on many, many factors. Even good managers who would druther be out there plowing and planting know improved performance on their part demands that they also spend valuable time testing, calculating, comparing, analyzing, reading, listening, thinking, planning, deciding.

Yes, you can pass the word along. That old farm management evangelist Jesse Cooper says no one can absolutely guarantee themselves future success in farming but there's no better way to start than to become "an active, born again pencil pusher."

Timber Show Scheduled

HARRISBURG — Timber '87, the annual forest products equipment show sponsored by the Hardwood Lumber Manufacturers Association of Pennsylvania (HLMAPA) will be the largest timber show ever, according to Tim Allwein, HLMAPA's executive director.

"We've already signed up 100 exhibitors for this year's show, compared to 110 last year," said Allwein. "Because of the great amount of interest shown by potential new exhibitors and because many of last year's exhibitors are just now signing up for the 1987 show, I expect to easily surpass the 1986 number of exhibitors by show time."

Timber '87, scheduled for August 7-8 at the Bloomsburg Fairgrounds, is one of the largest forest products equipment shows on the Eastcoast, added Allwein. A wide variety of equipment and services will be shown, including trucks, trailers, sawmill and pallet mill equipment, logging equipment, industrial and chain saws, safety equipment, insurance and energy systems.

The Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry will present a sawmill clinic inside the Industrial Building on the fairgrounds on both show days. The clinic features Casey Creamer, renowned "saw doctor," who will speak on mill alignment and saw maintenance.

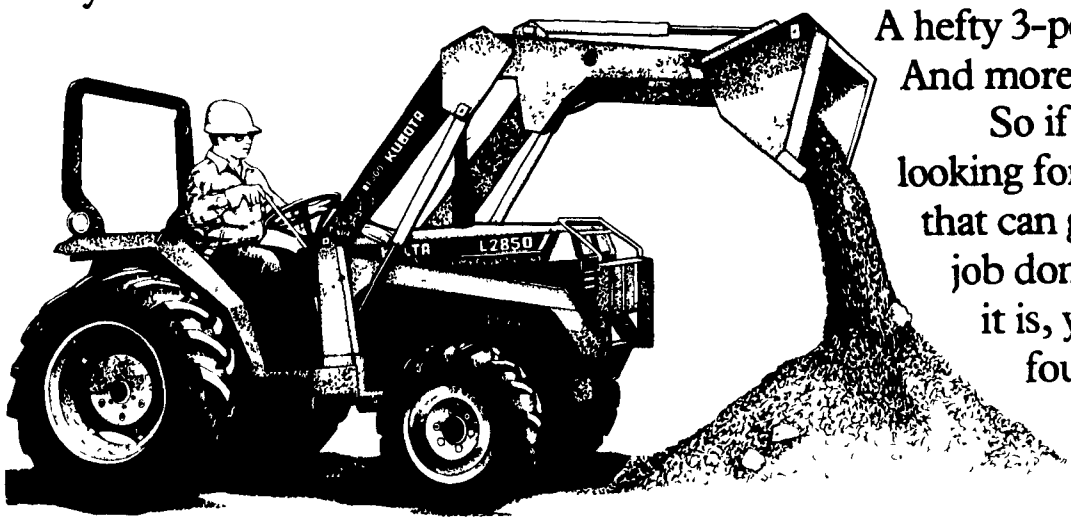
THEY HOLD DOWN MORE THAN ONE JOB.

Kubota's mid-sized tractors are very versatile. You'll find them at work on farms, in parks, nurseries, estate homes and even on construction sites.

The reason is simple. Our L-Series tractors come with features you'd expect to find only on bigger, heavier machines. For example, 3–, 4–, or 5–cylinder diesel engines with PTO horsepower from 21 to 40.

Other features you can select include 8x7 or 8x8 mechanical or hydraulic shuttle-shift. A choice of 2– or 4–wheel drive on most models. A hefty 3-point hitch. And more.



So if you're looking for a tractor that can get the job done, whatever it is, you've found it. The Kubota L-Series.

National Master To Visit Five Pennsylvania Granges

HARRISBURG — National Grange Master Edward Andersen will visit five Pennsylvania State Granges during the month of May. Andersen will be among a team of National Grange officials who will conduct a series on leadership development designed to reach thousands of Grange members.

Edward Andersen was elected the 18th master of the National Grange in November 1979. He is a native of Nebraska and prior to his election as National Master, operated a 700-acre general livestock farm in Waterloo, 20 miles west of Omaha. He began his farming career as a dairy farmer, following service in the U.S. Army in World War II.

Andersen joined the Grange in 1950 and has held numerous local, county and state offices. He was elected state master in 1970 and the following year was elected overseer of the National Grange. His election as national master marks the first time in Grange history that the overseer was elected master.

During nine years as a member of the delegate body of the National Grange and eight years as a member of the National Grange Executive Committee, Andersen was closely involved in the implementation of Grange legislative policies and development of other programs and projects.

Andersen is a past president of the Nebraska American Dairy Association. He is past president of the Nebraska Highway Users Federation and past secretary-treasurer of the Nebraska Agriculture Council.

In 1976, Andersen represented the National Grange on the Beef Development Task Force and served two years on the Beeferendum Committee. He is a member of the Agriculture Advisory Committee for Trade and Vocational Agriculture Advisory Committee. In May 1980, he was elected chairman of the National Farm Coalition and serves on the National 4-H Council Advisory Committee. He is also a member of the President's Committee on the Employment of the Handicapped, Highway Users Federation board of directors, Farm Division of National Safety Council, board of directors of National Livestock and Meat Board and Advisory Committee to the Agricultural Division of the American Vocation Association.

The National Grange Leadership Team will visit 31 Grange states for this series on leadership development. This is an enormous undertaking by the National Grange in an effort to recruit, maintain and expand Grange leadership.

All subordinate and pomona leaders and members are invited to attend. State officials, including Pennsylvania State Grange Master Charles E. Wismer, Jr., will be on hand during this series of important Grange meetings.

The meetings will be held in Grange halls and will include presentations by the national team plus materials and information for all departments. National Master Andersen said, "We hope everyone will make a special effort to attend the meeting in their area. It will be a real learning experience."

The meetings for Pennsylvania will be held:

• MAY 16, SATURDAY — 10 a.m. at the Gibson Grange in Susquehanna County. A covered dish will follow.

• MAY 16, SATURDAY — 6 p.m. at the California Grange in Montour County. The Grange is located off of Rt. 54 at Ottawa. There will be a chicken barbecue. The cost is $5. Reservations must be made by May 9 by calling Bill Durbin at (717) 649-5640.

• MAY 17, SUNDAY — 2 p.m. at Center Hill Grange, Clearfield County.

• MAY 18, MONDAY — 10 a.m. at Blairsville Grange, Indiana County. The Grange Hall is north of Blairsville on Rt. 217.

• MAY 18, MONDAY — 6:30 p.m. at the Cochranton Grange in Crawford County. There will be a covered dish. The Grange will provide the beverage, you must bring the place setting. The Grange Hall is located on Rt. 322 west in Cochranton.

Forage Field Day In Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — A brief field meeting will be held Tuesday, May 12, from noon to 1:30 p.m. to look at small grain and vetch forage plots on the University of Delaware research farm in Newark.

The plots were established by extension agricultural agent Dean Belt, university farm superintendent James Wolfer and extension dairy specialist Dr. George Haenlein to show area farmers how they can supplement their dairy, beef and sheep rations more cheaply with annual forages, small grains and vetch. Forage from the plots is fed to the university's research dairy herd. The plots are currently at an ideal stage for observation. Haenlein, Wolfer and Belt will all be on hand to answer questions.

"We're very pleased with the results of several years work on this forage production system and now have some figures to share," says Belt. "After discussing these results, we will have a presentation by extension pest management specialist Joanne Whalen on leafhopper control in alfalfa."

Interested parties can park in the lot behind Townsend Hall and get a visitor's pass in the county extension office. A wagon will take visitors to the demonstration plots.

For further information or to order lunch, call the New Castle County extension office at 451-8934.

Common Sense Can Prevent Tractor Accidents

NEWARK, Del. – With each new growing season, unwary farmers run the risk of death or mutilation from tractor rollovers or entanglement in unguarded tractor equipment.

"More than 500 fatalities occur each year among tractor operators," says Ron Jester, University of Delaware extension safety specialist. "In addition there are thousands of crippling injuries. Probably nine out of 10 of these accidents could have been prevented if the injured worker had just followed established safety procedures – most of which revolve around common sense."

Jester cites three actual accidents that could have been prevented.

• A 25-year-old farmer was operating a tractor with his 6-year-old nephew on his lap. They made a sharp turn on a slope, and the tractor overturned, killing them. The tractor did not have rollover protective structures (ROPS).

• A 17-year-old boy, using a tractor to run a feed grinder, caught his clothing on the unguarded PTO (power take-off) shaft. His right arm was amputated.

• A 58-year-old farmer was run over while "jump starting" his tractor. He died because he had forgotten to set the transmission in neutral.

To prevent similar accidents, the extension safety expert shares several safety reminders for tractor drivers.

"Match ground speed to operating conditions at all times," he says. "Avoid obstacles, ditches and steep slopes, and keep alert for overhead power lines."

Never allow extra riders, Jester says, and always stop the power before unclogging or fixing a power-driven machine.

"When on the road, use your flashing lights," he says. "Make sure the slow moving vehicle emblem is clean and visible, or replace it."

A Future Farmers of America safety decal reminding tractor drivers to be alert for possible rollover, runover or power shaft accidents is available in limited quantities from county extension offices in Newark (451-2506), Dover (697-4000) and Georgetown (856-7303).

As part of a statewide safety awareness campaign, Jester urges all Delaware farmers and their families to take time May 9 at 1 p.m. to go over emergency shutdown procedures on farm equipment.

Daniels Named Outstanding Advisor At Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK – Dr. Roland R. Daniels, associate professor of horticulture at Penn State, will receive the second annual College of Agriculture Excellence in Advising Award at commencement ceremonies Sat., May 16.

The College of Agriculture Alumni Society initiated the award last year to recognize and reward outstanding advising among faculty "Dr. Daniels exemplifies the caring, understanding and devotion to students that are so important to our students for a successful college career," says Patty McMurray, president of CAAS. The selection committee was made up of faculty, students and members of the board of CAAS.

A former student wrote, "At a time when I was struggling academically, Dr. Daniels motivated me to improve my average and attend graduate school for a Ph.D. Dr. Daniels is a primary force in the success I am enjoying as a plant physiologist."

In the words of a current student, "In today's world where people are often too busy to care, Dr. Daniels stands out as a remarkable individual. He has had a greater positive influence on me than anyone or anything in my college career."

Dr. Daniels teaches graduate and undergraduate courses in fruit and vegetable production and marketing and is the Division of Undergraduate Studies adviser for the College of Agriculture.

In addition to his academic duties, Daniels is the faculty adviser for Alpha Gamma Rho and the Penn State Horticulture Club, which sponsors the popular Hort Show each year at homecoming. He has served as the acting assistant dean for resident education of the College of Agriculture and is the author of numerous publications. He has also served as adviser to the Ag Student Council.

The College of Agriculture undergraduate commencement will be held in Eisenhower Auditorium at 9 a.m. and State Representative Samuel Hayes will deliver the commencement address. About 244 students in agriculture will receive their baccalaureate degrees on Sat., May 16.

Surveys Show Farm Debt Increasing In Delaware

NEWARK, Del. – Delaware farmers are in worse financial shape today than they were a year ago, according to two recent surveys of Delaware farm operators and farm lenders. The surveys were conducted in January, 1987, by the Delaware Agricultural Statistics Service with funds provided by the Delaware Department of Agriculture.

According to University of Delaware extension agricultural economist Gerald F. Vaughn, who analyzed the results and compared them with responses to similar surveys conducted in January, 1986, 31 percent of Delaware farmers with debt have debt/asset ratios greater than 40 percent.

This is an increase from 20 percent in 1986. Debt/asset ratio measures farm debt as a percentage of the value of farm assets. Lenders generally prefer a debt/asset ratio below 40 percent for a financially sound farm business, Vaughn says.

The 1987 farm survey was sent to 443 farm operators; 223 responded. The sample was generally representative of Delaware farmers, except for possible underrepresentation of the largest commercial farm businesses.

Though fewer farmers than last year reported debt/asset ratios of over 70 percent, the economist says this probably means that those who were "most highly leveraged have taken steps to reduce their debt, either voluntarily or as required by their lenders – in some cases leaving farming.

"The sizeable increase in the share of farmers with debt/asset ratios of 41 to 70 percent," Vaughn says, "suggests that financial adjustments are ahead for many farmers moving into this position – especially those who have lost equity due to falling farm real estate values."

Profits from the sale of farm products did little to ease the debt burden on many farms. Nearly 35 percent of the Delaware farmers answering the latest survey did not make a profit – in other words, had no net cash farm income – in 1986. Even 25 percent of the largest commercial farms (sales of $100,000 or more) made no profit.

Net cash farm income was determined by subtracting the farmer's 1986 estimated cash operating expenses from his or her 1986 total gross farm income (including Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) forfeitures and government payments). Vaughn says this does not include the costs of depreciation, unpaid labor and interest on farm equity (return on investment), which also should be subtracted if return to operator's management and risk is to be determined.

Delaware farmers have taken a number of steps over the past three years to improve their financial position. Respondents to the 1986 and 1987 surveys reported that, among other things, they kept debt to a minimum, used older equipment instead of replacing it, tightened management, reduced fertilizer and pesticide use, reduced hired labor, reduced crop acreage and switched to other crops. Many also adopted minimum tillage methods.

By 1987 more farmers had liquidated livestock, sold land and/or sold equipment. "These actions are taken most reluctantly," says Vaughn, "since they reduce a farmer's production capacity." There was also a rise in off-farm employment by farm operators and/or other family members.

In the 1987 survey, only 28.7 percent of the respondents reported taking no action to improve their financial position. "This suggests that nearly three-fourths of all Delaware farmers are feeling the financial squeeze and taking action to cope," says Vaughn.

A follow-up survey of the state's farm lenders conducted this January revealed that 9.65 percent of farm borrowers were expected to be unable to qualify for financing in 1987. This figure is up from 6.2 percent the year before.

Of the borrowers who do not qualify for continued financing, 38 percent lack sufficient equity to borrow money, compared to 18 percent in 1986.

Lenders indicated that nearly 72 percent of the farmers who increased their debt load over the past year did so to refinance long-term debt or to cover operating losses. This compared to just over 52 percent a year earlier and could be a sign of financial stress, Vaughn says.

On the brighter side, 24.6 percent of Delaware's farm borrowers had reduced their debt, compared to 17.6 percent last year. Over the same period, 29 percent used off-farm income to reduce debt, compared to 6.8 percent a year ago.

Vaughn discussed the causes and effects of local farm financial difficulties and alternatives for solving them in an in-depth report published in April, 1986, by Delaware Cooperative Extension. Copies of this report can be obtained from county extension offices in Newark (451-2506), Dover (697-4000) or Georgetown (856-7303), or the Delaware Department of Agriculture. Ask for a copy of Extension Bulletin 144, "Delaware Farm Financial Conditions and Public Policy Implications for State Government."

The extension economist has written a summary of the 1987 surveys which will soon be available from the same sources.

Store Chemicals Safely

Many poisonings are reported every year that were caused by improper storage of medicines and household and farm chemical products. Often they were stored in an area accessible to children; they may have been stored in unmarked containers.

Pesticides should be stored in a cabinet, room or building that can be locked. They should be stored in original, marked containers. Don't transfer a non-edible product to a food or drink container. A sign must be visible indicating pesticide storage.

Household chemical products should be maintained in original containers in cabinets or shelves inaccessible to children.

Medicines also must be kept away from small children. Don't leave medicines out on the kitchen or bedside table. Medicine containers should have child-proof caps.

Improving water infiltration may increase crop yields.

Soil conditioning alters the physical properties of soil in ways that fight erosion, save water or improve plant growth.

The ingredients in Basic-H Concentrated Soil Conditioner have been shown to improve water infiltration, or penetration. This is generally known to have many possible benefits on farms, including improved soil aeration, reduced runoff, reduced erosion, water conservation and increased crop yields. The results you obtain depend on conditions in your own field and your farming practices.

Basic-H Concentrated Soil Conditioner may also enhance the relationship between water, soil and plants. This can help your farm in many ways, because the way that crops get water and nutrients depends on the way that water moves through soil.

Helps promote uniform water penetration

In carefully controlled field studies, Basic-H Concentrated Soil Conditioner substantially increased water infiltration, or penetration, on eight wettable soils. These experiments were all repeated five or six times, producing statistically significant results with a 95% confidence level. This means that the same results would be obtained in 19 out of every 20 experiments.
